The action was concentrated in the first hour and 151,000 shares changed hands compared with only 113,000 shares for the next two hours. Smelters, Nickel and Noranda held gains of a point to 1½ and Waite Amulet advanced 50c, holding most of the gain. Interlisted industrials were nearly as strong as they partly approximated the gains on the New York board on Wednesday when the Toronto market was closed. National Steel Car advanced more than 2 points.

Gainers in the western oil group included Home Oil, Anglo-Canadian and Royalite.

Shove Saves Man From Buzz-Saw

Blackbank, Ont., May 25 (CP)—A timely shove was credited today with saving William Neill from being badly cut by a big buzz saw. Neill was cutting wood here when his glove caught in the whirling shaft whirling him through the air and directly in the path of the cutting teeth.

Robert Cunningham, a fellow-workman, pushed him off the table just as the blades touched Neill's hips, leaving four teeth marks as evidence of his narrow escape. Taken to Collingwood, 17 miles north of here, an X-ray examination showed Neill had his arm fractured in four places.

The open cheese market was 9 3-4c to 9 7-8c for No. 1 Ontarios.

On the egg market graded shipments arriving in large lots in used free cases were selling on spot at 20 1-2c to 21c for A- large, 18 1-2c for A-medium, 18c for B and 16c to 16 1-2c for C.

Hens in Demand

Highlight of the poultry market at the present time is the keen demand for well fleshed hens. Prices have kept at a relatively high level and on principal eastern markets hens are bringing as much or more than chickens. Market supplies of hens during recent months have been light in contrast with the past 2 or 3 years when supplies were steady throughout the late winter and spring months. This year producers have not been marketing hens. Lowered prices may be expected for hens once broilers and roasters become plentiful on Canadian markets, say officials of Poultry Products Inspection and Grading Service, Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Producers are advised to take advantage of the present strong market if they wish to realize on hens which have gone off production and are in fit condition for market. Methods of selecting such birds are well known to Canadian producers and birds which have gone off production can be easily picked out. It is not necessary nor advisable to market the entire flock at once. If a few birds are selected each time the producer goes to market systematic marketing and a minimum of price fluctuation would result.

BRITAIN PROTESTS JAPANESE ACTION

British Steamship Rampura Stopped Near Hong Kong on Wednesday

London, May 25 (AP)—The Foreign Office announced today Great Britain had made a protest to Japan over the stopping and boarding of the British steamship Rampura near Hong Kong yesterday.

The protest was presented to Japanese naval authorities at Amoy by Admiral Sir Percy Noble, Commander-in-Chief of British naval forces in China waters.

Two Japanese destroyers halted the Rampura just outside Hong Kong waters but a boarding party left when two British warships, summoned by wireless, appeared. Passengers said the liner had halted when one of the Japanese warships fired two shots across her bows. They said the boarding party demanded to inspect the ship's papers.

Liable to be Searched

Shanghai, May 25 (AP)—A Japanese navy spokesman warned today that foreign ships entering waters in the vicinity of the China coast were liable to be halted and searched by Japanese warships.

Such action as the stopping and boarding of two foreign liners in two days, the British Rampura and the French Aramis, was "necessitated", he asserted, because in the past ships flying foreign flags had been used by Chinese for military operations against the Japanese.

The spokesman declined to say how far from the China coast the search zone extended but it was indicated it might be up to 100 miles.

WELCOME OFFSETS FATIGUE OF TOUR

King George and Queen Elizabeth Stand Well Strain of Schedule

By R. K. CARNEGIE

Aboard Royal Pilot Train, Broadview, Sask., May 25 (CP) — King George and Queen Elizabeth are standing well the strain of the terrific schedule of their Canadian tour.

Word came from the Royal train early today that their Majesties were so stirred by the warmth of their reception that the exhilaration of this offset somewhat the fatigue that strenuous programs inevitably produce.

As the two trains, the pilot and the Royal, lay on sidings through the night and early morning before leaving for Regina, it was learned the King's advisors were suggesting he save himself as much as possible as the tour has a long way yet to go. However his Majesty is feeling so well it is doubtless if he will let up to any great extent.

Every Station a Triumph

One of the marvels of the tour is the way people gather at every station through which the Royal train passes, regardless of the time of day.

The story of the ten school children of Swedish descent who came to Busteed yesterday morning is typical of what is going on wherever the Royal train passes. The children, about 10 years old, assembled at their school in Ostersund, Man., at two in the morning. At three, they set out walking five miles to Busteed. During the trip they had to cross a lake a mile wide, but they reached Busteed before departure of the Royal train, which had spent the night there.

Crowds At Stations

Today, the Royal train left Kemnay in the early morning, passed through Alexander, Griswold, Oak Lake, Virden, Hargrave and stopped for water at Elkhorn. At every station hundreds of people were waiting but at Elkhorn a crowd of 5,000, of which about half were children, cheered and waved flags.

An Anglican Indian Mission is located at Elkhorn and 100 Indian boys and girls in red coats and hoods made a brilliant picture.

Everyone on the royal train was enthusiastic over the reception at Brandon. Coming late in the evening, the beauty of the setting, the cheering of the children, the decorations, the bands, all combined to make it one of the high spots of the trip across the Prairies.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King was enthusiastic over the Brandon demonstration which he said had deeply moved the King and Queen.

The King Bruises Hand

The health of the party on the royal train has been excellent except for minor injuries. The King bruised his hand on a door of the royal train and as a precaution it was disinfected. Miss Willox, the Queen's second dresser, suffered a slight bruise which became infected and she remained in Toronto to have it cleared up and will join the royal suite possibly at Banff. Miss Willox has been with the Queen since Her Majesty was a little girl and the Queen is very fond of this stately, smiling woman whose hair is beginning to turn grey.

Then there is the tale of the barber Paul Tasse, the 200-pound French-Canadian barber from Ottawa, was sleeping in an upper berth on the royal train, and underneath was Frank Powell, chunky red headed Englishman who is hairdresser to the Queen. The chain holding up the upper berth broke and Paul landed on top of Frank, giving him a nasty cut on the forehead.

CROWDS GATHER IN REGINA TO SEE KING, QUEEN

Royal Couple Scheduled to Visit Saskatchewan Capital for Seven Hours

STATE DINNER

By CHARLES EDWARDS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Regina, May 25 (CP)—Farm folks by the thousands—many of them from the 1938 drought lands of the Province—crowded into Saskatchewan's capital today to see the King and Queen.

They were a cheerful horde of visitors, happy over Wednesday's heavy rainfall that meant so much to their newly seeded wheat, and they were ready to join Provincial and civic officials in a great demonstration of welcome to Their Majesties.

The King and Queen were scheduled to visit Regina for seven and a half hours, beginning with a formal greeting at the station by Lieutenant-Governor A. P. McNab and Mayor A. C. Ellison.

Joining Regina residents and the rural welcomers were hundreds of United States citizens who motored here from North Dakota and Montana.

Couple View Croplands

As the train rolled across the prairies towards Regina, the King and Queen had a view of the croplands whose owners have known the fortune of good years and the hardships of bad when drought took its toll in Southern Saskatchewan.

The silver and blue royal train was due in Regina at 1.30 p.m., M.D.T., and the schedule called for a 45-mile trip on to Moose Jaw this evening, where another crowd of city and rural welcomers awaited the royal couple.

Following Regina's welcome at the station, the program scheduled a drive to the City Hall for the formal presentation of an address of welcome by Mayor Ellison expressing the "Love and loyalty of our citizens," and the signing of the City Register by the King and Queen before a gathering of Council members and other civic dignitaries.

Provincial Reception

Saskatchewan's gaily decorated Legislature Buildings were the setting for the Provincial reception of Their Majesties by Premier W. J. Patterson and Mrs. Patterson. Here members of the Legislative Assembly and their wives gathered for formal presentation.

A drive through the city and a visit to the Exhibition Grounds for a welcome by school children were part of an afternoon program that included a formal tea at Royal Canadian Mounted Police Headquarters.

The last function on the busy program was a state dinner at Government House. The royal train was scheduled to leave for Moose Jaw at 9 p.m. M.D.T.

Dr. Houston, Seattle, On Visit to Father

Dr. D. H. Houston of Seattle, Wash., with Mrs. Houston, is visiting his father, John Houston, Shannonville, after attending an annual convention of the National American Medical Association in St. Louis, Mo. Dr. Houston flew east to St. Louis from his home state to attend the convention, and is enjoying one of his frequent visits to this district. He brings greetings to Belleville residents from Mr. E. V. Illsey, former manager of the local branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, now resident of Seattle, with whom he is well acquainted.

Obstructing Charge Laid Against Five

Kitchener, Ont., May 25 (CP) — Five charges of obstructing police were laid here today after a brief flurry at the gates of the strike-bound plant of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company today.

It was alleged that nearly 100 pickets sought to prevent tire and footwear inspectors from entering the plant. At least one picket was said to have laid hands on a police officer.

Meanwhile negotiations aimed at a strike settlement are continuing between representatives of the company and 750 striking employees.

19,400 ITALIANS ARE WITHDRAWN

Rome, May 25—(AP)—A Government communique today set the total of Italian combatants being withdrawn from Spain at 19,400.

Eight steamships sailed yesterday from Naples to transport the troops.

Fireworks Display Not Up to Normal

Scorched eyebrows and burned finger tips were the only reported casualties today experienced by youth of Belleville and district who last evening celebrated the "Glorious Twenty-fourth" in old-time style.

Streets of the city twinkled and flashed in dazzling pyrotechnics after dark last evening and firecrackers popped in sputtering explosions, even though the old-time ardor of the evening was dampened somewhat by the holidays that had gone before. But sales of the explosives and fireworks as reported by local dealers were reported fairly good, though not up to normal years.

Brilliant displays were noted at the Royal Canadian Air Force base, near Trenton, and from vantage points on the hills of the city, the twinkle and glow from hundreds of homes were clearly visible. Skyrockets curved fiery parabolas in the dark, and the red flicker of fusees and Roman candles lighted the civic scene.

One storekeeper on West Moira Street, with an audience of at least fifty small children, and as many adults who parked cars along the street, put on a dazzling free show late in the evening, apparently of unsold effects which he wished to dispose of.

S. A. Bandsmen Find Selves Leading Troops

Seven members of the Salvation Army Band from Belleville, who assisted the S. A. corps band at Kingston on Sunday at the time of the welcome to Their Majesties King George and Queen Elizabeth will not forget that occasion. Today they recalled that after the Royal automobile bearing the Royal Standard and carrying the Sovereigns had passed, these seven bandsmen, among whom were Major Alderman and Bandmaster David Wardell, started to make their way so as to see the Royal procession on its return from Port Henry. They marched up the return route among the thousands lining the way. Suddenly they found themselves and members of the troops marching together. The crowds cheered the playing bandsmen, and the soldiers.

When the soldiers had reached their station, the bandsmen were approached by a member of the R.C.M.P., who asked where they wished to go. He was told that the musicians wanted to get off the route of the procession and to witness the return of the Royal party from the Fort. The Mountie at once opened up a passage through the crowd and the bandsmen found places from which they had a good view of the procession.

In the early evening the Belleville bandsmen with the Kingston band had played from 6.15 to 8.45 o'clock when the King and Queen arrived. The Kingston bandmaster and Mr. Wardell had been leading alternately during the long wait and it fell to the lot of Bandmaster Wardell to be leading the bandsmen as Their Majesties passed. The National Anthem was played twice.

Other Belleville S. A. bandsmen were unable to attend at Kingston owing to duties on the railway, some of them in connection with the preparations made by the C.N.R. for the passage of the train in the Belleville section.

Cars of Future Will Look More Like House

Motor Expert Predicts Movable Chairs, Sun-Baths, Beds

New York, May 25 (AP)—Automobiles of the future, as visualized by a motor expert, will appear more like homes than vehicles—with movable chairs, sun-bath roofs, air-conditioning, beds and washstands.

Edwin Allen of the Standard Products Company told the World Automotive Engineering Congress:

"In the not-too-far distant future, we will walk up to our car, push a button and the door will open. The seats will be light movable chairs and the floor will be wide and flat.

"A portion of the roof will be made of a curved translucent material which will admit the health-giving rays of the sun, at the same time removing the glare. A series of buttons will regulate the temperature and humidity to any desired condition of air.

"Pressing of another button will unfold a concealed bed from out of the partition between the passenger and engine compartments. Many little passenger conveniences will be installed, such as toilet and lavatory facilities."

County Court

Thomas Irwin, Thurlow, appeared in County Police Court here today before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C. charged with reckless driving. Both Crown Attorney Donnan, K.C., and the accused agreed for an enlargement until June 2 next. "There is a charge against this man preferred by the city police to be heard that day," informed Mr. Donnan, which prompted his worship to postpone today's charge and hear both at the same time.

Two small children were made wards of the Children's Aid Society today and were placed in the custody of Inspector T. D. Ruston who presented the cases before the court. Mr. Ruston intimated he would place the children in adequate homes soon.

ROYAL AUTO TRIP URGED BY GALT

Mayor McKay Says Change in Itinerary is Being Considered

Galt, Ont., May 25 (CP)—Mayor W. S. McKay said today he had wired Prime Minister Mackenzie King asking a change in the itinerary of the King and Queen through this part of Ontario by driving from Guelph through Galt to Kitchener. He said the Inter-Departmental Committee on the royal visit arrangements was considering the request.

The Mayor's wire in part reads:

This could be arranged with an hour to an hour and a half additional in royal party's stay in this part of Ontario. Such a change would open out the whole visit for the 100,000 people in this area and would eliminate terrific traffic congestion involved in 10-minute stops at Guelph and Kitchener railway stations.

Through Streets of Cities

The royal couple could cover some Guelph and Kitchener streets Galt would ask no stops or presentations. Suggested change would mean also Preston and Hespeler could see their King and would put the whole visit to Waterloo and Wellington Counties on a much more satisfactory basis by giving many thousands who might otherwise have no opportunity a chance to see the royal party.

The program for June 6, calls for the King and Queen to travel over Canadian National Railway lines, leaving Guelph at 2.45 p.m. E.D.T. after a 10-minute stop, arriving at Kitchener at 3.15 p.m. and Stratford at 4.30 p.m., with 10-minute stops at each place, and a 15-minute stop at Windsor at 8.30 p.m.

Galt is off the main line of the C.N.R. and the trip suggested by the mayor would involve an automobile ride of about 25 miles.

Yankees Stopped at Thirteen When Detroit Rookie Beat League Leaders by 6-1 Count

Dizzy Trout Spaces Seven Hits Over Same Number of Innings

REDS GOING STRONG

Cincinnati Has Won Nine in Row With Cards Close Behind With Six

(By Judson Bailey Associated Press Sports Writer).

This Major League baseball season is as full of streaks as a faded shirt, so the fact that the 13 jinx stopped New York Yankees yesterday caused no consternation. People merely turned their noses in the direction of Cincinnati, where the Reds already have won nine without showing signs of tiring.

St. Louis Cardinals also have hatched a winning streak which now stretches over six games. In addition, the National League has a couple of sizable losing strings in existence—seven straight for the Phillies and six for Brooklyn Dodgers.

If these seem like novelties, consider that Boston Red Sox earlier this spring chained together seven victories while Pittsburgh Pirates lost eight in one stretch, Detroit Tigers dropped seven in a row and three clubs had six-game losing streaks. At one time Washington then turned and dropped six.

Senators won five in a row and then turned around and dropped six.

Rookie Stops Yankees

It was a Detroit rookie pitcher, Paul (Dizzy) Trout, who stopped the Yankees after they had won 2 consecutive games. He had had several chances to show his stuff this spring, but never previously had won a game. Against the champions, however, he spaced seven hits at no more than one to an inning and his mates pounded three New York hurlers for a 6-1 victory.

Although not so lengthy the two current National League winning strings are more fun because their owners are in a virtual tie for first and a false step for either will be important.

With Frank McCormick exploding his eighth homer of the season, the Reds shut out New York Giants 6-0, on the five-hit pitching of big Paul Derringer, while the Cardinals kept their slim percentage by a 7-0 shutout of Boston Bees on the seven-hit flinging of Curt Davis.

Pirates Now Fourth

The Pirates reached a .500 average in games won and lost for the first time this year, and moved into fourth place in the National League by beating the Dodgers, 6-3. In the other senior circuit game Claude Passeau held Chicago Cubs to seven hits while the Phils pasted lefty Larry French for 11 but Bruins got theirs when they counted and won 3-2.

Cleveland Indians kept the Red Sox from taking advantage of the Yankees' downfall in the American League by bumping Boston 6-2. Willis Hudlin pitched a four-hit game but took no chances and knocked in one run with a double and later hit a homer.

Win Slugging Spree

Washington took a slugging spree from St. Louis Browns 16-6, coming from behind after the Browns tallied five times in the first three innings.

In the season's second night game Chicago White Sox bunched three runs in the eighth to break a 1-1 deadlock and beat Philadelphia Athletics 4-1. Ed Smith, the southpaw Connie Mack let go to the Sox only a few weeks ago, prescribed a five-hit diet for his former teammates, who also lost their previous night test.

WINGS THREATEN TO COMPLICATE MATTERS IN INT.

League Leaders, Newark and Jersey City, Both Win Contests

TORONTO SPLITS

Earl Caldwell, Winning Second Game, Hurls 22 Scoreless Innings

(By The Associated Press)

Rochester Red Wings, with utter disregard for the mathematicians who have to figure percentages, are threatening to add further complications to an International League race already as close as bread and butter.

As of this morning, Newark Bears and Jersey City Giants once again are tied for first place, each with 20 victories and 13 defeats. The Red Wings, with 17 and 12, are runners-up.

That is where the complication enters into the picture. Should Rochester win today from Montreal, and Newark and Jersey City meanwhile lose to Baltimore and Syracuse, respectively, the one-game margin among the three would be wiped out. Yet in the percentages the Bears and Little Giants still would retain a six-point margin.

The two leaders were able to keep their distance by largely similar victories yesterday.

Bears Edge Out Orioles

Newark, in a night game, managed to edge out Baltimore Orioles 6-5 scoring the deciding run in the eighth just ahead of a three-run cluster by Rogers Hornsby's crew. Ham Schulte led an 11-hit attack with four blows, one a double, while Walt Judnich drove in two runs with a triple.

The Jerseys won out in the last of the ninth over Syracuse, 5-4, on pinch-hitter Glen Stewart's single that scored Tom Hafey from second. The game saw Frank Pearce make his debut for the Little Giants by retiring eight men in order after relieving Bob Carpenter in the seventh. Pearce got credit for the victory.

Schuster Wins Game

Rochester, meanwhile, could get only an even break with the last place Toronto Maple Leafs. The Red Wings slugged Billy Weir and Phil Marchildon for 17 safeties in the opening game to win, 14-2, but then fell victims to Earl Caldwell's third straight in the nightcap, by a score of 1-0. Billy Schuster won this one for the Leafs in the eighth by poling one of Roy Henshaw's pitches over the left field fence. Caldwell's shutout brought his string of scoreless innings to 22 straight.

In the other games Montreal Royals took both ends of a doubleheader from Buffalo Bisons, 2-1 and 8-0, to edge into fourth place past Baltimore. Marvin Duke outpitched Ken Ash in the first game, while Bob Porter twirled a three-hit shutout for his seventh triumph against two defeats in the afterpiece.

Ferndale, N.Y., May 25 (AP)—A first-hand critical inspection of Max Baer at his training camp reveals, as one might have expected that the former playboy champion isn't quite the man he was four or five years ago.

Max likes to think he is, and he still can out-talk a forest full of parrots, but the simple truth is the easy years have deprived the handsome Californian of a fraction of his speed and have reduced his once-marvellous stamina. In other words, Max looks and fights his 30 years

It's still an open question whether Max has lost enough of his speed and strength to cost him his scrap with Lou Nova a week from tonight in Yankee stadium. Perhaps he has enough left to let him sail out and smash the youngster to the canvas. But this much is certain: the longer it goes the shorter will be Baer's chances of victory.

On the word of his manager, Ancil Hoffman, Max has worked harder for this fight than any in his career. He's been training his heart out for seven weeks here in the hills.

"He's been the first one up every morning and has been out on the road for hours," said Hoffman. "I don't know where anybody got the idea his legs are gone. That's as silly as this stuff about Jim Braddock showing Nova how to whip us. Braddock will do that kid more harm than good."

TOURING TEAM WINS

Detroit, May 25 (CP)—A six-goal splurge in the last half gave the touring Scottish International soccer team a 7-1 victory here last night over a squad of selected Michigan players. It was the Scottish team's second United States encounter and followed a 1-1 tie with an eastern all-star outfit May 21 at New York. They now move to St. Louis, Mo., and then to Canada.

CORNWALL BISONS LAST IN LEAGUE

Team Has Only Won Two and Lost Eleven Since Season Opened

(By The Canadian Press)

Dark days have fallen for Cornwall's Bisons, the baseball outfit that have held practically a monopoly on the Canadian-American League pennant since the class C loop's organization four seasons ago.

Bisons, who twice headed the schedule parade and finished second the next in three seasons of play, were last in the eight team circuit today. After two weeks' campaigning, they've won two games and finished on the short end 11 times.

Utica Braves rode into Cornwall to take the measure of the Toronto Maple Leafs' farmhands twice yesterday. Previously, the Uticans had won one contest in nine tries but they downed the Bisons 4-1 in an afternoon game and repeated 5-4 at night to take over seventh berth in the standing.

Normie Stafford held Cornwall to eight scattered blows in the first game and his mates walloped Polly Veach and George Copeland for more timely clouts. Bisons made a fight of it in the nightcap but were unable to overcome Braves' early three run lead.

Meanwhile, Oswego Netherlands and Amsterdam Rugmakers fought it out at the opposite end of the standing. The Nets cut off a last-inning Rugmaker rally for a 9-7 triumph that shot them into the top spot.

Bill Kalfas pitched the triumph, his third of the season, while three Amsterdam hurlers were unable to quell Oswego's bats. Manager Kunes of the Nets was ordered from the park in the fourth.

In the only other game played, Ogdensburg Colts downed Gloversville Glovers 2-1 to hold third place. Rain cancelled the Rome Colonels at Ottawa Braves contest.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

Ken J. Colling

Frank Sedore's "Oilers" made it two straight and in succession when they trounced the junior "milkmen" 9 to 3 last night in the softball loop. At the same time Bud Gaulin's Point Anne "cementmen" were handing the Dracup "tiremen" a sound 13 to 4 trouncing all of which goes to prove our pre-season contention—Corbys A.C., Shell "Oilers" with Point Anne an unknown quality. Buddy Gaulin has a better balanced team than was expected and they should benefit by the experience and competition they gain in the Belleville City League when they go out in the intermediate "A" playdowns of the O.A.S.A.

Insofar as the game at the Flats was concerned Bawden did not extend himself to allow five hits, the Oilers getting three runs in the initial frame and coasting in to an easy victory. It is to be hoped Skipper Sedore doesn't work Bawden into exhaustion as was the case a few years ago, when Bawden hurled the majority of games for the old Percival team and showed the results of over work when the play-offs rolled around. Incidentally Red Townsend will be minus the services of Steve Hook his new pitching find from Kitchener. Hook is on the sidelines with an infected foot, which will keep him out of the game for a week or so. Also it might be to the credit of Townsend to announce he fielded a junior team last night with only two players left over from his last year's Eastern Ontario champions, Arnold Ethier at third and Lum Carson pitching. The remainder are all first year and teen-aged kids.

The umpires at the Flats pulled one for the book last night. Amo caught Yarrow's hard drive in deep left-centre and quite openly tossed the ball to Goyer, who dropped it. The umpires ruled "no catch" and Yarrow romped home for a cheap home run. The next inning Reynolds failed to tag up at third, after an outfield fly had been caught, but neither official saw him, so despite the objections of Skipper Townsend, Reynolds got a cheap run. Chalk up two errors to the umps, and two cheap runs, one to each team.

We are indebted to the officials of the Belleville Softball League for their courtesy in supplying us with a nice new press box at the Coleman Flats diamond, shaded and all the trimmings. As a matter of fact the Softball Executive have done everything humanly possible to assure the comforts of all attending their games at Coleman Flats, having erected new bleachers along the first and third base lines, groomed the diamond and now supplying a splendid press box, so we won't have to sit in the old wheelbarrow any more. (How we'll miss that old seat of preference and seclusion).

Do you remember when Fred Perry's debut as a professional in England, playing Ellsworth Vines two years ago today, was marred when the lanky American pro won by scores of 7-5, 6-8, 6-2, 4-6 and 6-3.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers have added Wilbur Moore, University of Minnesota halfback, to their team for next fall. Moore, ace of the Minnesota backfield in 1939, will take up residence in Winnipeg at the conclusion of his scholastic year.

Congratulations to Art Cole, our rival newshawk, who so frequently "scoops" us for his Toronto issue. Arthur L, as we call him, recently won the city handball championship, defeating Jake Goodman in the finals, but only after five very strenuous sets, during which Mrs. Cole's little (?) boy lost five pounds, so strenuous was the contest. It might be fair to point out that Goodman, thinking he was tops in the game, spotted all comers five points in the city handball playdowns. That proved his downfall, because Cole took full advantage and won the honors by the following scores — first set 26 to 14 Goodman, 2nd. set 21 to 25 Cole, 3rd set 21 to 14 Cole, 4th set 26 to 11 Goodman and in the final set Cole won 21 to 18.

In the meantime the Belleville intermediate baseball team is practicing every night and hope to play their postponed game in the Bay of Quinte League versus Napanee here one week from tonight.

Eddie Whitehill, Peterborough moundsman, narrowly missed hurling a no-hitter in Port Credit yesterday as the Petes lost 1-0. Two stinging singles in the eighth, when the homesters scored, were the only blows obtained off Whitehill. The Petes could not fathom Al Yarnell's slants sufficiently to manufacture any runs for Whitehill, however. The Petes only got three hits as it was. The Liftlock City nine have won one and lost two in the inter-city senior loop.

We're Telling You That — O'Mahony must have gone back considerably if he can't take Jack Washburn, just like Grant took Richmond without a struggle.... It begins to look as though the only way Toronto can win a ball game is to have their pitchers hurl shutouts, Earl Caldwell had to blank Rochester in order to win yesterday....Archworth and Bunty Lawless, two King's Plate winners, meet at the Woodbine on Saturday—take your pick ....Sea General will also start in the Hendrie Memorial along with Archworth, etc.....It must be in the air, Johnny Meyer, strong Waterloo pitcher, hurled a no-hitter over Kitchener seniors yesterday....They've got Rosen back as lead off man for the Dodgers and he got two hits yesterday, as did Heath for Cleveland.

SHELL 'OILERS' WIN TWO IN ROW; 'CEMENTMEN' WIN

Johnny Bawden Allows Only Five Hits in Defeating 'Milkmen' 9-3

HEAVY HITTING

Point Anne Nine Win First Start in Loop by Downing 'Tiremen' 13-4

Frank Sedore's Shell "Oilers" chalked up their second consecutive victory in the Belleville Softball League with a 9 to 3 win over the Citizen's "milkmen" at Coleman Flats last evening while at Point Anne the "cementmen" were prying off the league lid with a 13 to 4 win over the Dracup "tiremen" in a dual league fixture.

Johnnie Bawden ascended the mound for the "Oilers" and hurled five hit ball and coasted in to win over the youthful junior "milkmen". Yarrow, Red Townsend's left fielder being the only junior to solve Bawden's slants to any degree of hitting proficiency as he collected a home run and single in four times at bat. Yarrow also circled the bases when outfielder Amo tossed away the ball after catching it, the officials ruling no catch and an error, as Yarrow scored two of the losers' three tallies.

The "Oilers" garnered three runs in the initial frame and were hitting Carson consistently towards the end of the game, the winners getting eleven safeties including a home run by Sero. Johnny Ronsky led the hitters with a double and two singles, Reynolds and Amo getting a brace of hits each. Bawden whiffed an even dozen of Townsend's juniors, striking out the side in the initial frame, after two were aboard.

Cementmen Slug

Garnering 8 hits off the deliveries of two pitchers, the Point Anne "cementmen" romped home to a 13 to 4 win over the Dracup "tiremen" at Ox Point. Five runs in the third inning saw Bud Gaulin's revamped homesters take a decided lead and as they added four more in the seventh. Robson was replaced on the tiremen's mound by Dracup who fared little better at the hands of the hard-hitting Point Anners. Stan Luffman hurled steady ball for the homesters, scattering nine hits well. The losers made their big bid in the sixth, when they scored three runs on two hits, including Vic Hanna's circuit blow. Philp wielded a potent bat for the losers, getting three safeties. Luffman whiffed no less than nine.

Murney Green, with three hits, including a home run, led the homesters, as every member of the Point Anne team collected at least two safeties, except Whalen. The Tiremen booted the ball for eight costly errors, many of which came early and when errors proved costly, however. The win leaves Point Anne in second place, a half a game behind the league leading Oilers. Corbys meet Dracups on Friday.

Man Under the Bed

A. CHADBOURNE SYMMES

Undoubtedly it was indiscreet for Miss Minifer, sup-principal of the Graytowers School for Girls, to admit to Miss Houston, teacher of mathematics, and Miss Lord, teacher of languages, that she looked under her bed every night to see if a man was there. It would have been indiscreet to say in any other place anything which might have been overheard and misconstrued by a half-grown girl with ears like a rabbit's for keenness and a tongue apparently hung in the middle. Even if the persons to whom one speaks could see a twinkle in one's eye which revealed that one thus joking, the eavesdropper could not. Hence the adventures which befell "Boots" Brewer, who hurried panting, from her alcove to pour this news into the ears of the Sporty Six.

The Sporty Six were the malcontents of Graytowers—the ringleaders—and "Boots" was their captain. She had entered the school late in the year, having been requested to withdraw from Longacres Manor by the principal of that school, and she didn't care a bit if she was expelled from Graytowers. Perhaps if she were expelled she could wear Dad into consenting to let her go on the stage and become as wonderful as Katherine Melrose, the actress, whom she had adored for years. It might be worth trying.

At five minutes of nine, just before "early retiring" bell rang and the teachers sought their rooms, a meager-looking little man in slouch hat and a fierce black mustache, sneaked into Miss Minifer's room and hastily dived under the bed. Instantly a big hand clutched him, and a horrible husky voice growled, "Not a yip, or you're a dead one!"

The whoop of utter surprise and horror that had actually started for the intruder's interior uttered itself as a sort of quack, which couldn't have been heard on the landing. A bulky ruffian, smelling fearfully of tobacco, and with a black handkerchief mask over the lower part of his face, was clutching him, and he felt the coldness of steel pressed against his forehead.

"Dis is my show—see?" the ruffian growled. "I've had my eye on dis dump fer some time. De missis has jew-lry, an' so does lots of de goils. Den you come buttin' in to queyer my game. Who're you anyhow? Make one sound, and I'll put you outer de game, see?"

Do people really die of fright? the quaking "Boots" wondered, as she trembled on the floor under the bed. The man would kill her if she made a sound, and would kill Miss Minifer, Miss Houston and all the rest if they happened to wake up and catch him robbing them.

"I hate dis old dame, anyway" muttered the voice. "She got me sent to jail once. I hope she does give me a chance to croak her!"

Miss Minifer would look under the bed—she said she always did! He would have to kill her in order to escape! And of course he would have to kill "Boots" too. A step and the light flashed up in the room. Miss Minifer's unmistakable shoes and the hem of her purple foulard became visible. She laid hold of the edge of the spread and bent to look under the bed. The ruffian's hand dug into "Boots'" quivering flesh. She felt the menace of the revolver. Then with a scream of warning like the cry of a lost soul, she fainted completely away!

"You are a very foolish little girl," said Miss Minifer, somewhat later, to a revived and chastened "Boots." "Your father has no objection to your going on the stage when the right time comes, but he wants you to lay the foundation of some education and an understanding of what obedience and discipline mean, first. That is why he sent you here.

"The Sporty Six are not so very sporty. One of them is a chatterbox, and betrayed the whole plan. They are not worth your while. My sister, who arrived tonight to visit me, agreed to help me give you a little surprise. She's interested in you, Emily, and says a girl who will risk certain death to warn another has something big in her nature. She'll be a valuable friend if you will do your own part to deserve her friendship. She is Katherine Melrose."

"Katherine Melrose?" said "Boots" in a small voice.

The bathroom door opened and the "ruffian" stood on the threshold. He had removed his hat, his wig and his mask, and above the janitor's old suit smiled the familiar face of "Boots'" idol.

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and Glasses Magee and Skinny Martin were talking about what a darn shame Som Cross isn't going to be aloud to have a birthday party, and Glasses said, Here he comes now.

Meaning Sam, and Skinny said, Where you going, Sam? and Sam said, O a errand I wasn't going to go at first, but I changed my mind and decided to be good natured about it after my mother asked me about 10 times.

Well hay, Sam, does she still say you cant have any birthday party on your birthday? I said, and Sam said, O, sure, that's definite.

Well holey smokes Sam, cant you make her change her mind? Glasses said and Skinny said, Sure, Sam, why dont you change your habits and do evrything she asks you for a while?

It would be too late, it would just remind her of the big difference, Sam Cross said. The only way I can think of is for you fellows to all give me a birthday present in advance, and when she sees the big pile of presents maybe she'll be ashamed not to leave me have the party, he said.

Sounding like a bum idea if it wouldn't work, and Sam kept on going and I said, Well hay, how about if us 3 went and talked to his mother maybe she'd change her mind and leave him have it just to be polite on account of us having been invited and everything. G whiskers we dont have to actually ask her, we can just kind of hint.

And we went and rang Sam's front bell and Mrs. Cross came to the door, and I said, Mrs. Cross would you mind setting a bet, we been having a argument about what day next week Sam's birthday is, and Mrs. Cross said, Then you all lose no matter what you said because Sam's birthday isn't for months and months yet.

Proving anybody that trusts a a famous liar deserves what happens.

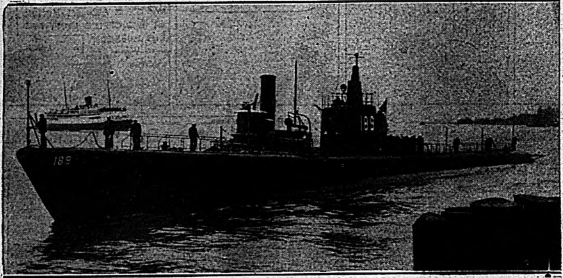
NAVY RESCUE WORKERS SEEK TO RAISE TRAPPED SUB CREW



The Saury, sister ship of the Squalus

Equipped with the latest type undersea rescue apparatus, naval crews have been rushed from Boston and New York to Portsmouth, N.H., 12 miles off which the United States navy's new submarine Squalus, sank to the ocean floor and failed to rise, entrapping its personnel of 62. The trapped men included six officers, 51 seamen, four navy yard workers and one civilian. Pictured above is the Saury, sister ship of the Squalus. The two submarines are alike in every particular.

12-YEAR-OLD YOUTH ADMITS MURDER OF FATHER, MOTHER AND SISTER

Beaver, Pa., May 25—(AP) — "They were mean to me," Coroner H. C. McCarter said 17-year-old Paul Cook calmly said in explaining why he killed his parents and sister.

Forrest Cook, 45, his 42-year-old wife and their daughter Eleanor, 24, were slain while they slept yesterday.

"I heard the clock strike three", McCarter reported young Cook asserted. "I couldn't go back to sleep and lay there thinking about how my parents hadn't been treating me right.

"So I went downstairs and got the ax and the shotgun. I hit dad with the ax and he didn't move after that. Mother didn't wake up and I put the shotgun to her head and shot her. Then I went over to sis' bed and shot her, too. Then I hit them all a few times with the ax."

WOMAN DROWNED WHEN CAR PLUNGES INTO CANAL

Cascades, Que., May 25—(CP)— Mrs. Lionel Bissonnette, 36, of Cedars, Que., was drowned last night when the automobile in which she was a passenger got out of control after colliding with another car and toppled into the Soulanges Canal near here. Bissonnette managed to open the door and swim to the bank after a vain attempt to rescue his wife.

Tuesday.

Cooper, who has been driving for eight years and never had an accident before, was worried and anxious. He went around to a florist and bought a bunch of irises and narcissi and then phoned Marlborough House from a call box.

"How is Queen Mary?" he asked the secretary, who replied: "She's very comfortable, her condition is satisfactory."

"I'm very glad," Cooper said.

A statement today by the Queen's physicians said:

"Her Majesty Queen Mary has had a good night and is more comfortable and her Majesty's general condition continues to improve."

The Queen Mother, 72 years old tomorrow, apparently was not tired by watching a television broadcast of yesterday's Derby and listening last night to her son, the King, speak from Winnipeg.

Police Watching Railway Stations

Sudbury, Ont., May 25—(CP) — Police watched railway stations in this district today for a settler wanted for questioning in connection with the disappearance of two men, Gilbert Bennett, 69, a wealthy prospector, and Wilbur Sawyer, 53.

Settlers in the Wanapitae district, 30 miles northeast of here found Bennett's canoe seven miles from shore last Thursday and Inspector A. R. Knight of the Ontario Provincial Police said they might have met wit hfoul play.

Settlers continued a two-day search for the missing settler without results.

CARRIES WIFE OUT

Daughter - in - Law of Dead Woman Escapes after Saving Daughter

Hull, Que., May 26.—CP—Olivia Girard, 46, and a grandson, Maurice, five, were burned to death today in a fire which swept their home here.

Mrs. Lionel Girard daughter-in-law of Mrs Oliva Girard, saved her three-month-old daughter, Huguette by dropping her out of an upstairs window into the arms of neighbors.

Leo Girard, son of the dead woman, carried his wife to safety and made a futile effort to save his mother.

The boy woo was burned to death was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Girard. Oliva Girard, husband of the woman trapped in the fire, left the house before the blaze broke out and destroyed the two-storey frame building. It was caused by defective wiring.

Families Live Together

Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Girard and the families of their two sons, Leo and Lionel, lived together in the house.

Leo said he and his wife were sleeping in a rear bedroom when he heard somebody shout "fire."

"I saw the flames bursting from the walls and when I looked around, my wife was behind me. I tried to get to my mother, but the flames drove me back, so I turned around, picked up my wife and got her out of the window. I tried to get back to my mother, but the flames and smoke prevented me from reaching her. I jumped out of a window.

"Mrs. Lionel Girard and the children were in a front bedroom. Lionel had gone to his job at J. R. Booth.

Isolation! The amount of heat received from the sun in a given time per square foot at any place is its "insolation". It depends upon the distance of the sun, transparency of the atmosphere, amount of slant to the rays, and the output of the sun itself. At this time of the year and during the summer it is not the tropics that get the most insolation during a day but the North, because of more hours of sunshine. This is an advantage, as in the case of growing wheat in Canada, where the season is less than 100 days. Canadian wheat is better than Egyptian wheat. Similarly, Italian rice is better than Indian rice.

Sidelights on Royal Visit

Ottawa, May 26 (CP)—Believed by Juvenile Judge J. F. McKinley to be due to the visit of the King and Queen, no cases were listed for hearing when juvenile court opened yesterday.

He said he believed that "during the past ten days the hearts of our children have been so filled with love and affection for King George and Queen Elizabeth that they have had no time for wrong-doing."

Regina, May 26 (CP)—Mayor A. C. Ellison of Regina received a large photograph of the King and Queen from his Majesty yesterday—but he had to wait for it. As the King left the City Hall following the civic welcome he informed the mayor he had a picture for him but someone had misplaced it. When they reached the steps to the street a member of the entourage hurried from the Royal car and handed the King a rolled parcel. The missing picture was presented to Mr. Ellison.

Washington, May 26 (AP)—Sharp eyes of White House employees have noted that King George and Queen Elizabeth have been served strawberries several times in Canada. As a result, another dessert probably will be substituted for strawberry shortcake at a White House luncheon for their Majesties June 8.

MEIGHAN URGES UNIFICATION OF RAILWAY SYSTEMS

States in Senate Two Railways Should be United Under Private Management

REPUDIATES PARTY

Ottawa, May 26—(CP)—Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative Leader in the Senate, last night repudiated his party's declaration against unification of the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways. In the Senate he urged unification under private management.

"I have had enough of government operation," he said. "Don't tell me you can operate a railway when it is directed by ministers of the Crown from the platforms in a by-election campaign." He said ministers had promised in a Montreal by-election that the terminal there would be gone ahead if the Liberal candidate were elected.

Today Senator James Murdock (Lib. Ontario) will resume debate on a motion urging a form of unification of the two railways. The motion would amend the majority

BRITISH FORMULA FOR MUTUAL AID SENT TO RUSSIA

Sir William Seeds, Ambassador to Moscow, Will Deliver Plan to Kremlin

NO DETAILS GIVEN

Red Army Commander Will be Asked to View Army Manoeuvres in September

(By J. F. Sanderson)

London, May 26—(CP Cable) — Great Britain today took two steps to cement Anglo-Russian relations in the interests of European peace.

The British formula for a mutual defence pact linking Russia with the Anglo-French anti-aggression bloc was sent to Sir William Seeds, the Ambassador in Moscow, for transmission to the Kremlin while War Secretary Leslie Hore-Belisha invited Marshal Klementi Voroshiloff, Red Army commander, to attend British army manoeuvres expected to be held in September.

The War Office denied reports that Mr. Hore-Belisha might visit Russia when staff talks between the two nations begin, but it was practically certain he will go to Warsaw to confer with military leaders in Poland, already a party to the anti-aggression front.

Terms Not Specified

Official quarters declined to specify the terms of the British formula dispatched to Moscow, but they indicated, however, that it is extremely wide and elastic in an effort to halt any Fascist raids on small European powers.

In broad outlines the British formula would bring together Brit-

Stolen Dynamite Caps Discovered At Hamilton

Hamilton, Ont., May 26.—(CP)—Residents of the North End in the vicinity of Catharine Street where police have found numerous dynamite caps discarded by boys who took them last month from a Dundas quarry, have been warned by police officers to avoid the spot, it was learned today.

"We are satisfied there still are many of these caps lying among the rocks," said Police Inspector A. J. Chamberlain in discussing the discovery last night of several sticks of dynamite. "We have interviewed experts as to the best means of getting rid of the caps but they could not offer any suggestion. So we have notified all residents of the districts, showed them samples of the caps and advised them of the danger should they try to beach boats there."

Indian Ceremonial Dances Performed With Enthusiasm For Pleasure of King, Queen

By MURIEL ADAMS

Regina, May 26 (CP)—Beaded and be-feathered Indians chanted and danced to the weird beating of the tom-tom Thursday as they performed ceremonial dances with enthusiasm for their King and Queen.

Before a log replica of old Fort Saskatchewan, where Indian, fur trader and plainsman gathered a century ago, the red man staged his ancient rituals for King George and Queen Elizabeth on their visit to Regina.

The wildly whooping Indians swept through the manoeuvres of the grass dance when the Royal procession appeared at the exhibition grounds. Eagerness to view the native ceremonies was shown by the King and Queen. They also saw their first Red River cart, surrounded by costumed figures of early settlers who once moved across the expansive prairies in the lumbering vehicle drawn by oxen.

While the Royal car was driven before the 25,000 rural school children at the exhibition grounds, Indians from the Pipestone Reserve, about 35 miles from here, chanted and danced in a ceremonial which proclaimed the King a Pipe Chief.

National Pageant.

Costumed persons representing various nations and historical figures who were to take part in a national pageant following their Majesties' appearance, flanked the painted teepees at the sides of the grand stand.

Excitement reigned among the squaws as they held their papooses up to see the "beautiful white lady" drive by. The King and Queen never stopped smiling while they drove round the circular track and passed the grand stand twice.

Unsaddled Indian ponies, standing quietly in a corral at the entrance to the grounds, caught the King's eye and he turned his head to get a better view, then turned again quickly towards the Indians when they appeared.

Children, gathered from numerous points outside the city, filled the grandstands and cheered as the procession advanced.

In Ceremonial Regalia.

More than 100 Indians in ceremonial regalia from the Cree, Salteaux, Stoney, Sioux and Assiniboi tribes holding hatchets and pipes of peace, jumped up and down on the stage wriggling their bodies and tossing their feathered head dresses back and forth to the rhythm of the tom-toms and sound of war shrieks.

After their Majesties had passed the stage, many of the dancers dashed behind the scenery to get another view of the Royal couple, then returned to continue their war whoops when the King and Queen appeared again on their departure from the grounds.

Queen Mary is 72 Today

Dowager Queen, Mother of King George VI., is the best known grandmother in England. Her birthday anniversary today was very quiet owing to the accident three days ago in which she suffered an injury to her eye when her automobile was in collision with a truck at Putney. First of many gifts and messages to Queen Mary were those from Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose, her grandchildren.

Beloved Queen Mother Celebrates Birthday In Quiet of Her Home

By PAT USSHER

London, May 26 (CP) — Great Britain's best known grandmother—Queen Mary—became 72 today in a birthday anniversary of unusual quiet and unusual interest.

The beloved Queen Mother remained close to her flower-filled apartment in her Marlborough House residence, reminded by her doctors that time would be needed to heal an eye injury suffered when her automobile turned over in a collision last Tuesday.

Engagements she had undertaken were cancelled as a result of the accident, but the Queen was consoled by gifts, great banks of flowers and hundreds of messages of sympathy and birthday congratulations which poured in from all parts of the empire.

Among the first callers were the Queen's granddaughters, Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose who took a birthday card and present and a special gift of flowers. Princess Elizabeth already had written Queen Mary on behalf of little sister and herself expressing sympathy over Tuesday's accident.

Progress Satisfactory.

The doctors' bulletin this morning announced her Majesty had spent a quiet night and said that progress continues to be satisfactory. However, it asserted that "improvement of the eye must necessarily be slow."

During the day a constant stream of callers signed the visitors' book at Marlborough House and left messages. Many men on their way to Epsom Downs for the 169th running of the famous Oaks called at the residence.

The day was unexpectedly quiet for the Queen Mother who had

Regina, May 26 (CP)—The crowds were much the same in Regina as elsewhere, lining streets in large numbers, vociferously loyal but their Majesties won't forget the Saskatchewan capital for one reason. It was here that they just couldn't keep track of their entourage.

Not that the King and Queen seemed to mind the unwilling truancy. They were their gracious, smiling selves whether the retinue was along or not during the eight and a half hours visit here yesterday.

Probably the Royal couple didn't realize that half the procession was missing on most of the farewell run through the city just before the train was due to depart for Moose Jaw last night. But they must have wondered a bit when they found the errant group waiting at the station.

2 ATTEMPTS ON MUSSOLINI'S LIFE SAYS PARIS PAPER

Both Would-be Assassins Were Executed Report States

SACRIFICED LIFE

"Willing to Die to Rid Italy of the Man Who Oppresses us," is Story Told

Paris, May 26 (CP-Havas)— The newspaper Paris-Soir, in a dispatch from Nice, reported today that two attempts had been made within the past month to assassinate Premier Mussolini of Italy.

Both would-be assassins were executed, the dispatch said.

The dispatch said the first attempt was made on April 27 and the second early in May before Mussolini's departure on a tour of Piedmont.

The first man was executed on April 28 and the other on the night he commited the crime, the newspaper said.

The second would-be assassin was quoted as saying during his questioning: "I knew that I would die but I sacrificed my life to rid Italy of the man who oppresses us. A few hundred of us have taken the same oath and we hope we will soon realize it."

Despite pressure placed upon him by Italian police, Paris-Soir said he refused to divulge the names of his friends.

SIXTEEN FAMILIES LEFT HOMELESS

$200,000 Damage Sustained in Extensive Fire at Fredericton, N.B., at Early Hour This Morning

Fredericton, N.B., May 26 (CP)—Sixteen families were left homeless today by an early morning fire that destroyed the Gaiety Theatre and several residential structures, sheds and stables in the heart of New Brunswick's capital city. Damage was estimated at $200,000.

Persons whose homes were damaged included Mrs. Ua Atkinson, Mrs. Robert Hood and Neill Campbell in a double residence; Mr. and Mrs. Chipman Nason, Harry McLaughlin and Mrs. Thomas Morgan, in flats, and David E. Patterson, Herbert Rideout, Clifton M. Taply and Donald McMinniman in a four-family apartment house.

'WHITE SLAVE RING' CHARGED

Four Men and Two Women Arrested and Lodged in Jail

Buffalo, N.Y., May 26 (AP) — Federal marshals arrested four men and two women today in connection with what Assistant United States Attorney Norman Kirchgraber said was "an international white slave ring."

The arrests were made in Niagara Falls, Lockport and Tonawanda, N.Y. The six were charged with conspiracy to violate United States immigration laws and lodged in jail pending a hearing later.

Kirchgraber said twelve persons had been indicted in connection with the ring's operations, which he said included transporting girls between Niagara Falls, N.Y., and Niagara Falls, Ont., and Sudbury.

King and Queen to Enjoy Rest In Rocky Mountain Resort

Banff, Alta., May 25—CP—Nestling among towering peaks, this Rocky Mountain resort will offer King George and Queen Elizabeth the first actual solitude they will have known since coming to Canada nine days ago.

Through the winding mountain passes, the royal train will carry their Majesties here tonight when they will move into Banff Springs Hotel—leaving their home on wheels for the first night since leaving Ottawa last Sunday.

For two nights and a day the Royal couple will wander through the scenic beauties of the peaks and valleys, almost a mile above sea level. Plans call for a six-mile ride over mountain roads in an old-fashioned western buggy and probably their Majesties will be taken to Lake Louise, more than a mile above sea level.

Essentially a rest period, the visit is not expected to attract many outside visitors. Only brief welcoming ceremonies have been prepared and all other details have been arranged so that their Majesties will be left mostly in the privacy of their own party.

Royal Train Nearing Banff Where King George and Queen Elizabeth Will Stay Until Sunday Morning

Medicine Hat, Alta., May 26. — (CP)—The Royal train carrying King George and Queen Elizabeth into the Rocky Mountains, stopped here today for 15 minutes. The royal couple received a great welcome from ranchers and farmers who had come for miles around.

The train came here from Moose Jaw, Sask., after spending part of the night on a secret siding so Their Majesties might have quiet sleep before carrying out another series of receptions and motor tour in Calgary.

The royal pilot train carrying newspapermen and officials had come and gone before Their Majesties arrived in this foothill city where, because of the abundance of natural gas, the street lights are never extinguished.

First view of the rolling green foothills was obtained by the King and Queen as they stepped on to the station platform to be greeted by Mayor Hector Lang and Mrs. Lang who presented a group of officials and their wives during the brief stop.

At the fourth annual gathering of poets of Canada and the United States held at Abbey Dawn, near Kingston, bird and animal sanctuary of Wallace Havelock Robb, former resident of Belleville, seventy-five visitors were entertained by the host yesterday.

The ceremony of the day began with the ringing of the poet's bell, brought from England two years ago and hung in the special tower. Brief addresses followed by prominent visitors, and during the day the presentation of a white bird bath was made Mr. and Mrs. Robb by Mrs. T. Bidell of Bloomfield, on behalf of the assembled poets.

OWNERS REQUESTED TO OBTAIN TAGS

Thomas Thorne, city dog catcher, revealed today that numerous dog owners in Belleville as yet had not obtained their 1939 city dog tag, as provided under the city ordinance and bylaws. The names of these delinquents in this matter were today given to Chief Kidd with instructions to prefer police court charges. "Unless dog owners, who have neglected to purchase their 1939 city dog tags, obtain the same from our department within 24 hours, those still in default will be summoned into court next week" Chief Kidd stated in warning today.

New Westminster, B.C., May 26 (CP)—Two 40-pound trout, chilled strawberries, green peas from cold storage and corn-on-the-cob from a New Westminster cannery were sent by Mayor Fred Hume last night as a gift to news writers aboard the pilot train which is preceding the Royal train on the tour of Canada.

Property Committee Recommends Eviction of Tenants From City-Owned Houses for Non-Payment of Rent

At the regular committee meeting of city council last evening, the following recommendation from the Special Property Committee of council was passed:

"That after a careful inspection of all city-owned houses we recommend that the tenants of the following list of houses be evicted at once:

153 Station Street; 20 Water Street; 11 Emily Street; 14 St. Paul Street; 79 Pinnacle Street; Room in Scale House; 91 Cannifton Road; 36 St. Paul Street; 215 Station Street; 77 1-2 Church Street.

"And that the following houses within the city of Belleville to demolished starting July 1st, 1939:

76 George Street; 59 St. Paul Street; 61 St. Paul Street; 51 St. Paul Street; 51 1-2 St. Paul Street; 135 Catherine Street and 14 Franklin Street after June 15th, and that notice be given accordingly."

Mayor's Statement

"Now it is up to the government", explained Mayor Bone in reference to the above recommendations, which will be subject to ratification by city council at its regular session on Monday evening.

"The reason these tenants are being evicted is because they are from $50 to $100 to $300 behind in their rents, money which the city will never get back, and for which provision should have been made by the Government.

"The government is supposed to pay all rents of reliefees, but we have been unable to find out when they will pay. Now the city—which means the ordinary taxpayer—is unable to stand the expense any longer. These tenants are being put out; they are being served with four days' notice by the bailiff, and then if they will not get out themselves, they will be evicted, put right out on the street. What else can the city do but bring this thing to a head and make a showdown?" asked the Mayor.

A clause in the above recommendations submitted by the Property Committee would ask that no tenant be given possession of a city-owned house until they are checked thoroughly by the relief department and treasurer's office, and that no remission of rent for repairing of houses be made for such.

Chairman of Property Committee Gives Reason for Eviction Recommendation

Alderman Jack Marshall, chairman of the Special Property Committee of city council today explained why a recommendation was passed at last evening's committee meeting of council, introduced by the committee of which he is chairman, regarding evictions and the demolition of older houses as named in the list.

"It is not on account of the fact that all these people who are being evicted are on relief and unable to pay; I believe that only four families of the complete list have been on relief.

Alderman Marshall said that in the case of the first list of houses, the city had decided on evictions so that there dwellings might be fixed up and other tenants put in.

He said—"The committee investigated all this very thoroughly. We spent days making personal inspection. We have prospective tenants who are willing to pay and cannot find homes. We are putting these places back in shape for them."

"In regard to the houses which are to be demolished, we believe that when the city comes out and sponsors a clean-up campaign, it should clean up its own backyards first." That is the reason the chairman gave for the decision to demolish these.

Consider This When You Buy An Automobile

A good used car gives you value that someone else has paid for. The average first owner of a new autmobile uses only a fraction of its mileage and the remaining mileage can be bought for half, or less than half, of the car's original price. There is more than just your money's worth in a good used car.

'38 PLYMOUTH SEDAN:
Finished in beautiful ivory with red wheels. Broadcloth upholstery, heater, defroster, radio, fog light, non-glare light, grill guards, much more equipment. This car has been very carefully driven and can be bought at a great saving.

'36 OLDSMOBILE SEDAN:
Special equipment includes electric clock, twin horns, 2 windshield wipers and sun visor, arm rests, special whipcord upholstery hardly soiled, paint like new, large trunk and new tires all around. You cant appreciate the value in this car until you see and drive it.

'34 CHRYSLER SPECIAL SEDAN:
In wonderful mechanical condition. Tires almost new, twin horns, twin wipers and sun visor and heater. Paint and nickel shows extra good care. "THE BEST BUY IN TOWN."

'32 PLYMOUTH:
A full sized sedan four. Tires almost new, hydraulic brakes, floating power, motor just been overhauled; paint good, new slip covers. A most economical car in every way. A genuine bargain.

'30 CHEVROLET SEDAN:
Carefully driven, dark blue finish, in A1 mechanical condition, tires, paint—everything in good condition. Miles and miles of good service. The price is right.

ALSO
A Durant at $85, a Chevrolet at $30, a Buick at $50, a Ford at $25, and several other low priced cars in good running condition.

When you buy a new STUDEBAKER or a used car here you drive out of our show rooms—into a new experience. Perhaps you do not expect much in the way of service on a used car. But you have a surprise in store. We sell new STUDEBAKER and other fine used cars with a determination to make enduring friendships. We give you a detailed history of the car, as far as we honestly know—who owned it, how far it has been driven, and under what conditions—and tell you frankly just what you have a right to expect. And it is an important part of our job to see that the car lives up to expectations.

We will accept your car as part payment and give easy terms on the balance.

Flowering Shrubs and Trees in Bloom Add Sweet Scent to the City's Air

With city gardens, lawns and flower beds rapidly approaching the appearance of a floral fairyland, tardiness of Spring weather has seemed to have had but little effect on the new blooms that at this time of the year transform the city's drab early Spring appearance into a thing of fresh summery beauty.

Tulips are blooming in nearly every part of the city, in a riot of color and bloom. Other flowering plants are breaking into a profusion of beauty, enhanced by the full rich greens of fresh grass.

Today the delicate mauves and pinkish shades of the first lilacs were noticed bursting into bloom on lawns of several city homes, their delicate fragrance attracting the attention of many passers-by.

Trees are now in full leaf, or at least nearly so, while early fruit trees are carrying loads of delicate fragrant blossoms, scented forerunners of the harvest to come.

Meanwhile bee-keepers are sitting back and taking a well-earned rest from their labors of feeding their busy charges. The buzzing little honeymakers are now reaping a harvest from other sources than the dandelion, and are converging in large numbers on flower beds and fruit trees.

Spring is really here at last.

Committee Passes Recommendation on Commissioners' Salaries

A recommendation that an "enabling by-law" be passed by city council giving authority to members of the Belleville Public Utilities Commission to grant themselves a yearly salary of $400 to the chairman of the Commission and $300 to the remaining two Commissioners was passed at last evening's committee meeting of council.

Other recommendations passed in committee were:

"That special signs be placed at the entrance of each parking area (on the east bank of the Moira River at the rear of downtown stores) as provided in the report of the city engineer, at a cost not to exceed $7.50 each.

"That the city engineer be instructed to co-operate with the chairman of the Board of Parks Commission in the building of a new wall on the south east side of Victoria Park.

"That the Mayor, chairman of Finance, city engineer and city solicitor be authorized to attend the hearing of the Ontario Municipal Board in Toronto, May 31st regarding the sinking fund levies.

That the city clerk be instructed to write Mr. Reg. Moncrieff expressing council's appreciation of his efforts and that of his committees in the transportation of the Belleville school children to Kingston on the occasion of the Royal visit there, and that a similar letter be sent Mr. Fred Jobson and members of the Belleville Municipal Band thanking them for their services in playing during the Royal stop here.

That the Belleville Police Commission be requested to have the police car inscribed with the lettering "Belleville Police Department" on both sides of the car.

"That a sign be placed at the southeast corner of Bridge and Pinnacle streets to direct heavy traffic, reading: "No Through Truck Traffic Night or Day."

Tag-Day Will End Building Fund Campaign of S. A.

Final arrangements have been completed for the Tag Day, last phase of the drive for funds for the erection of a new citadel, being held tomorrow by the local corps of the Salvation Army, Major Benjamin Bourne stated today.

Sellers will be out bright and early in the morning and the general public is respectfully asked to be as generous in this appeal to reach the fund objective, as it has in the past.

THEFT CHARGES BRING 2 MONTHS

Harvey Luff and Wm. Rodgers Will Serve Sentence in County Jail

Harvey Luff and William Rodgers, Hastings County residents, were each sentenced to serve two months in the common jail, after being convicted on a charge of theft when arraigned before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd at Tweed, yesterday.

Rodgers and Luff were apprehended by Chief Hayes of Tweed, on Highway No. 7 early this week proceeding in an automobile. Subsequent investigations proved to the court the men had a quantity of scrap iron, namely parts of a boiler which they had stolen from a nearby abandoned mine, Chief Hayes told the court yesterday. Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K. C. moved for a severe penalty. "Such property cannot be guarded night and day and I suggest an example be made of these men to warn others of the folly of stealing," urged Mr. Donnan.

Charges of perjury, laid against Ronald Fluke and Niles Fluke were dismissed by His Worship. The charges arose out of a court trial on May 4 when Ronald Fluke was found guilty of cruelty to animals. It was charged the men testified falsely when they stated a horse with a large open wound on its shoulder had not been worked for nearly three months, other than for breaking a path through the snow. Magistrate Lloyd dismissed the case on the grounds that the two men had not actually worked the horse.

Inspectors to Keep Close Check on Asparagus Sales

Following charges laid by District Senior Fruit and Vegetables Inspector C. T. Stevenson of the local office, a Peterborough storekeeper yesterday was charged in police court in that city with selling bunches of asparagus under the weight prescribed by the Marketing and Grading Act, and was fined $10 and costs following his plea of guilty. A close inspection of sales of this vegetable has been started by Mr. Stevenson and his inspectors.

Would Like Wild Fowl Sanctuary in Vicinity of Cedar Island

Possibility of the setting up of a game preserve or sanctuary for the waterfowl and other wild life of the Bay of Quinte in the vicinity of Cedar Island has been suggested by H. E. Hatch, owner of the island who for some time past has been propagating pheasants there. This spring a consignment of wild Mallard ducks received from the Ontario Department of Game and Fisheries were liberated there, but though the majority of the birds have disappeared, the owner remains undaunted. "It is only natural that they would find their own nesting sites, and this is just the first step toward setting up a sanctuary," Mr. Hatch reports. "If they find they are being protected there, they'll stay all right."

For some years past the flock of pheasants originally introduced there has been added to and the birds have become exceedingly tame. Winter feeding was undertaken this year and the pheasants reportedly came through in good shape, except for a few losses from owls, minks and other predators. This season the colony has been increased by hatchings of the parent birds which are under the protection of the permanent caretaker.

Working since early spring, employees of Mr. Hatch have carried out important additions to the island, among which is the construction of a new two hundred foot cement dock running into the cove at the rear. This will replace the wooden dock which has been installed for some time past.

The island with its natural coves at the rear offers an ideal site for the setting up of a sanctuary, and campers of the district have hailed the suggestion by the well known industrialist with approval.

Electrician's Mate on Sub Tells How He Saved Lives of Five Men Before He Closed Watertight Door

Portsmouth, N. H., May 26—(AP)—Electrician's mate Lloyd B. Maness of Greensboro N.C., whose "superhuman" effort in closing a watertight compartment door saved the lives of 33 men aboard the stricken United States submarine Squalus, told yesterday how he held the door open long enough to save five men in the next compartment.

"I was detailed in charge of the bulkhead door between the control room and the after battery," Maness said. "At the instant that the Squalus settled to the bottom, we were at a sharp up angle and down aft.

"The water was rising rapidly in the after compartment and I realized that the time was short if I was to close the bulkhead door. Due to the angle of the ship and the fact that the door opened from a down angle, I had to exert all my strength to swing it into place.

"I had partially closed the door when several men shouted to me from the rapidly filling after battery.

"They yelled: 'keep it open. Keep it open.' Whereupon I let the door slip back on its hinges to allow O'Hara, Blanchard, Isaacs, Boulton and Washburn to pass through. Immediately I swung the door shut, and turned down the water tight screw and walked forward to join the rest of the crew.

"I realize of course that there must have been men trapped in the after compartments, but in an emergency of this kind every bulkhead door in all sections of the ship must be fastened as a measure of safety. Even those doors forward in the dry section had been closed.

"I know of only one man that was shut in the water-filled control room, John J. Batick. I had talked with him just a moment before the accident.

"At such times as this, there is no time for sentiment. We are trained rigidly to act, so I gave no consideration of the fate of my shipmates anymore than I would have expected similar consideration had I been in their place.

"It was not until the first impulsive action was over that I began to feel the awfulness of the men's situation in the after section. Particularly I thought of Sherman Shirley, my chum, whose best man I was to be next Sunday."

"Character building must be made to fit the day of the great corporation and gigantic organization."—Alfred M. Landon.

3 DEFENDANTS PLEAD GUILTY

Ten Arraigned on Charges of Murder and Manslaughter in Deaths of Five

Philadelphia, May 25—(AP)—Three defendants in the wholesale insurance murder cases pleaded guilty today and seven others pleaded not guilty when arraigned together on charges of murder and manslaughter in the deaths of five men.

Morris Bolber, who detectives charge was an "executive" of the syndicate, pleaded "guilty generally" to the murder of Roman Mandiuk, a baker. Mandiuk's exhumed body showed traces of poison.

David Brandt, typewriter salesman, indicted also in Mandiuk's death, shouted "not guilty."

Mandiuk's widow, Agnes, also denied she had a part in her husband's death.

Mrs. Christina Cerrone was accused in the drowning of Rafaele Caruso, a boarder in her home. She pleaded not guilty.

The next plea of guilty came from Samuel Sortino. He also spoke Italian as he acknowledged charges that he participated in Caruso's drowning.

Lasting Peace Might Emerge Says Daniel Roper

Ottawa, May 25 (CP)—A way to lasting peace might emerge from the visits of the King and Queen to Canada and the United States, Daniel C. Roper, United States minister to Canada, told a Canadian Club luncheon here today. "Already their visit is acquiring a symbolic aspect in our minds," he said.

Their Majesties will not find any fortifications when they crossed into United States territory, "nor any fortifications in American hearts against Great Britain and her rulers," he said.

Speaking generally on assets and liabilities in international relations he said: "Never in human history have two adjoining countries had greater cause for thankfulness than the peoples of our two countries.

"We should be thankful to be living where commonsense and friendship prevail in our international dealings, where the extraordinary phenomenon of the spirit of the good neighbor is illustrated for the entire world."

Fear of war and uncertainty of the future were liabilities which were obvious and "we are kept ever conscious of these liabilities by the press, the radio/and in personal conversations."

But episodes are not always trends, Mr. Roper said, "and I venture to assert that many of our present day discouragements and misgivings are due to over-emphasis of passing liabilities in the international outlook."

A great asset not to be overlooked was to be found in the fact that the majority of people in all countries possess "a passionate desire for peace." Removal of doubt and mistrust as among nations could be brought about as it had been between Canada and the United States.

Persons Must Pay Who Hinder Progress of Spawning Fish

Ottawa, May 25 (CP)—The House of Commons today gave third reading to a bill to require persons interfering with the progress of fish to spawning area to pay such money as might be required to construct and operate a hatchery establishment.

It applies to cases where slides, dams or other obstructions are built in the path of the fish and an efficient fish ladder or canal cannot be installed around the obstruction exists he may assess such payments on the owner of the dam, slide or obstruction as will meet the cost of hatching sufficient to meet requirements for the annual return of migratory fish.

Russian Tanks Reported in Clashes

Tokyo, May 25 (AP)—The Tokyo newspaper Asahi today published dispatches from Manchoukuo belatedly reporting that Russian tanks took part in clashes last Friday and Saturday on the Eastern Manchoukuo-Siberia border.

The dispatches said 700 Soviet troops supported by tanks attacked Manchoukuo border guards in the region near Mishan and Lake Hsingkai, some 350 miles north of Vladivostok. The Asahi did not report the outcome. Japanese regular troops usually are stationed in the Mishan area.

HOUSE APPROVES BILL

Ottawa, May 25.— (CP)— The House of Commons today placed its approval on the Salt Fish Board Bill, a measure sponsored by Fisheries Minister Michaud with a view to reviving Canada's once prosperous export trade in dry salt fish. The Bill received second reading without a dissenting vote although it met criticism from Robert Finn (Lib. Halifax).

Mr. Finn thought the Bill was poorly drafted and suggested it might be of more benefit to the exporters than the individual fishermen.

Madoc Public School Marks Empire Day With Music Festival

Madoc—On Tuesday, May 23rd, the pupils of Madoc Public School put on a musical programme under the able direction of their music teacher, Mrs. B. V. Alexander, assisted by the P. S. Staff, who planned and made the costumes and decorations. The Masonic Hall was suitably trimmed with flags, bunting and shields. A good number attended and enjoyed the following programme:

Have You Swallowed A WILDCAT?

Sometimes it seems like that, when stomach pains attack you after eating. They are a warning of worse trouble to come if you neglect them. Many who have failed to find relief in any other way have benefitted from Maclean Brand Stomach Powder. It contains in balanced proportion four powerful alkalies which are effective in neutralizing the excess acid from which most of such pain and distress arises. These alkalies sweeten the stomach, stop pain, aid elimination of the fermenting waste, and protect the delicate stomach lining. Be sure to ask for Maclean Brand Stomach Powder, which is only genuine if the signature "Alex. C. Maclean" appears on bottle and carton. Not sold loose, but only in bottles in cartons, of powder or tablets—at druggists—75c; family size, $1.75. 138

CROSSING BOUNDARIES

Border crossing has been so general during the past week. At present the crossing is first from the United States to Canada, and then from Canada to the U.S. and these crossings take place all along the border between Canada and the United States, because of the great appeal of the British Sovereigns to the people of Canada and the United States.

When the British Rulers are visiting Washington and the World's Fair at New York, there will be a mighty exodus of Canadians into American territory, to see the King and the Queen as the guests of the great Republic.

Borders of democracies are crossings, not barriers. They are not buttressed and defended by forts. The borders are the signs of peace and amity.

Within these two countries the same fact is apparent. Of course there are no boundaries between provinces and states for people to cross. Canadians have shifted from one section to another to see the royal visitors again and again. The same will be true in the United States, when every state in the Union and every province in the Dominion will be represented in the throngs acclaiming Their Britannic Majesties.

SUBMARINE TRAGEDY

The people of Canada sympathize with the people of the United States in the submarine tragedy which has claimed many lives of members of the crew of the Squalus, 15 miles off Portsmouth, N.H. Fortunately many of the crew were rescued through the modern invention of the diving bell and deep diving apparatus.

A tragedy of this kind shocks everyone, because of the helplessness of the victims, trapped so far beneath the surface of the water, as well as because of the unusual nature of the accident and by the fact that so many have lost their lives.

Those who have died in this ship have truly given their lives in the defence of their country as if they had died in war. They were part of the defensive force, yet needed in the world to protect justice, liberty and human rights.

Science which produced the submarine has also provided devices for rescue work. Tragedies of this kind draw attention to the need of inventions to rescue men from just such plights.

The fact that so many were saved and that there is assurance that science will find a way further to protect those who go down into the sea in submarines, is encouraging.

Meanwhile the United States mourns with the relatives of those who have died in this disaster.

FEET OF CLAY

German military men have something to think about. German troops have been forced to leave some sectors of the Siegfried line. The Rhine is seven feet above normal because of rains and melting snows.

That is not all. It is said that so great was the haste last year in building the Siegfried line of forts that some of the cement work is not satisfactory as casemates have begun to crumble through faultiness of mixture. It is said that the majority of these bomb-proof gun emplacements would be unable to hold out against gunfire.

Last September Chancellor Hitler did speak of the vast network of fortifications he had had undertaken to make Germany impregnable on the west front.

But German fortifications are subject to the same laws of physical science and nature as others. If they are on low ground near river levels they will be flooded if the river rises and floods. If the mixtures are not properly made, defences will not stand up.

Chancellor Hitler was in a great hurry last year and then he was in a hurry last September to tell Europe all he had done on the western front. Now he has found, if these accounts prove correct, that it does not pay to make haste so rapidly. He has probably discovered that his shortcut to imperialism, to expansion of territory and to such acts as the subjection of Czecho-Slovakia will produce just such limping defences as are reported on the west front. He will find that dictators too have such poor mixtures in their make-up that their feet are of clay like poor mixtures of materials.

This is not the first time that Germany is said to have found something wrong with her products. At the time of the "invasion" of Austria, her motorized equipment broke down ,according to re- orts, the fact proving very disconcerting he time.

man speed had meant incorporation into her war engines. These did not make for permanency and efficiency. It was also stated not long ago that German planes had not nearly the endurance of British planes.

CHIEF SIGNAL OFFICER WITH FULL RANK OF COLONEL IN EGYPT, Col. Miles Miller, who was born in Napanee, continues to climb in his Imperial military career. He is the eldest son of Mrs. F. F. Miller and the late F.F. Miller. His mother now resides at Oakville. Col. Miller's youth was spent in Napanee, graduating from the High School there he enrolled at Royal Military College. Soon after the Great War broke out he went overseas. Since that time he has been on duty in India attached to the military station at Delhi. Then came an appointment to the Royal Corps of Signals at Jubbulpore, Central Province, with the rank of Major. Next he was stationed at Secunderabad in Hyderabad. Then the Burmese rebellion broke out and Major Miller was sent to Rangoon. When the rebellion was settled he was transferred to Peshawar, an outpost in the Khyber Pass region, and a very dangerous one where brass buttons are favorite marks for the fierce fanatical hillmen who shoot to kill and shoot straight, but are seldom visible, so stealthy are they. On leave last year Col. Miller visited Napanee and also reviewed the gentlemen cadets at the Royal Military College. Before taking over his new Egyptian appointment he is spending a leave in England with his wife and two children, Nancy 12, and David 7.

"TWEED VILLAGE COUNCIL HAS QUIETLY LIFTED THE COMMUNITY OFF THE PEDESTAL ON WHICH it was placed by the Globe and Mail and a large section of the press which loves to be fooled, and even more to fool the public, when Tweed was exalted as an example of pure and unadulterated patriotism," remarks the Marmora Herald. Them's harsh words brother, and we doubt very much if the press was fooled at any time by a village quarrel which even tried to cloak itself in patriotism. Who was it said that patriotism was the last refuge of something or other-not a gentleman? In any event the Tweed kettle has ceasd to boil and now simmers peacefully, and the new post office is placed where it will suit everybody—almost. It will suit the Village Council, of course, and that should suffice. Everything is lovely now and both sides and the middle of the Great Tweed Post Office War are falling upon each other's necks, swearing eternal friendship, and all that until the next time. Resolutions have been passed by the Village Council congratulating and approving the actions of the Government and the representative of the constituency in the House of Commons, Mr. Chas. Cameron, so the political skies are serene again, for the time. It is fitting that the village editor be congratulated, the one man who stood undaunted through the storm, neutral and unafraid, while the war raged furiously all around him as an apostle of the Great Silence and demonstrator of how to emulate Shadrock, Meshach and Abednego and pass through the flames of the fiery furnace unscathed the editor proved his versatility amidst countless dangers and alarums and emerges without a scar. Seriously the Village Council stuck to their guns and ultimately triumphed over all obstacles and secured a site to their liking. At least that is the way it looks to the outsider looking in.

A parking bylaw was passed at the last meeting of the City Council which prohibits automobiles being left at the curb on Front Street and parts of Campbell Streets and Victoria Avenue for a longer time than thirty minutes. The merchants who do a large volume of business with out-of-town customers, who come to the city in automobiles, are of the opinion that some provision should be made for the parking of cars belonging to persons from out of town. The most convenient place for parking would be the market square and the civic authorities could arrange to have this place set aside for the purpose with a caretaker in charge. Saturday evening is the only time when the congestion of automobiles becomes a serious problem and arrangements could easily be made to use the market square for that evening for parking purposes. All the trade which can be possibly attracted to Belleville will result in the general good and out-of-town buyers, who come here in their cars, should be encouraged.

Lieut. Reginald Elliott will leave shortly for England where he will reside.

Bridge Street Methodist Church had a narrow escape from destruction this afternoon. Shortly before three o'clock lightning struck the north west corner of the tower and followed a course to the south wall. At the eastern entrance to the gallery on the south side was situated the reastat used in turning on and off the lighting apparatus. This machine was smashed to fragments, many of the pieces being thrown across to the north gallery. Here all trace of the electric fluid is lost. The plaster was torn off for a considerable space, some large stones dislodged from the tower and boards splintered. The interior of the building was filled with a blinding light and the smoke was dense, although there was no sign of fire. The damage is considerable. Mr. Hunt, the organist, was instructing a pupil at the organ when the flash came. The pupil was stunned but soon recovered.

Local Pressure Needed To Keep Tax Rate Down

Pressure on local government by hard-pressed property owners has brought results. Civic taxes generally have passed their peak and will, if the taxpayers continue to exert pressure, be measurably reduced in the next few years.

In the past taxpayers have not however, continued to exert pressure. They have let up after every wave of economy brought some results. As soon as debt was being nicely reduced demand for some new undertaking has swept debt higher again.

Hence, not a single city or town in Ontario is debt free — not even towns which have not expanded in the last fifty years.

At the moment taxpayers are, or could be, in control of the situation, states the Globe and Mail. It will be their own fault if they let municialities get off on another spending splurge as soon as credit ratings improve and it is easy to borrow money again.

Local taxpayer groups have an opportunity now to build up a public opinion which will keep civic expenditures from going off on future wild rides. When the old debt is cleared away will be time enough to consider the type of civic luxuries which every town likes to have but which plays havoc with the tax rate.

The great advantage of civic government is that it is close to the people and responds more quickly than Provincial and Federal Governments to the pressure of taxpaying opinion. Furthermore, the taxes are direct. Every ratepayer knows how much the civic administration is taking out of his pocket and he can act accordingly

Good Times Costly

The sad story about civic finance is that hard times are the only saving grace to the taxpayer. It is only in hard times that pressure against expenditure has grown to effective proportions. It is the booms that have bankrupted Canadian towns and cities.

It is almost impossible to reduce civic expenditures effectively in any one year. The pressure has to be continuous over a period of years and once that pressure slips there are always interested minority groups eager for something which will shove up the tax rate.

Standard municipal statistics for the whole of Canada are badly needed as part of the drive to keep an informed public opinion on the watch against needless expenditure. Canada is one of the few countries where no real basis of comparison exists because there is no common basis for keeping civic accounts.

Each Province has its own system, and until recently nearly every community in each Province kept its books in its own way. In the last few years Ontario has done a lot to improve municipal bookkeeping.

Comparison Needed

The only way taxpaying opinion in any community can know if it is getting the best possible service for the money raised is by comparison with other communities, and this is only possible where books are kept in exactly the same way. In the past some Ontario civic officials have not had the bookkeeping training to keep intelligent accounts. Step by step the Government is doing its best to correct this situation.

Local conditions naturally vary but residents in an Ontario village where it costs $1.45 to produce 1,000 gallons of water in the local waterworks system have a right to know why a village of the same size less than fifty miles away gets the same service for 9.1 cents and operates its waterworks at a surplus.

Another small community spends 91.6 cents per 1.000 gallons and has maintenance and operation charges more than three times the size of the total cost of a neighboring community in running its waterworks.

The engineering picture may be entirely different, but ratepayers have a right to know why.

When taxpayers learn to ask questions and keep on asking questions they may find that there are a lot of ways to bring down their local costs.

When taxpayers lost interest ,experience has shown that tax rates climb.

A Committee of High Standing Now Trying to Help the Hard of Hearing

When we think of the "horn" that deaf or hard of hearing individuals put to their ears in years gone by in order to hear the voice of the one who spoke into it, and see the efficient and almost invisible hearing aids now available, we must acknowledge that hearing specialists, inventors, and manufacturers have done much for the comfort and happiness of those who are hard of hearing.

That the medical profession as a whole is interested in making progress toward better hearing aids is shown by the report in Laryngoscope of the American Otological Society Representatives of the Committee of Hearing Aids and Audiometers (machines for measuring the amount of hearing present) of the Council on Physical Therapy of the American Medical Association. This is a long name for a society but it shows the high authorities behind the enterprise.

This society gives the minimum or lowest requirements they will recognize in audiometers or hearing testers—the vibrations, the hearing measurer, the intensity range, power supply, ruggedness of construction, the ability to replace used or damaged parts. Another point under discussion was whether or not it was advisable to select a central, disinterested agency for reporting on physical characteristics of various audiometers.

The question naturally arises as to why this committee, after all its investigations, does not recommend one or more of the excellent auditometers now available, as being the best.

Dr. Horace Newhart, Minneapolis answers this question as follows:

"Several instruments are available, each of which has different features of real merit and is equipped with various accessories or helps, some of which are necessary to tell the type of hard of hearing of the patient so that the physician will be able to prescribe the type of hearing aid that will best suit the patient's type of loss of hearing.

An audiometer must be able to measure the loss of hearing of high tones and of low tones and variations in tones aside from their highness or lowness. It is only by learning the amount and kind of hearing present that proper hearing aids can be prescribed".

In the meantime, the American Society for the Hard of Hearing with headquarters at 1528 Northwest 35th St., Washington, and branches in most large cities, is doing its part in advising the hard of hearing how to prevent further loss of, or to regain, their hearing.

Operate Accord Under League Britain's Plan

Geneva, May 26 (AP) — Great Britain was reported today to have suggested to Soviet Russia that the impending Anglo-Russian-French mutual aid accord operate under the League of Nations covenant.

This would be the second step in the so-called "rejuvenation" of the League. The first "rejuvenation" step was taken Tuesday at Geneva by Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet of France when they said their agreement, once completed, would be communicated to the League.

Ivan Maisky, Russian Ambassador to Great Britain, who is presiding at the current session of the League Council, was informed yesterday of Britain's readiness to speed negotiations to bring Russia into the Anglo-French front. Russians said Britain's terms, as communicated to Moscow, were general enough to permit a wide range of negotiations and clearly indicated Britain was ready to hasten the talks.

Romantic Figure Of Nickel Mining Buried in Illinois

Sudbury, Ont., May 26 (CP) — Body of W. E. (Bill) Smith, who made a fortune from one of Thomas A. Edison's few mistakes, was taken today to Woodstock, Ill., for burial.

Smith, a romantic figure in the development of nickel mining near Falconbridge, gold mining near Sudbury and iron mining near Duluth, Minn., died in hospital here last night at the age of 57. He was flown here only five days ago, suffering from an internal ailment incured on his latest prospecting enterprise.

It was Smith who, in 1916, drove claim stakes into the Falconbridge Township property given up by Edison as valueless.

Edison, the inventive genius who made a success of almost every daring venture he turned to, had long since relinquished hope that nickel mining there would be profitable.

Just twelve years later Smith and his associates sold the property for $2,500,000 in one of the biggest cash deals in Canadian mining history. That was only one, though the most outstanding, example of Smith's success in turning rejected claims into profit-making mines.

A native of the Illinois town where he will be buried, Smith's first love was Northern Ontario and in spite of financial success he never lost the zest for discovery. When taken ill a week ago, he was working on claims in the desolate lake area of Opeepeesway, 100 miles northwest of here.

Mr. and Mrs. James Montgomery Mark 50th Wedding Anniversary

Stirling—On Monday, May 22nd., Mr. and Mrs. James Montgomery of Stirling marked their fiftieth wedding anniversary surrounded by the members of their family and friends. An interesting feature of the happy event was the presence of Mrs. W. Hodgin who fifty years ago acted as bridesmaid and Mr. Thos. Montgomery who was the groomsman.

On a bright sunshiny day fifty years ago they went with horse and buggy to the home of Rev. Mr. Gray, who performed the ceremony which united the happy couple who have enjoyed the happy fellowship of each other for half a century. Mrs. Montgomery before her marriage was Miss Charlotte Duncan. After the ceremony which took place at Roslin the happy couple returned to Stirling where for several years they followed agriculture as their means of livelihood. Both possess the priceless heritage of pioneer parentage and the ruggedness of good health radiates from the faces of these two.

Mr. Montgomery having spent his entire life in the district has watched the progress of the village in its growth and possessing a keen memory is able to recall many changes during his life. Before the advent of the motor car, Stirling had many businesses that required the help of several men such as wagon shops, harness makers. Then, too, clothing and many other necessities were made locally. Handmade shoes were in great demand. Nearly every resident of the village possessed a horse and a cow. Farmers could sell grain and hay in the village at almost any time of the year, he declared.

Mr. Montgomery recalled vividly the sub-division of a large farm into municipal building lots which later became the east end of the village after being sold by auction to the highest bidder.

Chatting about the early days with Mr. Montgomery was both interesting and helpful. Mr. Montgomery's father came to Hastings County from the Old Land on a slow travelling sailing vessel arriving here at the age of sixteen.

Throughout the day and evening friends called to convey their good wishes and congratulation and messages and gifts were received from distant friends and relatives. Mrs. Montgomery displayed with pride two large bouquets of flowers, one from the ladies of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church where she is looked upon as one of the most active workers. Among her most prized possessions is a large hand-worked tapestry which hangs behind glass in her living room. This excellent piece of ancient handicraft of intricate design was the creation of her grandmother in the year 1809 what at that time was only twelve years of age.

Some forty guests were present for the supper party in the home including their two sons, Duncan and Raymond, and their families; their daughter and her family, Mr. and Mrs. T. Montgomery, Mrs. C. M. Vermilyea, sister of the bride, Mrs. Robt. Duncan, Mrs. W. Hodgins, Rev. W. H. Walker and Mrs. Walker. Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery were at home to many friends who called later in the evening with expressions of good wishes.

Bridal Couple Honoured by Friends

About seventy-five friends and neighbours gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Eggleton (nee Carrie Gay) on Tuesday evening, May 23rd for a surprise party and shower given in their honour. The early part of the evening was spent in friendly visiting. Later in the evening, Arthur Duncan, acting as master of ceremony, called the gathering to order and outlined briefly its purpose. He extended a sincere welcome to Mrs. Eggleton to the neighbourhood. He referred to Mr. Eggleton as one of the most stalwart citizens of the district and the gathering was assembled as an expression of good will to him on the part of those who had known him for many years and to his bride who was about to become a resident of the village. The chairman then called on Rev. W. H. Walker for a brief address. Rev. Walker spoke of the qualities of the two personalities and on behalf of those present asked them to accept a tangible expression of goodwill in the form of several individual gifts which were placed before the honoured couple.

Then followed the unwrapping ceremony which revealed a large array of useful and lovely gifts. The presentation was made by Mr. Cameron Montgomery and both Mr. and Mrs. Eggleton fittingly expressed their sincere gratitude for the kindly gesture. At this time the Stirling Citizen's Band under the leadership of Maurice Bell arrived and added a touch of interest to the program with a boisterous serenade. Luncheon was served by the ladies to climax a most pleasant evening.

Personals

About two hundred residents of Stirling and district were passengers on the special excursion train to Kingston on Sunday and all reported excellent views of Their Majesties during their visit to the ancient city of Central Ontario.

Mr. William Dermedy returned home Tuesday after spending a few days visiting at the home of his brother, Mr. Albert Dermedy, Kingston, Ontario.

Mr. George Mason who for the past eleven years has been employed as mechanic at Bailey's garage has resigned to accept a position in Belleville and will assume his new duties within the next two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. John McGowan spent the holiday week end with relatives in Toronto and witnessed the vast reception tendered the King and Queen.

Mrs. H. E. Hulin and Bobbie spent Wednesday visiting the former's mother, Mrs. H. Rosebush of River Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hulin accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Bennett, Joan and Roy of Frankford and Arthur Duncan of Stirling, have returned to their homes after spending the holiday week end visiting at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Duncan, Toronto.

Thinks Circulation Of 2,500,000 Enough For London Newspaper

London, May 26—(CP)— Lord Beaverbrook, owner of Britain's largest newspaper enterprise, thinks the Daily Express has attained a large enough circulation.

The Canadian-born peer who owns that paper and the Evening Standard observed his 60th birthday yesterday, receiving friends at his Leatherhead estate and "contemplating the past."

Circulation of the Express topped 2,500,000 during April this year. In a signed story in the paper Lord Beaverbrook said no attempt would be made to increase circulation beyond this figure because of rising production costs without corresponding expansion of revenue.

The newspaper had a circulation of less than 500,000 when Lord Beaverbrook bought it in 1919. It was printed in a basement plant in Shoe Lane, a narrow alleyway off London's newspaper row, Fleet Street.

Today it is published simultaneously in three different cities — London, Manchester and Glasgow.

MEIGHEN URGES

report of the Senate Railway Committee proposing further measures of co-operation and it was to it that Senator Meighen spoke last night.

The C. P. R. was a well-managed railway, a contributor to national greatness, but there was nothing so great or so well-managed that if compelled to operate on a wholly unsound basis it was not in danger of insolvency, said Senator Meighen.

Leading to Bankruptcy

"If we would avoid the calamity of C. P. R. bankruptcy and of the government taking it over, then end the threat of bankruptcy all along the line." Continuance of present conditions meant the precipitation of conditions leading to the bankruptcy of both the nation and the C. P. R.

Senator Meighen said the essential difference between co-operation that would save substantial sums and unification was that the advocates of co-operation wanted to preserve two head offices filled with high-salaried executives.

Unification was not amalgamation, said Senator Meighen. Amalgamation meant a union of the physical properties and a mutuality of obligation. Unification would keep the properties and the obligations separate.

The railway deficit situation was serious to a "dark and portentious degree." Unification contemplated abandonment of duplicate services. But if the present state of things continued, economic laws would compel abandonment of useful pioneer lines.

No Results.

Six years of "so-called co-operation" between the railways had brought results that "wouldn't fill the hollow of my hand", Senator Meighen said. Both railways sought to explain the failure of co-operation. The government lader, Senator Raoul Dandurand, refused to accept these explanations and said he was against unification in principle.

"I have told no one how to vote," interjected Senator Dandurand. "I have called no caucus."

"It is not hard for us to hear the call," said Senator Meighen. "The leader of the government has veered at a right angle from the course he took a few years ago.

"The main reason this is no pleasure to me is that I find myself in direct conflict with the leader of that party with which I am associated—in definite conflict with the leader of that party whose talents I admire (Hon. R. J. Manion). Certainly my duty under these circumstances is no pleasure.

"I had hoped that those from all sides who could look at the business aspects of the matter would enable the senate to create the impression it was ready to serve rather than follow.

Not Views of Party.

"I proclaim now that my views do not represent the view of the party with which I'm identified. They are forcefully disavowed by the leader of that party."

Allegations of pessimism were flung at his position, said Senator Meighen. He called on the senators to remember the optimism of the '90's that built thousands of miles of railways in Canada, the optimism of the '20's led by "the prince of all optimists, Sir Henry Thornton". Canada today had the fruits of these times of optimism.

"What is proposed by unified management is not abandonment of pioneer lines but of the lines that duplicate and double over each other." Senator Meighen contended. "But if we keep on as we are now we will eventually be forced to abandon even those pioneer lines that are needed and useful.

"The place to save is in the thickly populated districts where there is duplication. We can save there and be in a position to maintain the pioneer lines.

Economics Still Prevail

"Someday the economic law is going to compel efficient management of our railways and discontinuance of waste. I don't know when it will come but I hope it comes under such management that evils of government operation cannot come in."

Senator Dandurand, Government Leader, said the country would never stand for amalgamation under private ownership. The country was not ready to confide the management of 42,000 miles of railway, with 150,000 employees, and annual expenditures of $300,000,000 into the hands of a little group.

If the Senate failed to act on the railway problem, it would be playing out a sorrier performance than ever before said Senator Meighen. In the event of failure it would behoove the Senators to retire from their places of dignity and emolument back to the ranks of those whom they failed to serve.

Senator A. K. Hugessen (Lib. Montreal said C.N.R. deficits were not so important or so stifling as they were sometimes represented to be. The railways were the life-lines that kept Canada together.

"The people of this country are instinctively opposed to the unification of our railways," said Senator Hugessen. "The danger would not arise merely from the operation of a single railway, but from the fact there would be a single industry with 120,000 employees, and $300,000,000 to spend. That would be a state within a state."

Advice to the Lovelorn

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

A Father Objects to Dancing

"Dear Miss Fairfax

I have been very much disturbed by suggestions in your column that it's well for young girls to learn how to dance. You say it's good, wholesome exercise, that it makes for grace and popularity. And, in fact, if a girl doesn't dance and dance well, she is not only unpopular but often fails to be successful. That a good dancer is a good mixed and makes friends easily.

"In this I totally disagree with you. To my way of thinking, dancing is an invention of the devil. I think young women should remain at home until fate sends them a suitable life's companion. You do not see recommendations to dance in the Bible. As a humble student of the Bible, I recall nothing about dancing. Please make other suggestions for popularity to young women readers.

A Father."

I'm afraid, my dear sir, that you must confine your Bible reading to those chapters in which dancing is not mentioned. Please let me refer you to Ecclesiastics 3: "To everything there is a season and a time for every purpose under Heaven. A time to weep, and a time to laugh, and a time to mourn, and a time to dance."

Miriam, the sister of Moses, danced to encourage the army. As a student of the Bible, you must be familiar with your concordance. Look up dance and dancing. I still think dancing is a beautiful and normal exercise. It goes back to the earliest records of the human race. Some dancing is vulgar. I don't advocate that kind.

And alas, my dear sir, Fate does not look up suitable life partners for girls these days. There is no observable woman famine anywhere. There are places where women do not outnumber the men. This column mentioned some of them a week or two ago.

Wars have made sex statistics lopsided, millions of men were killed in the World War, and today a girl has to be her own fate and look about her.

As to dancing, where would you prefer to see your daughter?—dancing in the right sort of place or parked on a lonely country road, or, because she has never learned to dance and is shy and awkward, sneaking out with some utterly unworthy man on the sly?

No, my dear sir, I'm all for teaching the young people how to dance, and dance well. No cheek to cheek stuff or "bunny hugging", but beautiful, rhythmic dancing.

If a girl is cut out of everything not allowed to dance, made to come home from a party at eleven o'clock not allowed to see her friends under her own roof, she will soon be dropped by youngsters of her own age. For it's as true of people, especially young ones, as it is with animals. If they don't run with the pack, they are left behind.

Such being the case, parents who hang on the prejudices of their own youth are assuming grave responsibilities over the future welfare of their children.

Shall We Autograph Our Photographs?

"What shall I write on my photographs?" is an important question to graduates-to-be. Whether or not to autograph and if so, how.

Let's first consider the question—shall we write anything on our photographs?

Many people are of the opinion that an unautographed photograph is a more personal one, and with some justification. If you write on your photograph only this one message greets the person as he or she looks at your picture. Otherwise, the recipient has scope for imagination! Moreover, other people won't be reading your thoughts.

The other side of the question is that some people have a special enthusiasm for autographed photographs cherishing the friend's handwriting and message. This is all human and natural.

The point is to realise that there are two points of view. Often we can find out by judicious questioning which is preferred. Or, if in doubt, we can courteously wait until the person suggests our autograph.

If we choose to sign, we must choose appropriate words. Loving devotion is all right for a beloved grandmother or a favorite aunt. But . . . are you listening? . . .not too personal a message on the photograph to be given to the heart-beat of the moment. Friendships change and alas, many boys and girls exhibit their collection of photographs to the wide-wide world.

To friends of your own age, the simplest of messages, and always in good taste, is "To Tom, from Dorothy". I suggest, too, the pleasant and not-too-intimate word "Greetings". Save the precious words 'Love', 'devotion' and 'affection,' for the relationships to which they belong.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Even Child With Proper Diet May Develop Deficiency Disease

From time to time we have discussed diseases which arise because a child doesn't get a proper diet. But occasionally we encounter a case in which a child whose diet is proper still develops a deficiency disease.

Rickets, a disease associated with the use of calcium by the body, is typical of this complaint.

We all know that milk is an excellent source of calcium; in fact, I think I can go so far as to say that it is the best.

One would think that a child who gets plenty of milk would never develop rickets, which is due to a lack of calcium. But we have found that this is sometimes the case. Calcium by itself does no good; there must be another substance along with it so that the child's body can use it correctly. Otherwise the calcium is excreted from the body as fast as it is taken in. This other substance which must work with calcium is Vitamin O.

Just let us look at the baby's menu and see how much Vitamin he gets in his regular diet. If he is breastfed, he gets a small amount of the vitamin from his mother; if he is fed on the bottle, he gets practically none of that vitamin in the cow's milk. It has been found that there is plenty of the vitamin in the yoke of egg, but a very young baby can't take egg yoke. Even if he could, he could not take a dozen eggs a day that would be necessary to provide him with a sufficiency.

For the young baby there are two great sources of Vitamin D—codliver oil and sunlight. When the baby is born, he has inherited from his mother a supply of calcium sufficient to last about a month. At the end of that period he has used up all of this store and his body must find it somewhere else. Milk isn't enough, we know now, because his system can't absorb all the calcium in the milk without the necessary Vitamin D. At such a tender age there are very few things you can add to his diet, but fortunately codliver oil is one of the things that most babies can take quite early in life without any trouble.

When the Quintuplets were born, two months prematurely, we were faced with the problem of giving them this Vitamin D, for they did not even have the month's store of calcium that full-time babies are equipped with. So we gave them codliver oil in concentrated form. This goes by the name of viosterol, and it is easily given to the baby and it is easily digested. You just put one, two or three drops in the baby's milk, as your doctor will prescribe.

Of course if the baby is born in the spring, or early summer when it is warm and the sun is bright, you are fortunate. For then he can get a supply of this vitamin right from the sun itself. It has been found that the sunshine, from early May until the middle of September, in temperate climates, possesses enough power and sufficient ultra-violet rays to protect the baby from developing rickets.

One Chin Is Enough!

Mustn't Let It Take Unto Itself a Mate

By HELEN FOLLETT

WATCH your chin. It may be planning to take unto itself a mate. If there is a slight bulge and a tiny cross line above it, you must get active. Also, as such a condition signifies increase in weight, you'd better stop raiding the icebox before you go to bed and close your eyes when you pass the candy shop.

The poor dear whose chin looks as if, in time, it will rest upon her chest feels that life has her beaten. If she had started to fight the horror when it first appeared she wouldn't be in a state of despair.

Treatment consists of the free use of ice and cold water to make tissues firm. Every night after the facial washing that new-come chin should be rolled away. Apply a heavy massage cream, pick up the flesh between thumb and first finger, apply gentle pressure. While the cream remains on skip over the skin surface with an ice cube. But don't let the cream remain on over night.

No fat gets a chance to collect on her pretty chin

A little restraint when eating, if you please. Less butter and cream. You can have lean meats, vegetables that grow above ground, green salads, fruits. Drink buttermilk. It is non-fattening, good for a lot of troubles that have to do with digestive machines.

Some of the newest frocks from fashion headquarters show the Chinese influence. There's Peiping red and Betel red. We're mentioning them because you'll probably have to tear out and get new rouge and lipsticks if you wear these gorgeous colors.

Cathay blue is enchanting on the blonde beauty. You will find eye shadows of the same shade, if you are a good shopping hunter. Gobi beige is slick on the brunette and, believe it or be scornful, there are pinkish-beige tones in nail polish.

We trust that the outdoor girl will soft pedal make-up during the day, enjoy her fill of the new skin pigments when she fares forth to the evening party.

To keep hands in condition one requires a lotion and a massage cream.

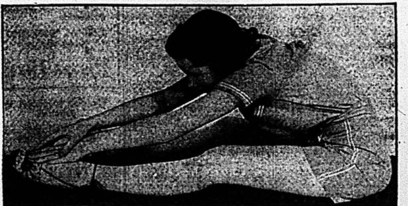
As for the rosy finger-nails, you have to have a metal file, beveling files, orange wood sticks, needlepoint, curved scissors, cuticle cream and polish, polish remover, absorbent cotton. Ho hum!

Do you crouch at the dinner table, slumping your chest in and humping like a camel? The pose is not elegant, but a lot of girls assume it.

Money out of the bank is that amusing print by Molyneux which is a design of American, French and English paper money. It is used for silk dresses and amusing blouses.

Bend, Twist and Kick—

For Beauty's Sake



By HELEN FOLLETT

THE CAUSE of physical education is marching forward with music and fluttering banners. Girls are working like nailers, their goal is anatomical perfection, the reward that comes from a well-organized life and a sensible routine of living.

If the tape measure is showing a gain of girth, don't let fat cells go their wilful way. Kill 'em off by the starvation method, cutting down on foods that create adipose tissue, giving the muscles a daily workout so that cushions will deflate themselves. If the silhouette needs more curves, get plenty of sleep, eat your cream and cereals, take life easy. Get some outdoor life each day. Do we hear sneers from the office workers? That's all right; you have Saturday afternoons and Sundays to flirt with Mister Al Fresco.

One never realizes what good fun muscles play is until one gets into the habit of taking exercises at a regular time each day. Once established, the habit becomes an exhilarating pastime to which one looks forward with pleasure. Rhythmic movements of the body, combined with vigorous fibre exertion, quiet the nervous system, stimulate the blood streams, wash out the lungs, have a grand effect upon the eyes, the complexion and the disposition.

Come on now—out of your soft chairs and stretch yourself. Bend and twist at the waistline. Do high kicking. Lie on your back and pedal.

AN EVENTFUL day, with probably high-pressure or dramatic experiences, is the presage based on the lunar and mutual configurations. Matters of unusual importance loom on the horizon with thrilling prospects. Bold and important projects, requiring initiative and strenuous methods, are likely to step up affairs with a degree of surprise and audacity. The forces and faculties are under most exciting stimuli for conspicuous achievement.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of dramatic experience. All the physical forces, intellectual and emotional energies seem involved in a sensational achievement in an out-of-the-ordinary enterprise. An invention, a brave exploit, a dramatic or literary "best seller" may materialize under such planetary auspices.

A child born on this day may have outstanding talents and qualities which should insure it conspicuous achievement in science, invention or travel, or in dramatic or literary fields. It should have a life of exciting adventure and romance, probably in strange places.

DIVORCEE'S DAUGHTER

—By Vivian Radcliffe—

CHAPTER IV

It seemed to Janice, as she sat in Dorothy Dane's exotic living room watching the actress move restlessly about, that Lady Luck was smiling on her.

Miss Dane was as lovely off the screen as on. Janice's dislike of everything connected with the movies melted as she realized Miss Dane had not found her wanting. She was going to New York as the companion of little Dolores, who must spend the ensuing six months with her father in accordance with the court's decree.

Miss Dane paused, looking anxiously at Janice. "You won't mind stopping off at Champaign for two weeks? Dolores must visit her paternal grandparents."

Champaign, Illinois—Chicago, Illinois—Janice hesitated only a moment. Probably her father would not be in Chicago. He seemed to spend most of his time in New York or Florida, at this time of the year.

"That will be all right," Janice admitted a little breathlessly. Because Dorothy Dane had known her mother slightly during a recent picture, she was asking no references, accepting her as an appropriate guardian, despite her youth, for the six-year-old child. Not a word of Lois Flagg or the ordeal Janice had been through. Ah, Dorothy Dane was kind!

"Of course you want to get away from here," Miss Dane spoke quickly. "Have you friends in New York?"

As Janice mutely shook her head Dorothy frowned. "Well, let me warn you, my ex-husband is a ladies' man. You're not beautiful but you are lovely — and wholesome. Don't let him turn your head with helpful plans for your future in New York. Just a word to the wise, my dear, for I feel a certain responsibility, as the one making your trip possible."

A word to the wise! Janice smiled—almost. There was two sides to every broken marriage, and Robert Craymore could not be so bad if the court permitted him the custody of his daughter half of each year.

"I do appreciate that, Miss Dane," Janice murmured. "Then I'm taking Dolores to New York?" She could not control the excited quaver in her voice and her blue eyes seemed to dance with joy.

"Of course. How soon can you leave? Monday? Are three days enough time for you to prepare? Very well, then. I'll get the accommodations on the first plane that morning. I'll have my secretary telephone you. She'll bring Dolores to the airport and money for your expenses."

Janice found herself on the street a few minutes later, a little dazed at the sudden way in which everything had so quickly worked out in a plan the details of which could not have been arranged to her satisfaction any better had she completed them herself.

A plane trip east! She had always wanted to fly but her mother had been afraid. Up in an airplane at last!

Her mind swung quickly to her sister Ivonne, with a plane of her own and a pilot's license. She smiled a little wistfully. A plane, a car, beautiful clothes, travel, could not intrigue her. She had to live her own life for a while. She had to know what she really was at heart, now that her mother was gone and some of the dreams that had only been dreams could become realities.

Helene was at the apartment. So was Lawrence.

Her happy face told them the news the moment she entered the living room.

"That's that!" Helene exclaimed, regret in her voice. "When do you leave?"

Lawrence sat silent in his chair, suddenly looking like a deflated balloon.

"Early Monday morning." She looked at Lawrence and steeled herself against the swift surge of pity that welled up in her. She could not marry him. To be cold was far kinder than to show pity for his disappointment.

"Since you're determined to go, I'll give you some introductions to business associates I have there," Lawrence said dully. He had ceased to urge her to marry him. "I'll come east the first of the year to see how you're making out. Maybe—"

"Don't follow me with any hopes, Lawrence. My decision is final. I can't marry you." She shook her head at Helene who had stirred restlessly in her chair. She did not want his letters of introduction. All she wanted was to slip away and not have him find her again.

Suddenly she had seen him very clearly, in the cold eye of youth. He was old enough to have married her mother. He wanted her youth and vitality, wanted to delude himself into believing he was still young enough to appeal to a youthful wife. Now he was distasteful.

She struggled to be kind. He had been so good to them—to mother and her—that she must control herself for these few remaining days.

"Flying east!" she exclaimed delightedly. "At last I'm going up in a plane!"

"Seems to me you're getting all the breaks!" Helene immediately fell in with her elation.

Monday morning Janice stood on the wind-swept field waiting for Miss Dane's secretary to bring Dolores. Helene was a little tearful as the time for departure drew close. She looked at the plane taking on mail, the pilot and co-pilot busy with departure details. Lawrence Worthington stood disconsolately beside them, his arms filled with magazines and flowers.

A black limousine sped up, stopped. A little girl hopped out, dancing up and down in her excitement, a pretty child very like her mother. The chauffeur attended to baggage. Miss Dane's secretary hurried forward, one hand tightly clasping the child's arm.

Janice smiled and met her within a few feet of the steps leading into the cabin of the plane.

"I'm Janice Flagg," she said quietly, though her heart seemed to be in her throat, choking her with excitement. She looked down at Dolores, met the wide questioning eyes of the child and smiled in a friendly way.

Here's everything in this envelope," the secretary explained, breathlessly. "Minute instructions. You wire back at every stop. Read the instructions carefully as soon as you take off."

Janice crushed the big envelope in her ample purse, turned to Lawrence, to Helen. She kissed her friend good-bye, shook hands with the man. The hostess helped her with the packages.

"Those letters of introduction," Lawrence called and held out numerous envelopes addressed in his strong, bold handwriting.

Absently she took them. Absently, when the plane got underway, she glanced through them. One was addressed to Robert Craymore, Attorney-at-Law. Dorothy Dane's husband, whom she had warned Janice against.

With a smile turning up the corners of her lips, Janice tore up all Lawrence's letters of introduction. She would not need them.

CHAPTER V

Janice suffered mingled emotions each time she saw Peter Hathaway—and she had seen him daily since her arrival at Champaign. He was Galahad, Lancelot and Eros in a confused oneness in her mind.

Tall and straight, he appeared a shining knight with a mop of curly brown hair that never would lie flat. His brown eyes were soft and tender yet alertly observant.

Dolores' grandfather was a professor of engineering at the University of Illinois. Peter Hathaway had the title of assistant professor in the engineering department. Excellent friendship existed between the two men despite the disparity in age.

Having a bachelor apartment, Peter came often to the Craymores for dinner, followed by a long evening's discussion in Professor Craymore's study.

Peter was very kind to Janice, accepting her as one of the family, as had the Craymores. Never once however, had he seemed to realize she was a girl, an attractive girl with a heart searching for love and for the man of her dreams.

From Mrs. Craymore Jan learned that Peter was so engrossed in his work he had little time for girls.

"He heartily detests the girls around town," Mrs. Craymore confided with amusement. "He says a girl should be feminine, not smoking and drinking and tearing around in slacks."

"And what did you say?" demanded Janice, for she had keen appreciation of Mrs. Craymore's quick wit.

"I told him all those girls he had in mind were grandmothers now." A twinkle brightened the little old lady's eyes.

But that conversation was in Janice's mind on the next afternoon when Peter took her over the university grounds. His pride in Illini was almost worshipful. With regret he admitted he could not escort her over the entire 430 acres of campus at Urbana and Champaign. Nor could they pay proper respect to the sixty-five buildings on the main campus.

No wonder Peter loved this university with its vast and complete scope. The Georgian buildings were lovely, the complete plan of the campus like a well laid out town. Janice felt a secret thrill as Peter showed her about the university in which the first footsteps of his career were being taken.

She got him to talk of his ambitions and so unloosened the shyness of his tongue. They were great ambitions. But looking at his strong figure, listening to his confident words, Jan believed he could achieve them.

"And where does a wife fit in?" she asked innocently.

He paused in his walk looked down at her with startled eyes.

"Wife?" he asked vaguely.

"Yes, wife. Surely you're not a woman-hater."

"I've made no plans for a wife," he said sternly. "I'm not a woman-hater but I do completely disapprove of the modern girl. A girl can be feminine and competent without wanting to work, to emulate a man, even to drinking and smoking."

"Whew!" Janice whistled softly, "I think a girl is admirable wanting to be independent, self-supporting, using her mental and physical qualities just as competently as men in the field of endeavor."

"Everyone to his own opinion," he stated in a tone of finality. "Of course, you'd stick up for your own sex. Now, that building over there is where Professor Craymore and I endeavor to drum knowledge into youthful brains far more intent upon pleasure than learning."

"What an opinion you have of young people—and you're not so old yourself!" She looked at him appraisingly. Mrs. Craymore had said he was twenty-five.

He ignored her remark and they walked on in silence until Janice ventured: "What do you do for relaxation? How do you spend summer vacations?"

Again he waxed to a subject. He took small groups of freshmen and sophomores to the Tobacco Root Mountains of Montana to pan gold in the stream of the claim he had staked out four years before.

"This spring a chap who's a junior is going with me. His family have been hard hit through sickness and death. Hugh has to pan enough gold to cover his senior year, so we're going to work the claim alone this summer."

He might think little of girls but he was kind. Yes, he was a knight in shining armor reaching out a helping hand to a youth in need.

At dinner the last night Janice was to spend with the Craymores Peter Hathaway was present. Janice watched him hungrily, making an indelible picture of him on her mind so that she could carry it away with her. He was her knight even though he didn't seem to have the faintest inkling of her interest in him.

"Miss Flagg goes on the early plane tomorrow," Mrs. Craymore told Peter, in a pause in the conversation. Janice wondered if the little old lady had surmised her feelings, was trying to make Peter take notice of her.

"She does?" Peter turned eyes upon her that did not really see, his mind on an argument with the professor. "I hope you enjoyed your visit."

"Very much, particularly the tour of Illini." Janice hoped by mention of the university so dear to his heart that she could hold his interest a little longer.

"In a few days you'll be touring New York, forgetting all about this little town,' he laughed. "Ever been to New York before?"

He had forgotten. Again she repeated what she had told him on that memorable afternoon. "Not since I was three years old, so I don't remember much."

"You're a good sight-seer," he stated almost absently. "You'll enjoy it."

He turned back to Professor Craymore and immediately became engrossed in another angle of their argument.

She looked at Mrs. Craymore, wondering if disappointment showed in her eyes. The woman shrugged her shoulders but her eyes seemed filled with kindly understanding.

When the men excused themselves to go into the professor's study, Peter seemed to have forgotten that she was leaving, that this evening was farewell, unless he said something to give her hope that some day they would meet again.

She sat in the cosy living room with Mrs. Craymore, talking of many things, until the clock struck eleven. Then, as the older woman arose, Janice did too. The men had apparently forgotten time. Her hostess moving to retire meant that she must seek her room also.

As she went up the stairs, blinding tears filled her eyes. Here was the man she could love, the man who would measure up to all her requirements. He had not even noticed her enough to say goodby.

CHAPTER VI

When Robert Craymore met the plane at Newark airport, Janice was agreeably surprised. He was young and handsome and most courteous. He greeted Dolores with unfeigned affection and the child, who adored him, threw herself into his arms with shrieks of delight.

Janice told him briefly how obedient Dolores had been, what a pleasant trip they experienced and gave him notes from his parents. He rode with them in the motor service the air line maintained to New York City.

On the trip he divided his attention between his child and her, asking kindly about her plans, suggesting where to live, telling her of a bureau maintained to supply working girls with reasonable rooms that had been investigated.

"No jobs?" he asked, surprised. "No friends? You are adventuresome!"

He was thoughtful for a while.

"Any office training? I could make a place for a typist and let you help with the filing."

"Oh, I couldn't impose upon you. But if I could step right into a job it would be wonderful." Her eyes sparkled with the excitement that filled her. "I'm a stenographer, typist and have been trained in office rountine work, but I've no experience. But," she smiled at him and the charm of her personality was in that smile, "I had a high rating in my class at school."

"Then come to work as soon as you're settled," he instructed her, as though the subject were completely closed. He gave her his card, and turned his attention to the child.

Three weeks passed swiftly. Janice was installed in a hall bedroom of a brownstone rooming house in the East Thirties. The room was clean but bare, and she spent as little time in it as possible.

"A place to sleep," she called it in her letters to Helene "for I'm out seeing the city as much as I can. It's simply wonderful! And so many places to go which are open to the public."

She made few friends at the office. For some reason the girls in the big law concern, of which Mr. Craymore was a junior partner, seemed to exclude her from their friendly circle. Loneliness would have made her miserable, but for her sight-seeing.

Now she thought of her mother more than ever before. She missed her at last. She found herself shedding her first tears of sorrow for the butterfly whose wings had not been strong enough to fly upon life's brisk winds. It was this growing feeling of lonesomeness that forced her at last to accept one of Mr. Craymore's numerous invitations to dinner and the theatre.

Anything but another meal at the cafeteria. She agreed to meet Craymore that evening at a grill for dinner.

She did not believe girls should go out to dinner with their employers, but somehow this was a little different. Lawrence had given her an introduction to this man, though she had destroyed it. If she had presented the letter she knew Mr. Craymore would have insisted upon taking her to dinner before, have tried to make her lonesome evenings more pleasant.

Lawrence's letter was a guarantee of Robert Craymore's character. If worse came to worst she could always say that, Lawrence Worthington was a friend of hers, and put Craymore in his place. But that would not happen. Mr. Craymore was only trying to be kind to a girl who had brought his little daughter across the country.

Ah, Lady Luck who had ridden with her from Hollywood was still at her side!

As they came out of the theatre, Craymore exclaimed impatiently, "What a beastly show! Let's go to the Village and take in a night club. I want a nightcap."

"I've got to work tomorrow," Janice protested a little weakly. A night club would be fun—a night club in the Village!

"Well, I've nothing too important," he confided. "Don't take life so seriously, my dear. Have a good time while you can."

If she had only taken warning then! But she didn't. In her innocence, she thought he was trying to give her added pleasure in that one evening she had allowed him.

In the club he proceeded to order drink after drink. She wondered at his capacity. But when the floor show was over and the lights went on again in the room, she suddenly realized his capacity had gone far beyond its limit.

He was disgustingly drunk! He leaned toward her, whispering of his unhappiness, of how the miserable play had brought back the cruel way Dorothy Dane had treated him. He was looking for a woman who would understand him. At last he had found her! Janice did understand him, didn't she?

Janice edged away, and her gaze frantically searched the room. A stranger in New York, on whom could she depend at this moment to assist her with an annoying escort?

She wondered frantically if she could escape to the dressing room and get her wrap from the check room without the ticket. No, she could not do that. She must not antagonize Craymore more than necessary. She wanted the job in his office until she could look for another.

She'd start looking in her lunch hours. Maybe if she saved and skimped on meals she could leave his employ within a couple of weeks and chance job hunting.

"You do understand, don't you, Janice?" Craymore pleaded, leaning closer to her. His smile was a smirk, and his eyes seemed to have more evil intent than pleading, beneath the heavy lids drooping with the stupor fast overcoming him.

Her eyes were still nervously searching the room. Suddenly, they fell on a table where two men, a beautiful red-haired girl, and a dowager-like woman were seated. Why, that was Mrs. Greene, an old friend of her mother's!

Her heart leaped with relief. The younger of the two men was Wylde Green. She had not seen the Greenes for almost five years, since they had spent a winter in California. Would they recognize her?

She watched them intently until the girl spoke to Wylde and he turned to look in her direction. She bowed, and smiled, a little too eagerly, and if eyes across a room could plead, her deep blue eyes pleaded with Wylde to come to her rescue.

Mrs. Greene's eyes were bent cooly upon her at a quick question from her son. Again Janice bowed and, as Craymore's hand reached out to clasp hers, she shook it off with impatience.

Would they recognize her after five years? Would they realize that the gawky child of fourteen had changed into the attractive girl now eagerly pleading for their assistance? Would they believe that Janice Flagg was in New York and not in California? Mother and son talked for a moment. Then, again, Wylde's eyes met hers across the room.

Wordlessly, her lips formed her plea, "Please come to my aid!"

CONFINED ABED BY LUMBAGO

In Pain for Weeks

Acting on his principle of "when you know a good thing tell your friends about it," a man who has had very bad lumbago pains writes as follows:—

"I suffered from lumbago, and for weeks could scarcely move in bed. I had treatment, but it did not ease the pain very much. A friend said, 'Why not take Kruschen Salts? Take them every morning, and you'll likely get relief from that pain in your back.' So I have taken them every morning for some time and I am in fit condition for my work again—thanks to Kruschen."—C.B.

Why is it that lumbago, backache, rheumatism and indigestion in many cases yield to Kruschen Salts? Because it is a combination of several mineral salts that are vital for your bodily well-being. Each of these salts has an action of its own. Stomach, liver, kidneys and digestive tract are all benefited and toned up to a high state of efficiency.

NEW WHITER PAINT
STARTS WHITER . . . STAYS WHITER

Before developing C-I-L "Trutone" White, C-I-L research chemists surveyed the whole field of white paints. They realized that attractive though white houses are, most white paints soon lose their original glamour . . . soon become dull and faded.

But now, in "Trutone" White Paint, C-I-L has introduced an exterior finish that both starts whiter and stays whiter! "Trutone" White starts whiter because an exclusive C-I-L formula makes it that way. Stays whiter because it resists dust and grime . : : actually sheds dirt. Yet in spite of these advantages "Trutone" White costs you no more! In fact, it's more economical because it hides better, spreads farther, lasts longer!

This year, give your home more lasting distinction with "Trutone" White. You'll see the difference at once, and know that the difference will last! Specify C-I-L "Trutone" White to your Master Painter. Be sure you get it. St. Louis Cards Keep Pace by Winning Over Boston Bees 7-1

(By Judson Bailey Associated Press Sports Writer).

Every once in a while the scheduled makers come up with a natural like the National Baseball League series which opened today between St. Louis Cardinals and Cincinnati Reds.

Some people might think that since every team in each league plays every other team, the leaders would be brought together regularly in "croocial contests." But in a circuit like the National, where the leaders are shuffled for every deal, this is a difficult trick.

The last time it happened was last September, when Pittsburgh Pirates and Chicago Cubs battling for the pennant, collided at Chicago. Everybody had a lot of fun out of that one except the Pirates. This four-game. three-day circus at St. Louis should be as delightful.

The Cardinals went into the series with a percentage advantage of .690 to .677. But the clubs were deadlocked in the matter of games won and lost and both were sporting creditable winning streaks.

Reds Win Tenth in Row

The Reds scribbled their 10th straight into the books yesterday 6-1 over New York Giants. Only three hits were given by Whitey Moore and Gene Thompson, but the former forgot himself in the eighth inning long enough to walk four batters and force in a run. There was no question at stake by that time, however, because Ernie Lombardi had hit his seventh home run in the fourth and the Giants' defence had collapsed behind Carl Hubbel to let in three runs and figure in two others.

The Cardinals maintained their shade advantage by beating Boston Bees 7-1 for their seventh in a row. Lefty Bob Welland, sore arm and all, worked 6 2-4 innings on five hits and Bob Bowman finished on one more.

Brooklyn Dodgers, who won the first game of their western trip and then tied one and lost six straight, returned home in good spirit by finishing the tour with an 8-1 triumph over the Pirates. This was sufficient to lift them into sixth place over their worst enemies, the Giants. The Phillies nosed out the Cubs 8-7 in the other National League game.

Feller Has One-Hitter

Bob Feller, already well into his best season, turned in a one-hitter to shut out Boston Red Sox 11-0 in the American League's brightest game. His Cleveland Indian mates chose the day for target practice, Ken Keltner tagging three pitchers for home runs and Hal Trosky getting a homer, a double and a single to account for four runs.

Although reduced to four hits, New York Yankees got back in the winning column after a day's absence by belting Detroit Tigers 5-2 for Red Ruffing's seventh victory without defeat this season and the 200th of his major league career.

Al Alexandra, born Alexander Carrasquel, rookie pitcher who allowed only 4 hits his last previous start, cut this sum to three as Washington Senators beat St. Louis Browns 4-1 in the day's other game.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Bob Feller and Ken Keltner, Indians: Former hurled one hit game, striking out 10, and latter hit three home runs in 11-0 shutout of Red Sox.

Red Rolfe, Yankees: Tripled two runs across to insure Yankees, win over Tigers.

Ernie Lombardi, Reds: Hit seventh homer of season and drove in another run with single in beating Giants.

Syl Johnson, Phillies: Saved victory over Cubs by striking out Hank Leiber with tying run on base after Chicago had scored three times in ninth.

Tot Pressnell, Dodgers: Ended Brooklyn's nine-game losing streak by holding Pirates to seven hits and driving in two runs himself.

SOUTH HASTINGS BASEBALL LOOP MAY NOT OPERATE

Only Three Teams Are Ready to Face Barrier if a Meeting is Called

FINANCES HEAVY

Cannifton is Unwilling to Finance an Entry This Coming Season

Foxboro, May 26 (Special)—Can it be that baseball is just about all washed up in the South Hastings League? The conventional opening date of the league, the twenty-fourth of May has come and gone and as yet the league officials have made no move whatsoever to start the old ball a rolling insofar as calling a meeting either to officially declare the league as inactive for this season and let the boys hang up their baseball paraphernalia, or to make an attempt at getting the league going for another summer.

For the past six years the South Hastings Baseball League has kept the game of baseball alive in the southern part of the county and for the first four years of operation, even in the face of the ever increasing popularity of softball, the league enjoyed the whole-hearted support of every baseball fan in the district. Due to the intense rivalry existing between the various clubs however, certain teams were permitted to go far afield for players to strengthen their lineups and a general influx of importations resulted with the inevitable result that the rural fans became disinterested and the ball clubs began soon to feel the pressure financially. Last year, however, in an effort to bring the league back to its former status, a new ruling was instituted which barred all importations and required players to be strictly local. This move on the part of the league officials, while benefiting some of the clubs in the matter of increased attendance, failed to live up to its expectations and practically all the teams are still in the red.

Only Three Teams Ready

As things stand at the present time, it appears that only three teams are ready and willing to face the barrier on the opening date, when and if that day arrives. Cannifton it is rumoured, due to financial reverses suffered in former years is unwilling to sponsor a team this year leaving only Shannonville, Latta and Foxboro in what was originally a five teamed loop. True, it does take a considerable amount of finance to run a baseball team but the other teams of the loop—namely, Shannonville, Latta and Cannifton are much more fortunate in this respect than in Foxboro. In the villages just named it is unnecessary for the teams to rent a field for the summer in order that they might have a diamond to play on. Foxboro has no school ground suitable for a diamond and there is no exhibition park where they are welcome to play and the money they are forced to pay out in diamond rental would keep most teams in balls and bats for the entire season. Therefore, if one team, in addition to paying for all the ordinary expenses of running a ball team, can also pay a considerable sum for diamond rental, surely the other teams of the loop can raise funds enough for balls and bats.

New Faces

Providing the league does operate this season there will undoubtedly be a number of new faces in the lineups of the various teams. Only a few of the original players who were with the teams in 1933 are still with their clubs. In Shannonville, Ken Juby is the only regular of the team, which started with the South Hastings League and the same goes with Latta as only Jack Gowe remains of the original lineup. Foxboro will also be hit quite hard with the older players either quitting the game or moving to other parts. Four of last year's team will not be with the club this season as Johnson, Vince Gray, Williams and Seeley will be absentees. Also the coach will be missing as Dr. Blakely is leaving the village sometime in June and the boys will sadly miss his valuable experience and expert coaching on the ball diamond.

Shore Would Have To Cease Playing If He Buys Club

Boston, May 26 (AP)—Eddie Shore's possible purchase of the Springfield franchise in the International-American Hockey League would mean his retirement as a player, according to owner Wes Adams of Boston Bruins.

Adams said the Bruins management would not stand in Shore's way if he desires to become a club owner but would refuse to permit him to become a player-manager.

"We believe that Eddie has at least two more years of high class hockey in his system," Adams said, "but we will give him his release if he wants to retire as a player. But if he intends to continue playing hockey, it will be in a Bruins' uniform."

Shore, who has agreed to the terms of Lucien Garneau of Quebec, is one of several groups interested in the Springfield club. Garneau lost control Jan. 1 but he has until June 1 to dispose of the franchise.

ARMSTRONG WINS OVER RODERICK

Welterweight King Bruises Both Hands and Will Take Long Rest

London, May 26 (AP)—Henry Armstrong, who bruised both hands badly in punching Ernie Roerick's jaw, will take a complete rest until he goes into training about the middle of July for his second fight with Lou Ambers in New York Aug. 9.

A easy victor last night over Roderick, who challenged for his world welterweight championship, Armstrong nevertheless damaged his hands so much he will have to consult doctors here and in Paris. Trainer Harry Armstrong said apparently no bones were broken, but the hands were swollen severely and that, because of their weakened condition. a complete rest was required.

Armstrong, who will defend his lightweight title when he meets Ambers was acclaimed by the British as a sensational and thorough winner. After a balky first round, he took command of the fight and never was headed. Referee Wilfred Smith said it was the cleanest championship bout he ever had seen.

OGDENSBURG NOW IN THIRD PLACE

Eddie Lauer Allows Four Hits in Defeating Gloversville

(By The Canadian Press)

The chances are southpaw Eddie Lauer likes his work—it's just he doesn't think his mates on Ogdensburg Colts should be kept late for supper by an everyday occurrence like a Canadian-American League baseball game.

So when it's the lefthander's turn to toe the slab, the opposition usually finds their turn at bats reduced to three tries and pick up your gloves. One day last season, for example, Eddie allowed them 21 tries in a seven-inning ball game, which is nothing short of perfect.

The opposition yesterday was Gloversville and Lauer was comparatively generous. Four hits he gave up and allowed one base-runner to each third in earning a 3-0 shutout that entrenched Ogdensberg in third place.

At bat, his mates entered into the spirit of things and built up their runs the shortest possible way. Valentino homered in the third with Brock abroad to drive in two and O'Hara added another for good measure with a circuit clout in the sixth.

The victory lifted Colts within a game of Amsterdam Rugmakers who meantime lost 6-5 to the leading Oswego Netherlands. Outhit 12-8 Nets came through with more timely clouts to gain the decision for pitcher Nist.

"DUSTY" COOKE HELPING WINGS IN FLAG DRIVE

Former Major Leaguer is Hitting a Flat .400 to Lead All Clouters

LEAFS NOSED OUT

Newark Bears Head Loop When Syracuse Chiefs Beat Jersey City

(By The Associated Press)

One of the big reasons for Rochester's persistent drive toward the top of the International League standings is a husky six-foot outfielder named Allan "Dusty" Cooke.

The 32-year-old Red Wing fly chaser, who has played with several major league clubs, including New York Yankees, during his career, today leads his team with 22 runs batted in and paces the entire circuit with an even .400 batting average. Off those figures Cooke, whose last big league stop was Cincinnati, feels he still rates a spot in the big show.

He continued his efforts to prove it yesterday with a typical Cooke performance. Dusty belted out three hits, one a double, to help the Wings blast Montreal Royals, 10-1 and move into second place, six percentage points behind Newark Bears. Ken Raffensberger was the winning pitcher, turning in a seven-hit performance which completely baffled the men from Montreal and dropped them into a fourthplace tie with Baltimore.

On Top Without Playing

It was through no effort on their part that the Bears took over the lead, for their game with Baltimore was postponed, to be played as part of a doubleheader later in the season. What did put them there was a 1-0 shutout, their first of the year, handed Jersey Giants by Syracuse Chiefs.

Old Ted Kleinhans was the winner of a pitchers' battle with Hy Vandenberg. Ted allowed only three hits, walked four and struck out five, for fourth victory against five defeats. Vandenberg, touched for 11 hits, kept them well scattered until the ninth, when Len Katny singled and scored the winning run on Charley Harig's double.

Buffalo Bisons nosed out Toronto Maple Leafs 8-7 in a night game to boost themselves into sixth place, three points ahead of Syracuse, mainly on a hitting spree by Joe Martin. The third baseman connected four times in five trips to the plate and knocked in five runs, including the winning one in the ninth.

Another of Belleville's promising young athletes has deserted his native haunts high in hopes of achieving great accomplishments in his chosen field, the opportunities of which have been denied him in Belleville. Over the week end Jim Pepper, brother of the now famous George Pepper, who is recognized as one of the top ranking professional motorcycle racing men in England, left the shores of Canada to join his brother George in England Strange as it may seem Jim Pepper leaves home just about two years to the day of when George Pepper left seeking motorcycle racing honors over the Atlantic. George has achieved his ambition and today is recognized as the top ranking rider in the second division and rapidly is gaining prominence in the first division ranks. His brother Jim Pepper will join George as the latter's mechanic and pitman, but of more importance Jim will remain in England during the winter months, where he expects to play hockey. Just another loss for "Toots" Holway's squad. Jim is also a fairly good ball player and doubtless will play a little baseball on the side.

New York sports writers seem to feel that the Yankees could win the American League whether or not Gehrig had decided to retire. Others, including Joe Cronin of the Red Sox, will not count the Yankees in yet. "The Yanks could win the pennant with Gehrig in the lineup, even if his batting fell below the .000 mark. They could win with Fanny Ward and the Maharajah of Rajpipla as the No. 1 battery," declares Bob Considine of the N.Y. Mirror, who further contends, that Joe McCarthy is the best handler of men to grace the majors in years. "He's also lucky when it comes to turning his waning stars out to pasture," adds Considine as he cites the easy manner in which McCarthy eased Ruth, Lazzeri and other Yankee favourites out of the organization. But what is in store for Gehrig and his future with the organization that Col. Rupert built? It must be remembered that as captain Gehrig benched himself and retained the team captaincy, McCarthy did not have anything to do with Gehrig's decision to snap his string of consecutive games. The future will be interesting to watch.

Joe Cronin head of the Red Sox, doesn't scare any too easily when it comes to Yankee chatter and suggestions that the McCarthymen are stronger with Charlie Keller and Joe Gallagher in the lineup. Cronin insists that other clubs in the American League have strengthened up even more than the worlds champions, "The White Sox certainly are greatly improved So are the Browns. And neither the Indians nor Tigers have shown true worth." He omitted mention of his own club, a characteristic gesture, since he prefers that the Red Sox make their own way on the diamond. Yet when he finally was prodded into discussion of his team, he gave a most conservative estimate of its future. 'I think we're going to have enough pitching for those doubleheaders,' he decided. 'So far, we haven't had to even work everybody.'

"Aside from his pitching, Joe really has no plans for speculative argument. for his team has been hitting more or less timely and uniformly, with Rookie Ted Williams supplying the punch for important wins at Detroit and in St. Louis. 'He's young and inclined to be anxious,' said Cronin, 'but he's got what it takes to be a great hitter!' For which Joe is only to glad to settle at this time.

They do say that Earl Averill says the World's Series is a bonus the players receive each fall for playing with the Yankees.... Bob Grove hopes to be able to stick around long enough to win 300 games and join a select group now numbering 11 who reached that total in their careers. Mose had 27 to go when the season opened.

Manager Hal Kemp of the Dracup "Firemen" says his squad was minus three of their regulars versus Point Anne the other night and predicts a much different story when his charges meet Chuck Barnett's Corbys A.C. nine tonight. Frankly we doubt if the Firemen can take the measure of Corbys to-night or any other time. However, we were agreeably surprised with the strong attack was laid down by the Ox Point nine, who garnered 18 hits the other night. Incidentally Johnny Kensky, playing his first year intermediate with the Oilers, is the leading hitter in the local mushball loop, followed by Moon and Bawden, both team mates. After reviewing the work of his juniors the other night, Skipper Ed Townsend says he only needs two more players to round out a good junior squad. He didn't mention what positions were weak, however.

Do you remember when Hearts of Oak, owned and bred by Harry Giddings of Oakville Ont., and ridden by Jockey Wilson, won the 55th running of the King's Plate at Woodbine Park, Toronto, 26 years ago today.

If Eddie Shore, hockey's No. 1 showman and one of the greatest players of all time, decides to purchase the Springfield, Mass., franchise in the International League he will become hockey's first player-owner in the history of the game. Shore is negotiating with the present owners of the Springfield Indians and the deal will be decided one way or the other before the first of the month. So far as is known Shore will continue as a player with the world's champion Boston Bruins if he decides to purchase and operate the Indian team. The Boston fans would be quite put out of Shore hung up his blades after last season's success.

We're Telling You That—The Reds have won ten in a row and still are percentage points behind the Cards, but they're both setting a dizzy pace....Bob Feller just missed baseball's Hall of Fame when Bob Doerr singled in the second yesterday as Feller hurled a one-hitter and beat the Red Sox 11-0.....Doerr did Feller wrong, so to speak.....Two Crown Henry Armstrong, injured finger and all, had little trouble in defending his welterweight crown against Ernie Roderick in London yesterday before 7,000 fight fans Now that Ted Reeve has been established in Montreal he's not letting any grass grow beneath his feet, Reeve is already angling for the services of Annis Stukus, star Argo quarterback, who may be seen wearing the livery of a Montreal squad next fall....Archworth has been withdrawn from the Hendrie Handicap tomorrow, thus indefinitely postponing Ontario's "race of the decade" between McCullagh's horse and Bunty Lawless, also scratched.

Lefty Grove is looking for the guy who wrote the song, "Old Man Mose is dead"......There was no grief in the Dodgers' camp when the Baron of Poffenberger checked out....If they don't see him again it will be soon enough.....The admiring dolls hope the Buffalo Evening News was wrong when it said bike rider Jules Audy's platinum hair isn't 100 per cent plat....The tip is out that Cleveland's 14th manager will be inducted before the end of the season, mebbe before mid-season.

procession's middle at a Dewdney street level crossing. Six cars lopped from the parade made a hurried dash through jumbled traffic and by short cutting down back streets reached the station on schedule.

The others were a bit behind time and the King omitted two planned ceremonies at the station, inspection of the guard of honor and presentation of colors to the "old contemptibles" so the train might leave at 9:08 p.m., M.D.T., eight minutes late.

In R.C.M.P. Barracks.

In the afternoon the retinue lingered in the Royal Canadian Mounted Police barracks where the officers entertained at tea. The King and Queen, interested in seeing all possible of the famous old headquarters of Western Canada's first law-enforcement body walked around the parade square, then drove off for a rest aboard train. By fast driving the entourage caught the Royal car in two miles.

Buckingham Palace footmen did not serve their Majesties at a dinner given by Lieutenant-Governor A. P. McNab of Saskatchewan. The unexpected honor fell to Norman Hudson of Saskatoon.

No one at Government House seemed to know why the two footmen did not appear. Hudson stepped into the breach—efficiently, too, for their Majesties appeared to enjoy the food and service thoroughly.

Hudson, brought here to attend other guests, would do no talking but Chef Josef Bruno Zeppo, who proudly watched each laden tray leave the kitchen and anxiously watched its return, definitely was pleased. "Dudson do all right," said the Italian.

Josef Bruna Zeppo — he insists upon the works — was pleased anyway because their Majesties showed favor for the food. Both the King and Queen ate hors d'oeuvre moscovite although both skipped the soup course.

The breast of Saskatchewan chicken? "Yes, all of it," said Josef Bruno. "The vegetables, too, but not the King, he eat the peas and new potatoes but not the cauliflower."

His Majesty did not touch the dessert but the Queen seemed to enjoy hers. "Ah it was so beautiful! Like a nest". Zeppo was justly proud of the strawberry dessert. The strawberries were like eggs in a nest of spun sugar. A marshmallow dove, wings outspread, topped each nest.

Reception is Informal

The note of informality was struck early in Regina, Mayor A. C. Ellison welcoming Their Majesties in a blue suit. The Mayor wore a light grey felt hat. He is the only mayor of a large city who has not greeted the King and Queen in morning clothes.

After that it didn't take the royal couple long to find they were in the middle of the style-care-free west. They saw thousands of sun tanned farmers who had finished the morning's chores before starting out for Regina aboard horse-drawn rigs and rattling flivvers. Many of them hadn't had time to change from overalls.

It didn't rain all day, and the Queen's aquamarine blue ensemble, unprotected by a coat, was unspotted.

Those who have accompanied Their Majesties on the tour from Quebec were struck by their fresh appearance. The trip across northwestern Ontario seemed to have given them new vitality and they displayed interest in even such routine things as inspection of the guard.

Red River carts with costumed figures of early settlers paraded before the visitors in an historical pageant and the Indians—Crees, Salteaux, Sioux, Stonies and Assiniboia—branished tomahawks and carried pipes-of-peace.

'Pile o' Bones'

The King and Queen were interested in learning that before being renamed Regina, in honor of Queen Victoria, the settlement was called "Pile o' Bones" because Buffalo bones were piled along the railway to await shipment to farms as fertilizer.

His Majesty, replying in writing to an address of welcome from Lieutenant-Governor A. P. McNab, also expressed the "earnest hope that the people of Saskatchewan, with that energy and determination by which they have so effectively settled this central portion of the Great Western Plain, may move onward to a continually expanding prosperity and an ever wider diffusion of well-being and happiness."

Population Doubled

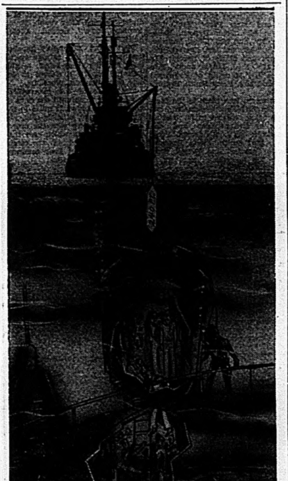
Regina doubled its normal population of 50,000 for the welcome and Moose Jaw, 40 miles west, went the capital city one better. In the 30-minute stop at Moose Jaw a crowd of 45,000—25,000 of them visitors—cheered Their Majesties in a wild demonstration, lit by flood and colored lights, as they drove eight blocks up Main Street and back preceded by a mounted R.C.M.P. escort of eight.

Then, promptly on time at 9.45 p.m., M.S.T. the train pulled out. It stopped overnight west of Moose Jaw before proceeding today to Medicine Hat, Alta., for a 15-minute visit and subsequent stops at Calgary, two hours, and Banff for the week-end.

DEATHS

CALLERY—At her home on the Fifth Concession of Tyendinaga, on Friday, May 20th., 1939, Bridget Callery, beloved wife of Patrick Callery, in her 77th year.

The funeral will take place from the late residence to St. Charles' Roman Catholic Church, Read, Ontario, for Mass at nine a.m. E.S.T. on Monday, May 29th, 1939. Interment St. Charles' Cemetery, Read, Ont. m26-1t



Here is Artist Alfred E. Buescher's conception of how the members of the crew of the sunken submarine Squalus were brought to the surface in the diving bell or rescue chamber. Seven men were brought up on the first trip. A trained man goes over the side of the rescue ship in the air-filled bell. When he reaches the submarine's hatch, he locks the tapering end of the pear-shaped chamber, opens both the hatch and a port in the bell. A group of imprisoned men climb into the bell and after hatches are closed, water ballast is thrown off and the bell rises.

Current Offerings at Belleville Theatres

Advance Information on Screen Offerings Supplied by Theatre Managers.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Sudden Money"

What would you do if you suddenly won $90,000 in a sweepstake? This question, which all of us have asked ourselves at one time or another, is answered by each member of a madcap family in "Sudden Money" which the McCarthy Theatre is now presenting in addition to "Arrest Bulldog Drummond" Charlie Ruggles, Marjorie Rambeau, Charley Grapewin, Billy Lee and a score of Hollywood's finest comedy stars all give hilarious portrayals of just what the average person would do if lucky enough to have a small fortune tossed into their laps. Charlie Ruggles has never before been seen in a better picture than "Sudden Money" and you will have aching-sides laughing so heartily, even before the first ten minutes of this hilarious comedy unreels. It's the first prize picture for laughs of the year.

"Arrest Bulldog Drummond"

As a companion feature presentation, the most breathless escapades ever to figure in a "Bulldog Drummond" story, is the background for the latest offering in this popular series, entitled, "Arrest Bulldog Drummond". The screen's ace sleuth this time has to do with the apprehension and arrest of a spy-ring who do not stop at anything in order to gain their objective, which means ruin to vital military secrets, if they succeed. John Howard, in the role again of "Drummond", with Heather Angel, H. B. Warner, Reginald Denny, Jean Fenwick and C. C. Clive, each render their best performances on the screen, in this "Bulldog Drummond" thriller that we urge you not to miss. On the program also is another action-packed episode of "Flying G-Men" that tops all previous chapters so far presented on the McCarthy screen.

AT THE BELLE

"The Story of Vernon and Irene Castle"

Adhering closely to the real life story of Vernon and Irene Castle, world-famous dancing team of a quarter century ago, Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers' new co-starring vehicle, "The Story of Vernon and Irene Castle," next at the Belle Theatre, is reported to be the finest musical film of recent years and the greatest of all the pictures in which these two favorites have teamed.

The story opens with Vernon Castles early career as a knockabout comedian with Lew Fields, and his first meeting with the then Irene Foote, who persuaded him to give up cheap comedy in favor of dancing.

How the two married on the proverbial shoestring, went to Paris and nearly starved before they got a start as a team, is revealed in delightful fashion. Their meteoric rise to fame in dance engagements which took them across two continents until their reputation was established as the outstanding dance duo of their time; the breaking up of the team when Vernon enlisted with the British forces on the outbreak of the World War and his untimely death in a Texas air crash, are main ingredients in a story which is depicted in impressive and tuneful fashion against typical backgrounds of the period.

Ideally suited to portray the roles of their noted terpsichorean predecessors, Astaire and Miss Rogers interpret many of the dances that the Castles created and made famous. The Castle Walk, the Castle Waltz, the Texas Tommy, the Tango and the Maxixe, are among the more spectacular of these routines, and they are presented in authentic reproductions of the cafes and ballrooms where the Castles had their biggest successes.

Nearly twenty-four of the most popular tunes of twenty-five years ago are also featured in the picture, either as background music, dance music, or as sung by the two stars. "Waitin' for the Robert E. Lee," "By the Light of the Silvery Moon," "Missouri Waltz," "Oh, You Beautiful Doll," "Darktown Strutters Ball" "Pretty Baby," and other hits of the pre-war period are revived in the film.

One current number, 'Only When You Are in My Arms," by Con Conrad, Herman Ruby and Bert Kalmar, is sung by Fred Astaire.

With this wealth of dance and song presentation, and with its absorbingly authentic story, "The Story of Vernon and Irene Castle," promises to be one of the most notable of modern screen offerings.

A brilliant group of players supports the two stars, with Edna May Oliver and Walter Brennan heading the featured cast as the Castles' booking agent and their faithful servant, respectively. Lew Fields, playing himself; Janet Beecher, Etienne Girardot, Donald MacBride, Victor Varconi, Douglas Walton, Frances Mercer and other well known players have important roles.

It is based on two books by Irene Castle, "My Husband" and "My Memories of Vernon Castle." Mrs. Castle lent her personal assistance to the reproduction of the many dances in which Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers impersonate her husband and herself.

"Ugly Duckling," is the title of a wonderful Walt Disney Silly Symphony color cartoon to be presented on the same program with the popular Belle Newsreel and "Pilot Boat' an unusual screen reelism. Another thrilling chapter of "Hawk of the Wilderness," serial will be presented this week-end.

Bette Davis Leaving

Bette Davis, who recently received the Award of the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences for the best performance of 1938 for her work in "Jezebel," is the star of "Dark Victory" the highly dramatic love story now at the Belle. Miss Davis also received the award in 1935. Playing opposite her in "Dark Victory" is George Brent, and the cast also features Humphrey Bogart, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Ronald Reagan, Henry Travers, Cora Witherspoon, Dorothy Peterson and many others.

ROYAL MESSAGE PROOF OF UNITY

Archbishop of Canterbury Comments on King's Broadcast

London, May 26 (CP)—The King's Empire Day broadcast from Winnipeg was described by the Archbishop of Canterbury today as "a striking proof that all nations embraced by the commonwealth are one family united in loyalty to the great heritage of freedom and love of peace."

The Archbishop, Rt. Rev. Cosmo Gordon Lang, made the remark in an address to Canadians gathered in St. Mary Woodnoth Church for the annual British Columbia service. The old church, in the heart of London, has been looked upon as British Columbia's church in London since 1936 when it presented an Elizabethan flagon to the Church of England Cathedral in Victoria on the occasion of the Lord Mayor's visit to Canada's Pacific coast.

The primate, who spoke of "accounts which have thrilled our hearts of Canada's enthusiastic welcome to their Majesties," said that during present anxious times there were disquieting signs that "our heritage might be imperilled, but loyalty to it will gain new strength in the resolve to defend it."

Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner in London, read the lesson. Sir Frank Bowater, the Lord Mayor, attended in state. Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, former Canadian Prime Minister, also was present.

Billy Hitchcock, now with Kansas City, has been tagged by the Yanks as Red Rolfe's successor at third base....Bill Patterson, Newark promoter, is angling for Buddy Baer to fight Roy Lazer soon.... Bill De Correvant, the Northwestern gridder, reeled off the century in 9.8 in an inter-fraternity meet.

BELOVED QUEEN

planned to see the race and have a family luncheon party. Both necessarily were cancelled.

Guns boomed a royal salute, however, and her Majesty was pleased with arrangements made by her sons. The King telephoned from Calgary and the Duke of Windsor from France.

Members of the Royal Family in London called. The Queen Mother chatted with two sons and her daughter—the Dukes of Kent and Gloucester and the Princess Royal, Countess of Harewood.

Carries Out Heavy Program.

Until the automobile accident on Tuesday forced the Queen to cancel all engagements, she had carried out a heavy program of public appearances. She set a record for royalty by attending eleven plays within three weeks recently. She was in the Royal box at Covent Garden on the opening night of the opera season.

Queen Mary helped out some London street traders who were in a quandary not long ago.

Street traders in the Cut, a busy Lambeth thoroughfare, found their business slumped since "the Lambeth Walk" became London's most popular dance. The street market in nearby Lambeth Walk boomed. The Cut people wrote Queen Mary, telling her their plight.

So her Majesty promised to give them a boost. En route to a special ceremony at the headquarters of the London County Council she drove through the Cut. The traders showed their appreciation by mobbing the Royal car and raising a deafening chorus of "Oi".

Known As Theatre Goer.

She is widely known as a theatre goer and a collector of antiques. Not nearly so well known, however, is her her intense dislike of ivy.

She objects to ivy on the ground that unless it is clipped it ruins brickwork and strangles trees. She made her views known on a recent visit to Stanmore, Middlesex, to see the King George V. Memorial Garden at Canon's Park Queen. Seeing some ivy growing on a wall, she prodded it with her umbrella and told the gardener it should be cut down.

"If I come back next year and it is still there I will clip it off," she added.

SOUTH ALBERTA

Louise Caroline Alberta, the fourth daughter of Queen Victoria and wife of the Marquis of Lorne.

Crossing into Walsh, their Majesties enter the area where farming and ranching are operated side by side. Cattle and sheep ranches spread throughout the southern areas into the foothills of the west.

Southwestward from Walsh lies the area where cattle once roamed in unfenced meadows. Advent of more farmers curbed operation of the open range. Some large ranches still exist but ranching is on a different basis than in the early days.

Before nightfall, their Majesties will have passed through the irrigated area of Brooks where water from the Bow River flows through ditches to nourish grains and other crops. They will miss Turner Valley oil field, 45 miles southwest of Calgary.

Banff National Park will be in its springtime glory when they reach there at eventide. In the Rockies 4,533 feet above sea level, the town of Banff is breaking into its summer splendor. Their Majesties will rest in Banff before heading westward toward the Pacific coast on Sunday.

In Calgary, special trains began arriving early in the morning, bringing in hundreds of farmers, ranchers and the usual quota of Indians and cowboys. Many of the latter came in wagons as they do annually for the famed Calgary Stampede. The streets were dotted with striding cowboys, wearing 10-gallon hats, checkered shirts and high-heeled boots.

OBITUARY

MARY JANE LIDDLE

After a week of illness there passed away on Friday morning, May 12, one of Dungannon's oldest and highly respected citizens, Mrs. James Liddle in her 80th year. The deceased had been in poor health a good part of the past winter and during the Spring and as her condition became more critical it became apparent that she might not recover.

Mrs. Liddle (nee Mary Jane McGregor) was born in Wollaston Township, Hastings County on June 16, 1859. Her marriage to James Liddle took place in 1882. They resided for a time at Bass Lake in Limerick Township. Thirty-nine years ago they moved to the farm east of Green's Corners where they continued to make their home. Reared in a fine home, Mrs. Liddle brought to her new surroundings the many cultural achievements for which she has been so well and widely known. Because of her many accomplishments she was able to give willing help and leadership in a great many ways. Taking an active part in the affairs of the community throughout her residence in Dungannon her help and adivce have been continually sought by her neighbors. There are perhaps few homes in the district where she has not ministered in times of sickness, freely giving of her services, sympathy and understanding. A great knitter throughout her life she has made an innumerable number of articles for children of the community and others as well. Always a lover of flowers her garden has been a paradise of colour from early Spring till late autumn for years. Many a sick room has been brightened by expressions of sympathy from her garden, sympathies made more tender because plucked by loving hands. Many a family in Dungannon has good reason to pay tribute to a fine Christian personality who in her quiet way gave so unstintedly of herself in practical Christ-like services.

Mrs. Liddle with her husband, while he was alive, was a loyal member of the Presbyterian Church at L'Amable, taking a leading part in its work and continuing in attendance at the services throughout the summer preceding her last illness. She has always made her home a centre of Christian influence over a long period.

The funeral service was held at the home Sunday afternoon, May 14. It was a striking coincident that this was Mother's Day. A very large group of people gathered to pay tribute to one who had not only been a good mother in her own home, but a mother to the community as well. It was also fitting that one who was a lover of flowers during her life should be surrounded by them as she lay in her casket. The service was conducted by Rev. W. J. Davis. Mrs. Davis sang very beautifully "No Night There."

A number of relatives and friends came from a distance to attend the funeral among whom were: Miss Isobel Henderson, Belleville, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Maitland, Picton; Mrs. Wallace Ruthreford, Colborne; Mrs. Clifford Gillespie, Grafton; Mr. George Campbell and Leslie, Castleton; Mr. and Mrs. Beryl Carman, Irma and Cecil, Eldorado; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Blakely, Bannockburn; Mr. R. J. Henderson and Carson, and Mr. and Mrs. Perry Paul, The Ridge; Mrs. John Rapson, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Andrews, Stirling; Mr. and Mrs. Everett Sine, Marvin and Marie of Harold; Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Liddle, Jamie, Ken Bruce and Margaret of Powassan; Mr. and Mrs. Percy Smith, Springbrook.

Interment took place in the family plot in L'Amable Cemetery, her body being carried to its resting place by five nephews and one grandson: R. J. Henderson, Perry Paul, Earl Smith, Ewart Rupnow, Leslie Campbell and Everett Sine.

To the immediate members of the family who remain, namely her two sisters, Mrs. Jas. Maitland, Kisbey, Sask; and Mrs. Andrew B. Cook, Vancouver, B. C.; two brothers, James and John McGregor of Kisbey, Sask; and Griswold, Manitoba; two sons, Charles of Dungannon and Edward of Powassan, Ont.; five daughters, Mrs. Thos. Andrews, (Jessie), Stirling; Mrs. John Rapson, Belleville, and Irene, Amy and Hazel at home; seven grandchildren and five great grandchildren, a wide circle of relatives, neighbors and friends extend their deepest sympathy.

START OPERATIONS TO RAISE SQUALUS

Dead Will be Left in the Sub Until it is Brought to the Surface

Portsmouth, N. H., May 26—(AP)—Turning temporarily from diving suits to slide rules, the Navy labored today at the task of raising the submarine Squalus and its burden of 26 dead.

Divers, resting after 60 hours of continuous work which saw the successful rescue of 33 survivors, were ready to begin anew the job of bringing the crippled $4,000,000 submersible to the top as soon as technicians give the word.

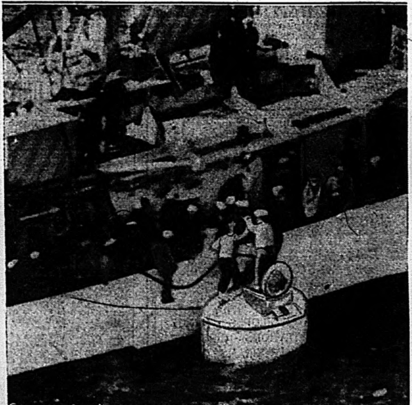
Actual operations, naval spokesmen said, will get under way as soon as delicate computations are completed and approved by the High Command in Washington.

Last night the doom of the 26 men still in the sub was sealed in finality with the scant report of a diver: "Opened after hatch. Found torpedo room flooded. Closed hatch."

That report apparently impelled the decision to halt salvage operations for the time-being to give technical experts a chance to decide upon the best procedure.

The bodies of the men will be left in their tomb until the Squalus is raised and towed 15 miles to the Navy Yard here, officials said, unless they interfere with the operations of divers, in which case they might be removed in the escape bell which brought their comrades up the 240 feet to safety.

Lieut. Commander Naquin, skipper of the Ill-fated submarine Squalus, is pictured here (facing camera) on the deck of the submarine rescue ship Falcon as he watched surviving members of his crew brought aboard after spending many harrowing hours trapped in the Squalus, 240 feet beneath the surace of the Atlantic. The Squalus sank during a test dive when the ventilating valve jammed and flooded the after compartments. (Phonephoto)



This remarkable airview shows the actual rescue of the submarine's survivors, with one of the men climbing out of the hatch of the rescue chamber which has just come to the surface alongside the salvage vessel, Falcon.

ASSAILANT GIVEN FIVE-YEAR TERM

Earl Sutherland at Napanee Sentenced for Assault on Jail Governor

Napanee, May 26—In police court yesterday, Earl Sutherland, inmate in the county jail, pleaded guilty to assault on Governor Harry Roe on Friday evening, May 12, and was sentenced to five years in the Kingston Penitentiary.

Magistrate E. J. Butler stated that he was satisfied the sentence was necessary to make the young man realize he had to behave himself. It was charged that Sutherland struck Governor Roe five or six times over the head with a steel bar when Roe was in the act of placing Sutherland in his cell for the night.

The injured governor was a patient at the Kingston General Hospital for ten days.

All the red man's cunning art went to produce the many gifts which were brought to a model Ojibway village laid out at Fort William for the King and Queen to visit when they stopped on their way west. The Queen showed great interest in this beaded basket, in the snowshoes, and queried one of the Indian mothers about the "pick-a-back" cradle in which she carried her papoose. The sturdy, graceful lines of birch bark canoes, drawn up on the bank of the nearby McIntyre River, caught the King's attention and he watched Ojibway braves skilfully paddling other canoes back and forth across the river.

Some of the survivors of the ill-fated submarine Spualus are shown on the deck of the Coast Guard cutter Harriet Lane as they neared shore at Portsmouth, N.H., following their dramatic rescue from their imprisoned ship 240 feet below sea level. The survivors among the 59 on board the submarine were brought to safety in a diving bell working in relays. (Phonephoto)

Nickel and Waite-Amulet were strong spot in the Base Metal group and in the Western Oils higher prices appeared for Home, Calmont, Vulcan and Davies.

Imperial Oil was about the only important exception to the advance in the Industrial section. Imperial backed up 1-2 to 16. Other big oils were up and price gains were boarded for the Steels, building stocks and liquors.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, May 26 (AP) — The stock market moved into recovery territory today with leaders registering gains running to two or more points.

Steels, rubbers and mail orders gave a good account of themselves. Rails did rather well, while coppers, aircrafts and motors shifted narrowly. Transfers were about 800,000 shares.

Requests Hunter And Drew be Heard

Ottawa, May 26.—CP — Public Accounts Committee of the Commons today received a telegram from Horace T Hunter, President of the Maclean Publishing Company, asking that it hear him and Col. George Drew in answer to charges made before the committee.

The request was referred to the Steering Committee. Chairman W. A Fraser (Lib. Northumberland) said he could see no reason for not granting the request.

The committee is investigating the circumstances of a contract for 7,000 Bren guns given by the Defence Department to John Inglis Company, Limited, Toronto. The contract was critised in a Maclean's Magazine article written by Colonel Drew. General L. R. LaFleche, Deputy Minister of National Defence, in his evidence on Wednesday referred to the "traitorous conduct" of some condemning the contract.

Alex Kyle, Tony Duncan To Meet in Final

Hoylake, England, May 26 (AP)—Alex Kyle, Scottish cloth designer today eliminated Bill Holt of Syracuse in the semi-final round of the British Amateur Golf Championship. The score was 2 and 1.

Tomorrow Kyle will meet Tony Duncan, an officer in the Welsh Guards for the title. Duncan put out Charles Stowe, English miner, 3 and 2, in the other semi-final after eliminating Dick Chapman of Greenwich, Conn., 5 and 3.

The championship was won a year ago by Charley Yates, Atlanta, Ga., who was beaten by Chapman in the third round this year.

Light Offerings Raise Butter Price

Toronto, May 26.—Butter to the wholesale trade showed advanced prices on the Toronto open produce market Thursday, according to the Dominion Department of Agriculture. Eggs remained weak.

Light offerings were readily taken up under good demand in early trading on the butter market, and dealers raised prices in the afternoon session. Fresh receipts continued to arrive in small volume when compared with last year, and supplies cleared fairly well without difficulty. While sales were recorded at 20 3-4c in the morning, the market for Ontario creamery solids closed at 21c for No. 1 grades and 20 1-4c for 38 score. Prints held unchanged at 22c to 22 1-2c for top grades and 21 1-4c to 21 3-4c for 38 score.

Prices were shaded down on a quiet egg market. Receipts were in fair volume and were slow in moving with the dull trading. Ungraded eggs declined to 17c for grade A large, 15c for medium, 14c for B's and 13c for C grades. Graded shipments closed out the day at previous levels.

MAN RE-ARRESTED SOON AFTER RELEASE

Two hours after he had been released from custody on a charge of assault, John Martin, 42 year old Toronto transient, was again arrested in Belleville on a much more serious charge. Martin is alleged to have indecently insulted a local youth and was remanded in custody.

Last night Martin attacked Lorne Sanford of this city on Victoria Park, and was arrested on a charge of assault. Today in police court Martin pleaded guilty to the assault charge, but denied improper advances to the lad he assaulted. Martin was given a two months' suspended sentence after being convicted of assault and allowed his liberty.

Two hours later police were informed that Martin had made improper advances to a youth and he was again arrested and lodged in the county jail on remand.

VATICAN URGES STEPS TO PEACE

General Meeting of Powers or Bilateral Talks Suggested

Vatican City, May 26—(AP)— A Vatican news service said today that Papal diplomats had suggested to Europe's principal foreign offices that peaceful solutions to Europe's difficulties might be found either through a "general meeting of interested powers" or through a series of bilateral talks.

The news service said "The Holy See has limited itself to using normal diplomatic channels to invite interested governments to consider in a pacific spirit the present serious international moment and to seek with peaceful intentions the solution of grave questions which currently hang over the world."

"The Holy See," it continued, "has not entered in any way into considerations and specific appraisals of questions which are today subjects of discussion and international controversy.

"But it has instead insisted, for general and moral reasons inspired by the well-being of humanity, that the enormous trial of a war which there is reason to believe would be more homicidal than that of 1914 should be by all means avoided.

"Regarding practical proposals, the Holy See limited itself to recalling that the peaceful examination of the questions may be obtained either by a general meeting of the interested powers or by examinations two by two limited to the nations which are involved in various particular questions."

DEDICATE CANNON USED IN WAR OF 1812

Fort Erie, Ont., May 26—(CP)—A cannon captured by the Canadians in an engagement at Niagara Falls, N. Y., in the war of 1812 and later used for years as a hitching post will be dedicated in an international ceremony at Williamsville, N. Y., next Tuesday.

For many years the cannon stood in front of the home of the late Dr. William Douglas in Fort Erie and two years ago it was given to Post 71 of the Canadian Legion which in turn presented it to the Williamsville branch of the American Legion for a parade at Buffalo.

For Tuesday's ceremony, the color party of Post 71 will head a group of Fort Erie veterans going to Williamsville. The ancient field piece, used to defend Fort Erie after its capture from the Americans, will be mounted on a gun carriage.

BLAME DEATH ON 15-FOOT FALL

Albert Milne is Found Unconscious in Areaway

Toronto, May 26 (CP)—A 15-foot fall from a window ledge of a young woman friend's apartment is said by police to have resulted today in the death of Albert Milne, 27. Investigators say he was trying to enter the apartment of Daisy Warbutton, 26, when he lost his balance. He died within a few minutes.

Constable John Robertson found Milne, unconscious, in an areaway after Miss Warbutton complained a young man had been bothering her. The young woman later told officers she attended a theatre with a friend. On their return to the apartment they heard a noise at the rear.

They went out, Miss Warbutton returning alone and preparing to retire when she heard someone at the bathroom window. This she locked and later refused to answer a loud knocking at the door. Then she heard a noise at the kitchen window which opened on to the fire escape.

Rushing into the kitchen in her night attire, she saw two feet swinging through the window and informed the man that if he attempted to enter she would call the police. She dressed and went to call an officer, according to her story.

She told reporters she had known Milne for some months. "It is a terrible accident. His mother was devoted to him and I hope she will not become ill through this." Milne had been unemployed.

GALATEA II WINS AT EPSOM TODAY

R. S. Clark's Brown Filly Hangs Up Second Classic Triumph

Epsom, England, May 26—(C P—Cable)—R. S. Clark's Galatea II, a brown filly by Dark Legend from Caladay II, today won the Oaks for three-year-old fillies to hang up her second classic triumph of the season. White Fox finished second by a head with Superbe third three lengths farther back.

Galatea II, winner of the one thousand guineas April 28 and 10 to 11 odds-on favorite today, outgamed Edward Esmond's French-bred White Fox in a neck-and-neck duel up the hill to the finish while the Duchess of Marlborough's Superbe, a 20 to 1 outsider, came out of the ruck in the stretch to place.

JIMMY BRUEN OUT OF TOURNEY

19-Year-Old Irish Florist Defeated by Alex Kyle One Up

Hoylake, England, May 26—(CP)—Alex Kyle, a Scot who knows no fear of sand traps, defeated phenomenal Jim Bruen, 19-year-old Irish florist, one up this morning to provide the feature of the quarter-final round of the British Amateur Golf title hunt.

Into this afternoon's semifinals an Englishman, Welshman and march with the Scottish cloth designer.

Bill Holt, of Syracuse, N. Y., kept United States hopes alive with a 3 and 2 victory over Kenneth Thom, 17-year-old English school boy, after Tony Duncan, a Welsh army officer, had upset Dick Chapman of Greenwich, Connecticut, 5 and 3. The other semi-finalist is Chas. Stowe, miner from the English midlands, who scored a one up decision over Sam Roberts.

Draft Dodger Ready "To Face the Music"

New York, May 26.—(AP)—Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, No. 1 "slacker" of the United States, was back in the land of his birth today, confined to an army prison cell and admittedly ready to "face the music" for evading the Great War draft.

Bergdoll was arrested yesterday on a charge of desertion as he arrived aboard the liner Bremen from Germany. He was hustled to Governor's Island where 19 years ago he was convicted as a deserter, dishonorably discharged from the army and sentenced to five years in a military prison.

Military authorities said he would be held a prisoner pending investigation. Immigration authorities were instructed by Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, to give the army precedence in the case, even though a bill which would exclude Bergdoll from entry into the United States still is pending in Congress.

ARCHIVIST TO WRITE BOOK ON ROYAL TOUR

BRITISH FORMULA

ain, France and Russia if any one of them were attacked. In other words the territorial integrity of each would be guaranteed by the other two. In addition, the three powers would pledge themselves to cooperate in the defence of every nation which has received guarantees from any one of them—Poland, Rumania, Greece and Turkey.

More significant still is a provision that the three nations would cooperate in the defence of any neutral power which asked assistance in the event of aggression.

Covers Every Corner

If those terms are accepted by Russia and France, it would bring about the widest and most comprehensive commitment Britain ever has given in Europe. The British formula would cover every corner of Europe where aggression might break out.

France arranged to hand the text of the proposed three-power pact to Jakob Suritz, Soviet ambassador to Paris, at the same time set for delivery of the British copy in Moscow to Foreign Commissar Vyacheslaff Molotoff.

Since the proposals were worked out after conferences in Geneva among Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax, Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet of France and Ivan Maisky, Soviet Ambassador to London, British officials believed it would meet with Russia's approval at least on main points.

Agreement in Ten Days

Hope was expressed in official circles for a definite agreement within a week or ten days which would add Russia to the Anglo-French front.

A suggestion that Prime Minister Chamberlain should make an official visit to Moscow to strengthen British-Russian friendship still further was made by David Adams, Labor member of Parliament.

He gave notice he would ask the Prime Minister June 5 in the House of Commons "whether, in view of his public declaration before the Munich conversations (of last September 29) that it was of great benefit for heads of states to confer personally, he has considered or will consider the desirability of making an official visit to Moscow."

GERMANY HOPES TO PREVENT BLOC

Press is Instructed to Refrain from Attacking Soviet Government

Berlin, May 26. (CP)—Evidence that Germany still hopes to prevent an alliance linking Russia with Great Britain and France was seen today in careful Nazi Press efforts to avoid putting any blame on the Soviet for what Nazis call the effort to "encircle" Germany.

Instructions went out to the German Press to refrain from attacking the Moscow Government during the present period of negotiations for a mutual assistance agreement between the Soviet and the Western democracies.

An outstanding symptom of the Press attitude was a conciliatory half-page editorial on page one of the Westdeutscher Beobachter of Cologne, official Nazi party organ in the Rhineland.

Paralleling this was the German attitude of reserve, for the time being, toward extension of the German-Italian military pact to include Japan.

But if Prime Minister Chamberlain and Joseph Stalin come to terms, a new political constellation would be regarded as having come into being and Germany would feel she had to reply—possibly with a triple alliance of her own, including Japan as well as Italy.

GLOUCESTER DRINKS TO HEALTH OF KING CHARLES II

London, May 26 (CP)—The Duke of Gloucester drank to the memory of Charles II today during a visit to the Royal Hospital at Chelsea where he inspected 400 "Chelsea pensioners".

In a brief speech the Duke said: "I am sure you will drink to the memory of your founder, Charles II, and to the success of this Royal hospital. In such a toast I will join you and wish good luck to you all."

The Duke drank beer which he described as "our national beverage".

Coupled with the protest was a demand that there be no further molestation of French shipping.

The action was taken by the French naval commander in Shanghai, who delivered the protest to Japanese naval authorities.

USES PLANE TO SERVE SUMMONS

Indian Woman is Charged With Having Illegally Moose Meat Out of Season

Timmins, Ont., May 26 (CP) — Game Warden Phil Boudreau travelled by airplane today to the remote Kamiscotia Lake district and served a summons on 70 year old Maggie LeClair, an Indian, ordering her to appear in court here on Tuesday to face charges of illegally having moose meat in her possession.

Boudreau attempted to reach Mrs. LeClair's home by water last week but was forced to turn back when within six miles of his objective.

It is charged that because the woman is married to a white man she is not allowed privileges under the game laws which usually are accorded to treaty Indians.

Meanwhile, it was announced by court officials here that a mental examination had been ordered for Alex. Waitaishak, 46 year old hermit, who was arrested yesterday by Boudreau on charges of selling moose meat and trapping muskrats out of season.

BUND LEADER IS HELD FOR FORGERY

Fritz Kuhn Arrested While Taking Lunch at Roadside Inn

New York, May 26 (AP)—Protesting "it's all nonsense," Fritz Kuhn, leader of the German-American Bund, was jailed today on charges of forgery and grand larceny of $14,589 in connection with Bund activities.

Kuhn, motoring with three companions to Chicago and Milwaukee, where he was scheduled to speak today and tomorrow, was arrested yesterday in a roadside lunch room at Krumsville, Pa., by detectives who trailed him from New York.

Kuhn was accompanied by Gustav Elmar, national organizer for the Bund, Thomas Dixon of New York and Gerhard Wilhelm Kunze of Astoria, N.Y. Kuhn waived extradition. Kunze and Dixon continued their trip, one purpose of which they said was to open a Bund camp at Milwaukee.

The Bundsfuehrer was indicted late yesterday on twelve counts. District Attorney Thomas Dewey said conviction could result in prison terms totalling 50 years.

POLICE COURT

"I am told this man did only what the average individual would have done under similar circumstances," revealed Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K. C., as he suggested leniency be shown John Martin, 42-year-old Toronto transient, who appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler K. C. today charged with common assault. Martin pleaded guilty and was given a two months suspended sentence.

At first Martin pleaded not guilty when charged and the prosecution asked for a remand. "The officers making the arrest are off duty, sir," explained Chief Kidd.

"Why is the case listed then?" asked His Worship.

"I understand the complainant in this case made some gross accusations and called this man names, which prompted him to strike the accused," revealed Mr. Donnan after he had talked with Martin, who later pleaded guilty as charged following his conversation with the Crown Prosecutor. Martin was charged with assaulting Lorne Sanford on Victoria Park last night.

Police investigations revealed Sanford had spoken to Martin and the latter struck Sanford with such force that he fell into the Moira River.

Melville Thompson, Belleville, was fined $10.00 and costs for operating a motor car with licence plates which had been issued for another vehicle. On a second charge Thompson was fined $10.00 and costs after being convicted of driving a motor vehicle without having a driver's permit of the current year. Both cases arose out of police investigations which resulted in the apprehension of Thompson on May 20th. The accused was given a fortnight in which to raise the assessed fines and costs.

Reg. Moncrieff, manager of the Company, today notified police of the incident. Subsequent investigations proved the padlock and hasp on the front of the door had been pried off, but no entrance had been effected, it was disclosed after careful examination of the building. The marauders are believed to have been frightened off prior to gaining entrance.

Canadian National Railway police requested assistance in the possible recovery of a pair of trousers and other articles of wearing apparel reported to be stolen from a bridge and building boarding car near Kingston yesterday. A transient was blamed for the theft.

Atkinson, secretary of the Municipal Board of Education, Kingston, and Mr. F. R. Had not such assistance been so freely given by the Kingston committee prior to and during the visit, the work of the Belleville committee would have been made doubly hard.

More Tulip Blooms

First, it was hollyhocks, then it was the number of strawberries on a stem; then someone balanced three billiard-balls atop each other and the public became interested. Now it is the largest number of tulip blooms on a stem.

A few days ago, a resident of Macdonald Avenue stated she had three perfect blooms on one branch. Yesterday a Marmora resident came forth with the information that he had four handsome tulips growing on one stem.

Today the record is broken. On the lawn of Fred Fudge, 29 Yeomans Street there grows a handsome tulip bearing five pretty pinkish colored flowers in full bloom, on one stem.

Ho Hum! Who has one bearing six blooms?

When Lightning Strikes

By BEN BROOKE

If Jerry Howard had not been so altogether good to look upon, so interesting because of his very critical, amused attitude toward life and so adored by the two aunts who had presided over his home since he had been left an orphan at 15, perhaps no attention would have been paid to his lack of interest in girls. Given looks and wealth and youth the public is always annoyed at the refusal of a young man to marry.

"We'd like to see your wife in this home before many years, Jerry," little Aunt Lida often said to him as they sat before the library fire after dinner, Aunt Susan busily knitting across from them. "We're getting old and it's silly to pretend we'll be here forever. You need—"

"I've got all I need," Jerry protested gaily, kissing her affectionately as he arose to pace up and down the rug. "Don't worry—and don't drag any more girls here, you two frauds! There's been something impossible about every one of the four! Now I come to think of it, the things I most dislike in girls were embodied in those four! The first one simply strewd things all over the place and since I've had years of your orderliness that came hard on me. Another one told me everything I said, did or thought was utterly wonderful, and if there's anything I dislike it's hypocrisy or stupidity. Seems to me another one was boisterous and noisy, and you've taught me to like quietness and peace. But that last one, Laura—"

"Any woman," he continued, as he got out a cigarette and lit it, "any woman or girl who deliberately puts on a pink hat tells the world that she is irresponsive to all beauty, and weak and frittering mentally! It absolutely kills attractiveness. Laura was quite nice until she would go and put on that hat of hers, and I always ran when I saw it. I couldn't be happy with a girl who offended me in these ways. I'm selfish enough to want it in my wife."

Aunt Lida looked at Aunt Susan and Aunt Susan looked back. Each tried to speak and failed, and finally they spoke together, half fearfully. "We're—we're terribly sorry, Jerry," they got out, "but we have another visitor coming tomorrow! Her grandmother is an old friend of ours and Marion is on her way out West, and we thought we'd like to see her—we—"

Jerry Howard burst out laughing. "Cheer up!" he cried. "I'll be exactly as nice to your guest as I can. I'll do everything the perfect host should do except fall in love with her!"

Nervously the two aunts awaited Marion's arrival. And 30 minutes after she came they were swamped with woe, almost in tears.

"Whatever shall we do for 10 days?" Aunt Lida queried of her sister when Marion had gone to her room. "Did you ever see anyone who bounced around more or laughed so much or had such a funny nose? And her hat went into one chair, her bag into another. And what was it she said as she grabbed up that silver-framed picture of Jerry?"

"She said," quavered Aunt Susan tremulously, "she said right out: 'Isn't he adorable! Is this Jerry? Oh, I think he's splendid!'"

"And," concluded Aunt Lida in a hushed voice, "her—her felt hat—it was that shade of p-p-pink!"

At dinner that night when Jerry was home to meet their guest, tears came to the eyes of Aunt Susan. For Marion with the impish face was a bundle of laughter and talk. She told Jerry frankly three times he was marvelous.

The next morning when Marion appeared in sports clothes, she was wearing the pink hat, and she danced off to meet Jerry approaching in his runabout. His smile, in view of the hat, his aunts decided, was nothing short of heroic. All that day they suffered vicariously with Jerry driving his lively visitor to the country club and the golf links, pink hat, laughter and chatter for eight hours at a stretch.

"It's pitiful!" they told each other that night after the two had returned. "From his manner one would never dream what he is going through!"

For the rest of Marion's visit they dutifully picked up after her, endured the radio and shut their eyes to her choice of colors. For she seemed fond of that shade of pink and it was frequent in her wardrobe. They found to their surprise, however, that they were sorry to have her go when the last day of her visit arrived. There was something about the child which had stolen into their hearts, her gayety, her real sweetness, her saucy face.

"Before Marion goes," Jerry told them, "we want to tell you that she's coming back again—to stay! I expect you can't believe it for I'm hardly able to myself—to think that a perfectly wonderful girl like herself should ever care for me!" Drawing her closer, he kissed her. The pink hat brushed his face, but the seemed unaware of the fact. It dawned on the aunts that he did not even know it was pink. That was what happened to a man when the lightning struck!

"She was just made for you, Jerry!" the two little old ladies chorused. And meant it.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was trying to fix his cigar lighter with a hopeful expression and ma said, These new hats the women are wearing, really, Willyum I mean really, they defy exaggeration, they make me laugh.

They give me an acute pane, it's proberly the difference in our temperaments, pop said. It seems to me the darn things ought to be illegal, I mean there are laws against selling the products of prison labor, so why is it okay to flood the markets with contraptions that are turned out in asylums for the weak minded? he said, and ma said, Willyum you've caught the nale by the head, that's precisely what they seem like. Sally Jardin was wearing one at the bridge game today and without exaggeration it caused one unanimous snicker.

SOMETHING ON A BASKET OF FRUIT

I'm glad I missed it, and by gollies I'm glad to see one member of your sex right here in my own family sufficiently well ballanced to distinguish between hats and fireworks, pop said, and ma said, Well naturelly, just because I'm a woman I dont have to lose my sense of proportion. This hat of Sally Jardin's was eactly like something you'd expect to see tied on top of a basket of fruit. She had just paid $22 and 90 cents for it but she admitted she didn't have the type of head to wear it, so all the other ladies tried it on and I was the only one that just seemed to be made for it, so she agreed to sell it to me for 10 dollers if her husband doesn't object, and I'm hoping aganist hope that he doesn't, ma said.

But yee gods, you said the thing was a freak, pop said, and ma said, Well of course in a nice way, but that has nothing to do with its becomingness has it? and pop said, A little while ago I'd of said yes to that question but now I'll mask my ignorance in a cloak of silence.

Wich he did in back of the sporting page.

STRESSES REALITY OF INSTITUTIONS

Frontiers of Freedom Are Internal and External, Says Hon. C. Dunning

Montreal, May 25.—(CP)— The frontiers of freedom are not only external, Hon. Charles Dunning, Minister of Finance, said today in a convocation address as McGill University conferred on him the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

"The struggle is internal also", he said. "Our very liberty degenerates into licence and producers disunity and confusion, then we will be in danger of losing our freedom as others have lost theirs."

There should be a cultivation of an understanding of the value and reality of our institutions of ordered liberty and of our unique system of self-government.

Royalty is Personal Link

"During this month we have a special reason for reflecting on these things because of the presence among us of the human personal link between us and all the peoples of those democracies which comprise the far-flung British Commonwealth of nations. His Majesty, the King, and His Gracious Queen are daily showing to Canadians the real meaning of our bond of free citizenship.

"More than this, they are demonstrating, by their lives of service and devotion to duty, those qualities which we all must emulate if our frontiers of freedom are to be maintained."

Mr. Dunning said he did not share the views of those who say no frontiers open to youth today. There never was a time in history when the frontiers of the arts and sciences were broader or offered greater diversity of possible achievement.

Problems Roads to Opportunity

To the pessimists who saw no hope for youth because of today's great problems, came the answer of all history—that these problems and difficulties are the real pathways of opportunity in every walk of life. In the fields of transport, communication, chemistry, medicine, indeed all the sciences, there were frontiers awaiting the keen imaginative intelligence and courage of young men.

"Just as steel which has not been tempered by fire has no strength, so the life which has not been tested by problems and difficulty will never know the real glory of achievement."

All who went out from the university would have "one great bond under God" in common. They would be united in democratic citizenship, in mutual responsibility for maintaining and broadening the frontiers of human liberty under laws made by and for the citizens themselves. These things must not be taken for granted.

TWO ARABS KILLED

Haifa, Palestine, May 25 (AP)— Two Arabs were killed and three others wounded today by shots fired into an Arab crowd at the Port Easter railway station. Arabs blamed Jewish assailants.

The automobile from which the shots were fired allegedly was stolen from Yechiel Weizmann, brother of Dr. Chaim Weizmann, head of the World Zionist orgaization.

Belleville Cheese Board Million Dollar Industry

Average Person Knows Little of Workings of This Board

HOW IT OPERATES

A million dollar a year industry whose business roots stretch deep into the rural heart of this central district comprising the counties of Hastings and Prince Edward, which for sixty years and more has been carried on in Belleville without strikes, walkouts or the fanfare of other industrial effort, has started yet another season in the same old stand

It is the Belleville Cheese Board whose board of governors is recruited from the ranks of the rural dwellers of the section, whose executive is made up of the buyers of Belleville, Napanee, Kingston and Campbellford, in turn generally buying for some important Montreal firm, or a well known importer across the sea; buyers who quote glibly the sum of a million dollars or more spent each year in the purchase of the product of Central Ontario's greatest industry.

It is a little understood organization by the majority of residents of Belleville; a little better known perhaps by the residents of the immediate countryside to whom the trickle of golden dollars originally changed from the pounds and shillings of Britain, comes as the result of the sale of their milk and the golden yellow cheese turned out in the cross-roads factories

Famed and Recognized

But to businessmen of Britain and other parts of the Empire, the name of the Belleville Cheese Board is one that has gained fame and recognition, emblazoned high on the business scroll of the Old Country, a name that for generations has stood for the best that can be had in this particular product. Belleville has long been synonymous with good cheese and this proud name has long withstood the siege of even stiffer competition which has been entered the past several years, when cheese from other parts of the Empire has flooded the overseas market

Proud has been the store keeper or the tuck shop owner of the British Isles to advertise the fact, that he has on sale genuine "Belleville Cheddar Cheese," and eager have buyers of the Old Land been to pay a slight premium on this better made, better matured and flavored product. Strangers to Canada invariably come with the impression that Belleville is the hub of cheesemaking of Canada, a reputation which has been justly and well earned. No better paid propaganda could be had than the advertising the City of Belleville has gained from a million placards on the counters of Britain's shops for generations past.

Belleville Cheese Board came into being—at a date which is still uncertain in the minds of many of the oldest buyers—when rural dwellers turning the first Cheddar from their country vats sought a regular and convenient method of disposing of their make at stated intervals. Thus the Belleville Cheese Board was born. Buyers and impuorters of the British Isles were no less quick to avail themselves of the facility of a regular cheese auction to procure their needed consignments generally through some local buyer well acquainted with the trade. Since then, without interruption, the weekly sales have been carried on.

Fifty-Six Factories on Board

Today the Belleville Cheese Board numbers some seven officers of the executive body, an average of twelve buyers and a total of approximately fifty-six factory representatives and salesmen from the combined counties Its regular weekly trading is a complicated auction in which cheese is sold to the highest bidder who selects the choice needed from the numbered factories. These are posted on the board with their registered number and name. The total number of cheese for sale each week is also posted.

This year for the first time since the inception of the Board the weekly trading date has been changed from Saturday morning to Thursday evening. This is to conform with the request of the Montreal Trades and Provisions Association which group of exporters found the mid-week date more suitable for better handling.

Just Confused Auction

To the uninitiated or those who merely stroll in to watch the Board engage in its weekly selling, it is a confused auction of voices and bids. Previous to the official opening by the president, there is a low hum of conversation as buyers and salesmen enter and seat themselves, prepared to buy and sell, or refuse to accept the bid offered.

Before the ruled board on which appear in print the names of fifty-eight cheese factories, with registered numbers is seated the secretary and the president. Secretary F. R. Mallory toys with a rubber band, riffles papers before him, searches through the files for correspondence which is to be submitted to the brief meeting previous to cheese offering. President W. H. White engages in low conversation with some factory representative who wishes a point explained, or some subject brought before the meeting for general discussion Buyers enter, one by one, seat themselves at desks ranged before the board, search vest pockets for pencils, look diligently through the little blue books for some quotation of last week or the week before. Behind sit the fifty or more factory representatives or salesmen, who are to offer the cheese for boarding Blue books are everywhere. They are the most familiar badge of both buyer and seller. Others of the audience, not members of the board by virtue of being either salesmen or buyer, are seated without the inner circle, reporters, shipping firm representatives, telegraph messengers and invited guests

There is a preparatory clearing of the throat by the president as the hum of voices subsides to a whisper.

"Gentlemen," asks the president, "is there anything to be brought before the Board?' Have you any correspondence, Mr. Mallory?"

"None this evening. Mr President," informs Mr. Mallory.

"Have any of you gentlemen anything to bring up for the Board's attention?" asks the president, addressing the salesmen

"How about stencils on the boxes, are they being changed this year?" asks one factory representative.

"We have had no advice to this effect," replies the secretary. "All we know is that the cheesemaker must print his number and vat number clearly and legibly, with the date also, or the cheese are going to be sent back to him to have it done over again."

Occasionally some distinguished official of the Dominion Department will visit and address the Board. At other times presidents of other boards are welcomed by the Belleville president. Occasionally some knotty point is threshed out in half hour discussion. On fewer occasions buyers register a complaint of sorts against make or freighting conditions. All matters are settled amicably.

Cheese Registered

Previous to the general meeting, generally brief in nature, names of factories are called out by the secretary, their weekly offering then chalked on the board against the allotted registered number and name.

"Shannonville—60; Bronk—52; Cloverdale—100 ...."

"White or colored?' asks the secretary, his chalk hovering over the ruled column.

"Enterprise, 30 colored..... Stirling 60, white...... Waupoos, 49 white," call out the salesmen, the numbers of which are droned in reply by the secretary These names and numbers in ruled columns on the board are duplicated in the little blue books. Buyers and representatives alike record each entry. The list of factory names is finished. Each factory and the number of cheese for sale has been registered. The president looks expectantly as the last entry is made by a buyer.

"Gentlemen, we are now to offer the cheese for sale; what is your first bid?"

A Risky Business

There is a slight pause. Bidding on this week's cheese and guessing on next week's prices in the British Isles is risky business. The buyer stands to make a slight profit or a heavy loss. It is a complicated matter of high finance, involving the state of the market in the British Isles, two weeks or more from the present date, the matter of exchange on pound sterling, and whether another war scare is to intervene before the cheese are actually sold abroad. In this bidding local buyers are often helped by last minute advices received by cablegrams from abroad or telegrams from the chief exporting firms at Montreal.

"Nine and nine-sixteenths," snaps a buyer. And, under his breath, "I'm sorry I can't make it more...."

"Nine and nine-sixteenths," immediately respond other buyers almost in unison

"Mr. McCreary was first. I believe," declares the president nodding to W. R. McCreary. "Mr. Murphy, Mr. Taylor, Mr. Fraleigh next."

Mr. McCreary as first bidder, has his option of choice He may select any amount from the board, with a minimum limit of so many cheese also set.

Makes His Choice

Thus he calls out the factories, which indicate his choice. Each factory number is registered in turn by the secretary and other members of the Board. He continues until he has completed his quota or until he is interrupted by another buyer advancing another bid of a sixteenth or an eighth of a cent higher. He has called out the number of a factory whose cheese some other buyer has decided upon. Mr. James Cook had advanced the higher bid, and the first choice of factories is open. Mr. Morton has followed Mr. Cook with a statement of the same bid immediately and thus will have second choice. If Mr. Cook's selection does not interfere with the factories needed by the second or even the third buyer, then no further advance will be made. Occasionally a buyer shows a preference for the colored cheese boarded, and may bid a fraction of a cent higher.

In a low chant the buyer who has bid the highest calls out the factory numbers, "16, 24, 23, 49, 2, 17." '16, 24, 23......" repeats the secretary in low tone, recording the numbers.

On Thursday of this week cheese sold at nine and nine-sixteenths and nine and one-half cents a pound. A total of 880 white and 776 colored cheese were offered by the salesmen of the various factories. Each cheese weighs in the neighborhood of ninety pounds. This total constitutes a tidy weekly payment which will be made out by the buyers to the factories, and accounts for the million dollars or more which is paid out each year on the Belleville Board for cheese.

The last selection has been made. All cheese offered on the board have been bid upon. Seldom if ever is any cheese left. The secretary arises. Against the name and number of each factory the price is drawn in chalk and a simple heiroglyphic is annotated by him. This it will be learned is the initial of the buyer who made this selection.

Takes Price

"The price," announces the secretary, if just one price has been registered, "is nine and one-half cents." Shannonville? "Yes,' responds the salesman, indicating he is satisfied with the price paid, and the buyer, who has purchased. A check mark is made by the secretary, and the name of the next and succeeding factories is called, to be answered by the representative with 'yes' or 'no,' the latter indicating that the price is not satisfactory and that the cheese will be held until the next boarding.

Thus, weekly is carried out a business which in terms of pure industrialism, if located in Belleville within a brick-walled plant, would be the city's biggest factory or shop. But in the City Hall each week this million dollar industry is completed within the space of an hour or so, big business of which the man in the street is probably unaware.

Shannonville

Shannonville —A local garage proprietor believes he has discovered the world's meanest person. Last week he purchased new flags to place in front of his garage in honour of the visit of the King and Queen. A morning or two later when he arrived at the garage he found that his flags were a minus quantity and he was minus his good nature. However he hopes that the person or persons who graciously removed his flags will use them for a good purpose.

The beauty of summer was never better illustrated than it was in the district on Monday evening. The birds chirping in the trees, the water as smooth as glass and looking really beautiful when the moon started to shine, the flowers in full bloom and the trees seeming to fairly glow with their recent addition of bright green leaves. A number of local residents were seen availing themselves of the excellent weather facilities to row up and down the Salmon River.

Mr. Gordon Johnson spent Monday in Toronto where he saw the King and Queen and also gained a view of the famous Dionne Quintuplets. Mr. Alfred Little of Milltown also was in Toronto over the week end.

Mr. Ross Fuller of Oshawa spent the week end at his home in the village.

The rain that fell on Monday and Tuesday brought big smiles to the faces of district farmers who had been worrying over the continued absence of this "million dollar" rain as the farmers described it.

Local school children had a holiday on the twenty-fourth and were noted enjoying themselves to the utmost playing baseball and other sports.

Mrs. William Doxtator and Master Billy McCarthy spent the week end in Kingston the guests of relatives and also saw the Royal entourage.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. MacFarlane, Mrs. Olive Mayell and family, Mrs. W. White, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Liddle, Mrs. Edith Liddle and Pearl, Mrs. Allan MacDonald were among district residents present in Kingston on Sunday.

Master William McCarthy, young lad of the village, will always remember the King and Queen. When the King and Queen were passing in front of where he was sitting he jumped up in his seat and shouted "Hello!" The King and Queen looked at the young lad and smiled and according to Mrs. Doxtator, the lad's grandmother, the crowd started to cheer very lustily at this kind act of the Royal pair. Billy was undaunted when questioned by curious persons who saw the interesting sidelight in the lives of the King and Queen of Canada. He remarked "I went to see them, didn't I?"

Will Protect Shipping Along China Coast

London, May 26 (CP)—The government is considering plans for the protection of British shipping along the China coast, Richard Butler, Foreign Under-Secretary, told the House of Commons today.

The government takes "a very serious view" of the incident in which the British steamship Ranpura was stopped by a Japanese war vessel near Hong Kong last Wednesday and already has made "a protest in the strongest terms" to the Japanese naval authorities, Mr. Butler said.

SAYS HOSPITAL STAY TOO LONG FOR INDIGENTS

Kept in Wards Because There is No Other Place for Them to Go, Charges Controller Conboy, Scoring Waste

SURVEY RESULTS GIVEN

Toronto, May 26—Numerous indigent patients were being kept in Toronto hospitals for much longer periods than necessary, Controller Dr. P. J. Conboy charged last night, and the taxpayers of this city were being forced to shoulder a large portion of these additional hospitalization costs.

The reason why these patients were not being discharged from the hospitals, he said, was because the indigents had no other place to go to. And so they were being kept in spite of the fact that they needed only ordinary, and not medical, care.

Dr. C. O. Broad, reporting to the Board of Control yesterday his findings following a survey of city-paid patients in hospitals, warned that patients were being admitted to hospitals who should not be inmates of general hospitals. Such patients included those who were senile and slightly ill because of old age.

Out of 300 long-stay cases in Toronto hospitals, all of which had been studied by Dr. Broad, the board was advised that 147 had been taken from the active lists and discharged to their homes and to various institutions. Awaiting accommodation were 45 indigents, 39 others were to remain in the hospitals for a short time only, and the remaining 66 public ward patients required indefinite further treatment in hospital.

Long Waiting Lists

Dr. Broad was recently appointed by the City Council to check up on long-stay patients in Toronto hospitals and to report on what action, if any, might be taken to reduce the annual hospitalization bills which the municipality had to shoulder for indigent patient care.

"I found that large numbers of patients could be discharged to institutions with lower rates than in general hospitals," Dr. Broad reported, "but in none of the mental hospitals, sanatoria, incurable or convalescent hospitals, is there adequate accommodation to handle the numbers that are now clogging general hospitals and preventing to an astonishing degree their efficient operation."

While general hospitals were thus obstructed with chronic patients, Dr. Broad continued, they had long waiting lists and, in many cases were unable to provide much-wanted accommodation for indigent patients who were actually ill. On the waiting lists at the present time were 800 indigent patients, which situation gave little chance of reducing hospitalization costs because no matter how fast the public beds in the hospitals were emptied they were being filled almost immediately.

No Reduction Seen

Controller Conboy last night contended that Dr. Broad's work had already shown that no time must be lost in providing additional accommodation, outside of, the general hospitals, for convalescent and chronic patients. If this outside accommodation were provided, he felt, it would not cost the taxpayers as much as to keep the indigent patients in the general hospitals.

"And until such time as the long waiting list of indigent patients is reduced," Dr. Conboy said, "it does not appear that the city will be able to effect any great financial saving as a result of Dr. Broad's work."

Why the Weather!

By Major A. H. Theissen

Science Service Meteorologist

Rainfall and water supply! One of the easiest ways to conquer a city is to cut off its water supply. A city so placed where local water (springs and wells) is available can hold out longer than one dependent upon a municipal supply brought from a distance. Engineers, in planning a water supply for a city, study rainfall and evaporation data for all points in the catchment area. They plan for a continuous supply, and to do this they take account of the variation of the yearly amounts and the character of the seasons. Some places have ample yearly amounts but a whole season may be almost rainless.

Present for King Given to Queen By Excited Girl

Calgary, May 27 (CP)—Two flustered Indian children got all tangled and gave Queen Elizabeth a gift that was intended for the King, it was learned last night.

Seven-year-old Holy Spring, a boy and five-year-old First Snae, a girl, planned to present their "great white father", with a beaded medicine bag to be used as a "tobacco bag", said White Headed Chief Medicine Man of the Blackfoot tribe and the children's grandfather.

"But the children were excited," he said. "The queen was very kind and took the gift."

BUFFALO STEAK SERVED PARTY

Expected King Will Motor Up One of the Mountains Ringing the Hotel

By R. K. Carnegie
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Banff Springs Hotel, Alta., May 27—(CP)—The King and Queen arose this morning with an open mind as to how they should spend the day. Members of their party expected the King would motor part way up one of the mountains ranging the hotel and continue with a walk in the high altitudes.

Their Majesties decline to map out their program ahead of time. They have been living to a schedule for 10 days and wish to get away from it. They had a walk together around the hotel last night and retired early after dinner at which Buffalo steak was served.

The Earl of Eldon is the enthusiastic fisherman of the Royal party. Soon after the Royal train pulled in late yesterday he went trout fishing with Captain Michael Adeane and they were successful in catching three fish which they had for breakfast.

Include Janitors to Ministers In U. S. Church Pension Plan

Cleveland, May 27—(AP)— Recommendations for extension of a church pension plan to apply to all employees, from janitors to ministers, went before the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. today.

By extending its pension system, the church hopes to avoid inclusion in the United States Social Security Act. Impending proposals presented to Congress would make the Act applicable to churches.

The General Council recommended a church-wide adoption of the employees' pension plan to cover a small percentage of lay employees—such as janitors and secretaries—who are not now included in benefits.

Another proposed change in retirement and pension rules would make it mandatory that a church employee retire on accepting a pension. Commissioners said this proposal would prevent retired ministers who draw pensions from continuing to preach.

POLICE CORDON SURROUNDS HILL TO EFFECT ARREST

Bill Casseleman, Aged Recluse, Wanted in Connection with Death of Prospectors

BELIEVED IN HIDING

Bodies of Two Men Found in Lake Confirm Belief Men Were Slain

Sudbury, Ont., May 27 (CP)—Inspector A. R. Knight posted a cordon of Provincial Police and other searchers around a tall hill near Lake Wahnapitae today, in a belief that Bill Cassleman, wanted in connection with the death of two Sudbur prospectors, might be hiding somewhere up the wooded incline.

All night little groups watched district roads and old log trails for some sign of Cassleman, who, Inspector Knight said, will be charged with shooting Gilbert Bennett and Wilbur (Tom) Sawyer and dumping their bodies into the murky waters of the lake. The inspector was expected to come to Sudbury, 34 miles west of the lake, to swear out a murder warrant some time today.

The inspector was confident that Cassleman, an aged recluse, would come out of the woods eventually into the clearing on which his rambling farm stands. If he doesn't, bloodhounds will be put on his trail in an effort to rout the old man from his haunts of 35 years.

Senate Votes for Unified Management of Railways

Conservative Majority in Upper House Endorses Report

MANION OPPOSED

Ottawa, May 27 (CP)—Conservative Leader R. J. Manion re-affirmed his opposition to unification of railways in the House of Commons yesterday as the Conservative majority in the Senate endorsed a report favoring unification.

Speaking in support of a government bill to compensate railway employees displaced or demoted as a result of co-operative economies between the two railway systems, Dr. Manion declared unification impossible and co-operation the only constructive policy. While the Upper House followed Conservative Leader Meighen in voting for unification, Dr. Manion said continued talk about unification only delayed effective measures of co-operation.

The opposition leader made no direct reference to Senator Meighen except to quote him on the point that unification would not wipe out the deficit of the Canadian National Railways.

This was in answer to newspaper criticism directed against himself for an earlier statement to the effect there was no solution to the railway problem if by solution was meant the elimination of deficits.

Preaching Impossible.

QUINTS TO HAVE BIRTHDAY CAKE FOR CELEBRATION

So Enthralled Over the Visit to Toronto Little Girls Forget About Birthday

FAMILY TO BE PRESENT

Callander, Ont., May 27 (CP) — After much to do about cakes, currants and candles, it has been decided the Dionne Quintuplets will celebrate their fifth birthday tomorrow with one large angel cake. On it will be studded five candles.

The quints still are so enthralled over their trip to Toronto last Monday to meet the King and Queen, they didn't bother much with arrangements for the milestone celebration. But for others, selection of the cake was the biggest headache.

Miss Grace Demers, grand aunt of the quints and their dietician, suggested five little cakes with five candles on each. One of the nurses favored one large currant-crammed cake with five clusters of five candles—25 in all.

The children want to return to Toronto in their white organdie gowns but instead they will wear their regular "Sunday frocks" and remain in their nursery. Each will have one candle to blow out—and the candles will be supported in rosebud-shaped holders, gifts of Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, their physician.

When the time actually comes, the children probably will be as excited as when they kissed the King and Queen in the Ontario Legislative Building. They will play hostesses to their mother and father, and seven brothers and sisters.

Keith Munro, business manager of the children, said greeting cards and presents have arrived from all parts of the world.

Although he won't admit it, Dr. Dafoe probably will nibble a piece of the birthday cake and consider it a double celebration. For May 29 he will reach one of his own milestones. Born in Madoc, Ont., the country doctor who gained fame overnight will be 56.

FOUR PERSONS KILLED

Birmingham, N.Y., May 27 (AP)—Four persons were killed today when an automobile hit three pedestrians on a highway near the Pennsylvania state line, then careened into a tree and killed one of its occupants. The identified dead, all of Riverside, where the fatalities occurred, were: Richard Tyler, 16, Betty Cole, 14; and Raymond Cole, 17, her brother. The fourth victim is unidentified.

CHERRY TREE FLOWERS BUT NEVER BEARS FRUIT

Woodstock, Ont., May 27—(CP)—An unusual cherry tree, which flowers but never produces fruit, is owned by Tom Meadows, Woodstock. The large blossoms, now in bloom resemble small white roses. Meadows said he had been told to drive nails in the tree as a means of making it produce cherries but that he feared damage to the tree. The nails, he said, gave the tree iron and helped produce the fruit.

GOEBBELS SOUNDS "FINAL WARNING" TO MANY POWERS

Every Blow to Encircle Germany Will be Answered With Deafening Counter Blow

INCREASE ARMY

Berlin, May 27 (AP)—Propaganda Minister Paul Goebbels sounded a "final warning" today for powers seeking to "encircle" Germany and said "Every blow of this front will be answered by us with a deafening counter-blow."

Goebbels' declaration followed a statement of the Institute for economic inquiry that while Germany has become Europe's leading industrial producer, its economic machinery is straining under the severe load of the four-year plan for economic self-sufficiency and a tremendous armaments burden.

The drive for increased military power advanced another step with issuance of directions for putting into effect Chancellor Hitler's program for creating a huge "shadow army" of the nation's manpower not already under arms.

Under the program, those not in the armed forces would be trained under supervision of S A. (Nazi Storm) troops. The announcement today laid down plans for division of various "shadow" troops under army, navy or flying divisions of the Storm Troops. The new training schedule is to start Oct. 1.

"We have warned enough," Goebbels said in a long exposition on "encirclers" in Voelkischer Beobachter.

"Nothing more remains for us than to look the facts in the eye and to make our counter-moves. How the thing will develop further no one can say at the moment. In any case, the Democratic encirclement front would be ill-advised if it continued further on the way already traversed."

Windsor Controller Conservative Nominee

Windsor, Ont, May 27 (CP)—Majority of economic problems facing Canadians can be solved within the framework of the British North America Act, according to Hon. H H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce in the last Conservative Government and former leader of the Reconstruction Party.

Addressing the convention of the "Essex West Conservatives Association last night, Mr. Stevens said the Liberal Government had wrongly blamed the B.N.A. Act for cramping its efforts to improve conditions in the country. Arthur J. Reaume, Windsor controller, was named over two opponents as the Conservative candidate for the riding in the next Federal election.

BRISTOL BEAUFORT HAS TOP SPEED OF 300 M. P. H.

Great Britain Will Start Mass Production on Twin-Engined Bomber Soon

NEW DEVELOPMENT

Six Warplanes on Secret List Shown to Group of Parliamentarians

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 27 (C.P. Cable) — Great Britain is ready to start mass production of the world's fastest twin-engined bomber, the Bristol Beaufort with a top speed of higher than 300 miles an hour.

Every month sees a steady stream of warplanes delivered to the Royal Air Force, ranging from the giant bomber Wellington which can carry two tons of bombs a distance of 3240 miles to the single-seater Spitfire with a top speed of 350 miles and mounting eight machine guns.

The Beaufort is a new development which is still on the secret list and the air ministry declines to give its performance figures. But this much is known—it is the fastest twin-engined bomber in service in any country and is designed as a bomber, torpedo bomber or long-range reconnaissance plane.

It carries a crew of four, has a mechanical gun turret amidships and mounts other guns forward. Its speed is in excess of 300 miles an hour—perhaps considerably in excess.

5 MORE WANTED 'IN VICE RING'

Two, Who Eluded Arrest, Are Believed to be in Canada

Buffalo, N.Y., May 27 (AP)—United States authorities sought today to apprehend five persons under indictment in an international "white slave ring case", as seven others faced hearings on charges of conspiracy to violate immigration laws.

Assistant United States Attorney Norman Kirchgraber said he had information that at least two of the persons who eluded arrest yesterday in a series of raids were in Canada, and that steps would be taken to pave the way for their extradition.

Four men and three women meanwhile, had been arrested and jailed following their indictment in connection with what was termed an "international white slave ring" centering in Niagara Falls, N.Y.

United States Attorney George Grobe said the "ring" transported girls from Canadian communities to the New York State resort city. He said "a gang of young fellows' attended dances in Canadian cities and towns and persuaded girls they met there to come to the United States, where the girls were placed in houses of prostitution.

Some of the girls, Grobe said, were from Sudbury.

King and Queen Rise by Inspiration To Heights of Historic Occasion

London, May 27—(CP Cable)—In their triumphal progress through Canada, the King and Queen have shown that kingship and democracy may go together, the Daily Telegraph said today.

Under the heading, "Peaceful Triumph," the newspaper declares that scenes through which Their Majesties have passed since they arrived in Canada eight days ago and the enthusiastic welcome accorded by eager and delighted crowds could not have been ordered. The spontaneity of the enthusiasm had come straight from the heart and it made light the effort of the tedious journeys and the strain of long vigils in unkindly weather for the privilege of greeting the Sovereigns face to face.

"The occasion has been in its exceptional nature a trying one for the King and Queen and it must have been made more onerous for them by such wholehearted reception on the part of their Canadian subjects," the Telegraph said.

"They may well have had a natural misgiving lest they should be unable to satisfy all the expectations which their visit, so entirely without precedent in the annals of the Empire, has raised. Such misgivings would, it is now beyond all doubt, have been entirely superfluous.

"Their Majesties have risen as if by inspiration to the heights of this historic occasion. With unfailing graciousness, sympathy and sincere simplicity they have won all hearts. They have invested regal dignity with warm, touching humanity which has made all who have seen them feel indeed that 'we are all of one household,'" the phrase used by Prime Minister Mackenzie King in welcoming Their Majesties in Quebec.

Nazis Accelerate Efforts to Include Japan in Axis

Britain Concentrating on Welding Russia's Red Army Into Forces Pledged to Counter Aggression

DETAILS NOT GIVEN

New Proposals for Three-Way Pact Laid Before Molotoff Late Today but Contents of Note Not Made Public

London, May 27 (CP)— Britain's diplomacy concentrated today upon welding Russia's Red army into the forces pledged to counter aggression in Europe despite warnings in the German press that the Fascist powers would meet efforts to "encircle" the Reich with "deafening counter-blows."

The possibility was seen here that the Nazi warning might imply accelerated efforts on the part of the nazis to meet the inclusion of Russia in the Anglo-French bloc by bringing Japan into the Rome-alignment.

This possibility, however, has not caused any great alarm in Whitehall as Tokyo has shown no inclination to take on responsibilities which might involve her in European affairs. The anti-aggression bloc is understood to be concerned only with European aggression at the present stage.

Meanwhile the British proposals for a mutual assistance pact joining Russia with the Anglo-French anti-aggression bloc are in the hands of the Soviet government and the Kremlin's acceptance is expected.

To Attend War Exercises

Also in the hands of the Russian government is an invitation for the Soviet War Commissar, Klementi Voroshiloff, to attend British war exercises next September. While it was quite possible the Red army chief himself might be unable to attend, it was considered likely some high Soviet official would come in his place.

The Daily Herald (Labor) predicted that Anglo-Soviet staff talks would not await the visit of a Red army official to England. "The intention is to start them immediately," the newspaper said.

Reports of the detailed content of the proposed pact so far were contradictory and usually inaccurate, the paper said, and suggested that as the proposals are only now in the hands of the Soviet government, it is unlikely that official circles have disclosed its terms.

Mutual Assistance

The pact has been reported to provide mutual assistance in the event of any of the three signatories being attacked, assistance to any power whose integrity has been guaranteed, and staff talks among the three powers.

Moscow, May 27 (AP)—Great Britain's new proposals for a British-French-Russian mutual aid accord were laid before Foreign Commissar Vylacheslaff Molotoff late today.

Sir William Seeds, British Ambassador, delivered the proposals and it was understood that French Charge d'Affaires Payart delivered an identical note, thus emphasizing full Anglo-French agreement.

The proposals were not revealed here and Soviet officials would not comment.

SNEAK THIEVES STEAL ROYAL ROSE BUSH

Ex-Alderman William Parrish, who resides on Colborne Street, neatly and reverently planted a rose bush this week in commemoration of the Royal visit of Their Majesties, King George and Queen Elizabeth, to Canada. Mr. Parrish viewed with satisfaction the planting of the rose bush and the day following watered the plant well feeling the plant would always remind him and his family of the graciousness of Their Majesties. Forty-eight hours later, however, the royally planted rose bush was missing. Sneak thieves of the lowest type uprooted the rose bush and stole it some time Thursday night, Mr. Parrish informed city police today. Not undaunted, however, Mr. Parrish assured the authorities he would replace the stolen bush with another, planted in commemoration of Their Majesties' visit to Canada in 1939. "I hope they'll leave this one alone," commented Mr. Parrish.

SALES OF BREAD INCREASE IN COUNTRY

Bakers are busier since warmer weather started, and sales of bread and cake have risen more than one-third over those of colder weather, it is stated by one local firm, supplying both city and immediate district. Increased business is particularly noticeable in the rural sections where farm wives are busy with other duties.

"Just about one out of ten farm housewives bake bread any more, and with these it is not a regular procedure," stated the baker. "They have the same advantages now as their neighbors in the city, electric refrigerators, electric ranges and so on, and they eat just as much cake and buns as the city folk do. Old-time farm cookery is pretty well dying out," he adds.

CONSIDERABLE BUILDING GOING ON IN THE CITY

ASPARAGUS GLUTS MARKET TODAY

Price Drops to 10c to 15c Per Pound as Big Supply Offered

EGGS STEADY

Asparagus to the right of them—asparagus to the left of them — asparagus in front of them. That about sizes up the main feature of the city market today as the delicious Spring vegetable descended on a Saturday morning shopping public in the largest quantities of the season.

The bottom practically dropped out of the asparagus market however, as drastic declines from last week's quotations were noted. Choice stock sold generally at fifteen cents per pound with inferior qualities offered at ten cents per pound bunch and in some cases three bunches for twenty-five cents.

The unexpected drop in prices was attributed by veteran vendors to the early influx of imported stocks and the fact that the general public, that have any kind of a garden spot at all have been growing their own supplies during the past two years.

The market generally was a colorful exhibit. The gay shades of flowering plants and blooms lent an added touch to the greens of new Spring vegetables. A brilliant May sunshine with high temperatures attracted a large crowd of Saturday morning shoppers and business was fairly brisk during the early morning hours.

Prices Generally Unchanged

Price tones remained fairly firm with little or no change being noted from last weeks quotations, with the exception of course of asparagus. Eggs held fairly steady with extra "A" selects selling at twenty-three cents per dozen and slightly inferior qualities, at twenty-one and twenty-two cents. Mediums could be procured for twenty cents per dozen.

The chicken offering was decidedly below par today. Broiler chickens headed the slim display with choice young weighty birds selling at top prices of $1.25 per pair. Others could be procured according to quality and weight from sixty-five cents per pair upward.

Yearling birds were priced from 90 cents to as high as $1.25 with fowl ranging from 65 cents each.

The outside market provided a colorful display. New spring vegetables, onions, radishes and lettuce moved briskly at 5 cents a bunch with large bunches of fresh rhubarb selling at the same price. 5 cents got you bunches of new watercress.

Brilliantly colored pansies, glowing in contrasting shades, were offered at 15 cents per small box with zinnias and petunias selling at the same price. Wild trilliums added a white touch with long green ferns supplying a verdant woodland color. Long-stemmed tulips in varying shades were offered at 15 cents per large bunch.

Healthy looking tomato plants stout of stem and in full leaf were quoted at 75 cents per flat of one hundred. Strawberry plants sold at 40 cents per hundred with cabbage and cauliflower youngsters selling at 40 cents per hundred. Raspberry canes priced from two to three cents each according to brand.

Potatoes $1.35 a Bag.

Winter vegetables were scarce, although some good quality parsnips, carrots and turnips were available at 45 cents per bushel. Potato prices were steady with good quality 'spuds' offered at $1.35 per 90-pound bag.

Fresh whitefish and lake trout featured the fish display with both selling at 20 cents per pound with a slight additional charge for slicing and filleting.

Mudcats were quoted at 15 cents per pound and pike at 10 cents for the same quantity.

No change was noted in young pig prices. A plentiful supply was available selling at from $5.00 to $6.00 each.

Dancing Skill of Miss Forster's Pupils Pleases Large Audience

Cleverly Designed Costumes by the Teacher and Grace of Young Pupils in the Dance Routines Merit the Highest Praise

A VARIED PROGRAM

Belleville Collegiate Auditorium was filled to capacity last night for the annual dance recital of pupils of Miss Mary Forster and the huge crowd in attendance was carried away with enthusiasm aroused by the grace and beauty of the young performers. From little tots, only a few years removed from the cradle age, to senior pupils who displayed the finish and skill of years of training, the dancers delighted and captivated the audience, and the affair added another brilliant success to the events sponsored by Miss Forster.

The program was arranged in an original and novel fashion introducing unusual dance routines and costumes whose beauty and cleverness of design merited highest praise. Miss Forster's talent in designing was never more apparent and the dainty costumes, so gay and colorful, were a splendid example of her excellence in this art.

The recital last evening had plenty of variety in its arrangement. The gifted young pupils exemplified tap dancing in all its phases and passed from this type of dancing to the beauty and charm of the ballet, beautifully presented in toe dancing and in many versions of the classic style. The costumes for the ballet numbers were especially beautiful and appealing. Traditional dances were not neglected and the pupils proved themselves adept at the art of Highland dancing with the Highland Fling, the Shean Trews, the Sword Dance and a swing style of Scottish dance, "Truckin' in the Heather" with a bit of "peckin'" thrown in for good measure. Acrobatic dancing of incredible skill, and solo creations for tap dancing were other highlights.

The first part of the recital was based on a calendar of the year, the important event in each month being expressed in dancing. New Year's babies introduced the year, and these dancing dolls captured all hearts without a struggle. This number introduced tiny stars in the ascent. The youngest of them all was Shirley Fox, only three years of age, who later appeared in a charming solo dance, "Beginner's Luck" while little Shirley Maracle, the soloist of the babies, and seen later in "Honolulu", promises to be one of the city's leading dancers. From the first to the last number, a military tap in honor of their Majesties' visit the recital presented a bewildering array of interesting numbers, the show moving swiftly without a pause.

Gentlemen of the ensemble as well as the girl dancers were keenly admired and one of the features of the evening's program was the presentation of several numbers by the Bongards, Mary, Gerald and George. Two dramatizations added to the variety of the dance routines, "Stolen Moments" by Mary Lou Pigden and "Hat Check Girl", featurnig the singing of Jimmie Cowan and Madeline Walden with Miss Walden as dance soloist. The roller skate tap by Miss Geraldine Farrar was another remarkable performance that won prolonged applause.

During the evening a musical monologue by Miss Ines Forster, pupil of Miss Joan Maraskas, was splendidly interpreted.

Miss Mary Forster and Miss Antoinette Forster were presented with handsome bouquets, as was Mrs. Grace Leeman, pianist on whose skill much of the success of the show depended. Throughout the evening individual dancers also received nosegays and bouquets from parents and friends.

New Style Uniform for British 'Tommy Atkins' on View Here

Only Model in Canada on View at Deacon Shirt Co. —Has Blouse, Long Trousers and Canvas Leggings

MORE COMFORTABLE

Britain's famous "Tommy Atkins" will forsake his conventional tunic, breeches or slacks, and puttees, when the next war comes.

Instead he will wear a "battle-dress," a khaki uniform that consists of a blouse, windbreaker style, long trousers, and canvas leggings, approximately six inches in length.

The only model in Canada, of the new uniform, approved by the British War Office is at present in the factory of the Deacon Shirt Company here.

It shows the comfortable roomy blouse, fastened at the waist with a wide belt-strap. Two patch pockets are placed on the breast while the six buttons are concealed by a fly. The trousers are of ordinary width and fasten at the bottom with a cloth flap so that the new canvas leggings can be worn. On the upper part of the left leg is a large patch pocket with a similar smaller one being placed on the right leg of the trousers.

Shoulder straps are worn. The uniforms will be worn by officer and private alike with the former wearing his badges of rank on the epaulettes.

With the statement a few weeks ago by the British War Office that it would need clothing of this nature to the amount of one million pounds, Canadian manufacturers are optimistic that a percentage of the contracts will be placed in this country. Tenders for a large amount of this clothing were placed in Ulster, North Ireland, recently.

Mr. Reg. Hinchey, Deacon Company's designer stated yesterday in showing the new battledress to interested spectators, that the garment is of simple construction, roomy, and will afford the highest possible comfort to "Tommy Atkins" while on the march, or in action.

Reg. Hinchey Composes New March Number

Called 'Kibocema' in Honor of Kilties Band

Author of many stirring march compositions, Mr. Reg. Hinchey, former bandmaster of the Belleville Municipal Band and veteran of the famous Belleville Kilties organization that brought world honors to this city years ago, has achieved what he terms his masterpiece in the composing of the "Kibocema" March.

This rollicking march tune has been composed by Mr. Hinchey in honor of, and in dedication to the members of the Ex-Members Association of the Belleville Kilties Band, when they gather here next month for their second annual reunion.

The title, while sounding odd to the layman's ear, is composed of the two letters of the first word, and the initial letter of the remaining ones in the title, "Kilties Band of Canada, Ex-Members Association."

The melody carries bars of many famous Scottish tunes that will be readily recognized by those who hear it. It has a swinging martial aid, and will no doubt prove popular in military band circles. It has been in rehearsal by the Belleville Municipal Band, itself an affiliate of its time-honored predecessor, and members of that organization have placed their stamp of approval on it.

The new march will receive its first public airing at the Grand Concert to be held in Victoria Park on Sunday, June 18th, when the local band will be augmented by a large number of the visiting members of the famous old organizations, the most of whom since their appearance with the T.P.J. Power band, have made a name for themselves in musical circles of the world.

Pictures of Ex-Wardens To Adorn Committee Room of Shire Hall

Photographs of ex-wardens of Hastings County will look down on gatherings of present and future bodies in the newly decorated committee room at Shire Hall, if present plans materialize.

Efforts will be made in the immediate future to procure photographs of the heads of the county bodies as far back as possible. County Clerk Erle Denyes stated today. These, it is believed when hung individually on the attractive cream-colored walls of the room, will not only enhance its appearance but add a touch of distinction.

The room, interior decoration of which was recently completed, now presents a bright attractive appearance. The ceiling is finished in a light shade of cream, with the walls decorated in a slightly darker color while the burlap wainscoting is done in a dark brown effect.

EYE-WITNESS RECALLS CRASH OF 21 YEARS AGO

Was in Camp Taliaferro 3rd When Capt. Vernon Castle Lost Life—Capt. Castle Remembered Here as Instructor at Deseronto Camp

"He flew as he danced. Put twenty or forty machines in the air at once and you could pick him out as easily as anything."

Thus did former Corporal Engine-Tester W. C. Rowsome, R.A.F., now a mechanic at the Riggs Motors, Pinnacle Street, pay tribute to the flying ability of the late Captain Vernon Castle, who crashed to his death in Camp Taliaferro, 3rd, Texas, in 1918 after spending several months at the air base at Deseronto as flying instructor.

The late Captain Castle and his wife, Irene Castle, who achieved international fame and fortune as the outstanding dancing couple in the world prior to the war, were well known to a large number of Belleville residents. Mrs. Castle is now the wife of Major McLaughlin, famous American sports promoter and present owner of the Chicago Black Hawks, National Hockey League team.

Mr. Rowsome took a few minutes from his work this morning to unfold a dramatic story of the sudden death of the late Captain Castle.

Eye-Witness of Crash

"Always a lover of the dramatic," he said, "Castle was in the air giving final instructions to a cadet before he ventured on his first solo flight. As the machine glided toward the ground, another cadet took off, cross-wind. In order to avoid the crash that seemed inevitable, Castle zoomed at a sharp angle. Unable to control the machine, he attempted a dangerous side-slip, and crashed to the ground from about one hundred feet The cadet was not injured.

"We carried him to an ambulance but he died enroute to hospital."

"He was a grand fellow," Mr. Rowsome said. "The men fairly worshipped him. He knew flying from A to Z and his loss was keenly felt by all of us at Taliaferro."

"Flying conditions were extremely hazardous in this particular part of Texas at that time," Mr. Rowsome said. "Treacherous cross-winds and currents played havoc with flying, and we lost several men. I have seen our wind-indicators, three of them at different angles within a radius of one hundred yards. Our instructors told us that the field was at the junction were air currents from the north met those of the Gulf Stream."

Pictures of the spectacular crash, the plane and other features connected with the late Captain Castle are now on display outside the Belle Theatre. The life of Mr. and Mrs. Castle is being shown in the feature picture now offered at the theatre.

Police Blotter

Two minor accidents happened on city streets yesterday, one when a bicycle collided with a motor car and the other when a motorcycle did likewise.

Early last evening Frank Thorne, 79 College St., was proceeding westerly on West Bridge St., when the motorcycle which he was riding was in collision with an automobile driven by Mrs. A. E. Geen, 114 West Bridge St., at the intersection of Cedar and Bridge Sts. Mrs. Geen was making a lefthand turn into Cedar St., at the time of the collision. The motorcycle was damaged as Thorne swerved the machine sharply and it crashed to the pavement. Thorne fell off injuring his left leg somewhat.

While riding his bicycle near his home last evening, Bruce Foster, 12 Everett St., escaped injuries, when the bicycle ran into the rear of an automobile operated by David Tobe, 225 Coleman St. No damage or injuries resulted.

Belleville police were asked to seek the recovery of three teen-aged boys who escaped from the Bowmanville Training School early yesterday. All incoming freight trains were carefully watched, but no signs of the wayward youths were forthcoming.

No arrests were reported locally during the past 24 hours leaving the cell block available for the ten transients who sought shelter at the police station last night.

THE BONDHOLDER

A shabbily dressed man recently appeared before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee's hearing on the Wheeler railroad bill. First he explained that he represented stock and bondholders whose securities totaled $26,000.

Chairman Wheeler expressed some impatience at his appearance on behalf of such a small group. Other committee members, noting his frayed cuffs and unkempt shoes were inclined to ignore him. Finally, however, Mr. Wheeler asked if he were a stockholder and what his holdings were worth. "Yes," the stranger admitted, "I own about $635,000 worth."

The only moral is that owning railroad stock ain't what it used to be. The witness apparently couldn't afford to buy a new suit for his Senate appearance.— (Detroit Free Press.

Capital Close-ups of Week

(By Ross Munro)

Ottawa, May 27—CP—Parliament grapples again with the railway problem in the session's dying days but the major developments are intra-party differences. There appears to be only a meagre chance anything will be done about the rail question this year.

A behind-the-scenes sensation was caused when Senator Arthur Meighen, Conservative Leader in the Upper House, wrote a minority report of the Senate Railway Committee findings and urged unified management of the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways.

The bombshell exploded when he told the Senate he could not support the party's railway policy which opposes unified management.

On the other hand, there also is a feud among Liberal leaders over the same railway problem. Senator Raoul Dandurand, Government chief in the Senate, brought the majority report from the committee which urged continuation of co-operative measures between the two railroads and this is understood to clash with the view held by many members of the Government.

Several Cabinet Ministers do not sympathize with the co-operative plan and did not want the committee to report along that line. Lengthy Cabinet meetings are reported to have been held.

Ottawa Sidelights

Senator C. P. Beaubien (Con. Quebec) has a greater flair for the dramatic than any other member of the Red Chamber. His gestures and inflections of his voice make his speeches theatrical masterpieces. It's a real show when the Outremont Senator gets on his feet, particularly when he is driving home a point concerning the railway question.

His elaborate delivery, however, annoys Senator James Murdock, the Liberal from Toronto. A former Labor Minister who does not stand on formality, Senator Murdock astounded the Senate the other day with the caustic comments, "Can the comedy."......

Robert Finn (Lib. Halifax) came back to the Commons this week after a months illness. A. E. MacLean (Lib. Prince) is still in hospital recovering from an operation. The two Maritimers' greatest regret is missing the Royal visit and the presentation of M. P.'s to their Majesties at the Parliamentary Dinner.

Laughter is recorded in Hansard, the official record of parliament, as "some Honorable Members: Oh, Oh."

Sparks Street scene: John MacNicol (Con. Toronto Davenport) jingling a handful of change on the crowded main street of the Capital, looking for a large cent to weigh his close-to-300 pounds......Country scene: Health Minister Power sitting with his wife on the running board of their car outside a roadhouse near Ottawa eating double-dip strawberry ice cream cones one bright afternoon.

No spectators or newsmen are permitted in the galleries of the Senate or the Commons during the first few minutes of each daily sitting—that is the time for prayers.

Corridor Gossip

Speculation about Cabinet changes is the talk of Parliament Hill again and the latest rumors maintain that Fisheries Minister Michaud will drop from the Government. His successor as New Brunswick representative in the Cabinet is not likely to take the Fisheries portfolio. The next Minister even might be from the Pacific coast. The position of Deputy Minister of Fisheries has been vacant for nearly six months and some difficulty has been encountered in selecting a man.

Monetary experts in the Commons who champion the issuance of large sums of currency to aid in stimulating the Canadian economy have run into a stone wall again this session in Finance Minister Dunning's insistence that the Government will continue to follow strictly orthodox financial practices.

Mr. Dunning describes his policy as "an expansionist policy of easy money" and appears little impressed by the lengthy arguments of the Social Crediters and even the C.C.F. group that special currency issues should be made....

There is only a remote possibility of Prime Minister Mackenzie King accepting a knighthood following the Royal Tour if one is offered him, in the opinion of Parliamentary observers here. He has been consistently opposed to such honors for Canadians during his regimes as Prime Minister and it is unlikely he will make any concession even under these particular circumstances....When Parliament winds up there is going to be a great exodus of tired M.P.'s to vacation spots for a few weeks' rest. Dr. Manion is already planning a rest in some holiday retreat......

Postmaster General McLarty won his spurs as a new minister when he piloted his estimates through the Commons with the ease of an old-time front-bencher. It was quite an achievement for him to become so well versed in his department's complex administration in the few months he has held the portfolio....

Capital Personalities

One of the treats around the centre block these days is to drop into the Banking and Commerce Committee and hear Graham Towers, Suave, imperturbable Governor of the Bank of Canada, say just what he wants to and no more.

By devious questions, various committee members seek to have Mr. Towers express opinions on such matters as public works spending and desirability of inflation but he always answers: "I think I should refrain from expressing opinions on matters of Government policy."

Daniel C. Roper, new United States Minister to Canada, at his first public appearance at a luncheon here displayed that valuable ability common to U.S. public men of being able to read a speech yet make it appear an extemporaneous utterance.

But he departed from his prepared script to tell about his conversation with the King concerning Their Majesties' forthcoming trip to Washington and New York. "I did not tell His Majesty, however, that I was afraid there might be some doubt about the Queen getting back to England," he laughed.

KALEIDOSCOPE OF SCENERY AND PEOPLE

Canadians are so accustomed to long distances that they do not often think of the extent of Canada from ocean to ocean. It is only when a great event or series of events takes place that they fully appreciate the great moving scene in Canada.

While Their Majesties are now at Banff the thought is borne home to every Canadian reader, that they are many hundreds of miles from where they were the first of this week. On Monday they were in Toronto. Yesterday they were in Medicine Hat, and reached Banff at the close of the day.

Since the King and Queen left Toronto on Monday, they have passed through New Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta, They have crossed a province a day. So much for Canada's spaces and the long journeys of the Sovereigns.

Day by day the character of the country changes with some of the characteristics of the people as the royal visitors have been travelling across Canada. They have seen elements in the provinces west of Ontario they did not see in this province. In Eastern Canada there is greater formality but in the west this is largely gone in a carefree sense which does not bind itself so much to custom. It British Columbia they will see another province with its peculiarities. Then they will look out over the Pacific.

On their way east they will pass through another area of the west, re-enter Ontario, then after a tour of the oldest portion of the United States, they will enter upon the last stage of their visit in Canada, through Quebec entering Canada by way of Rouses Point, N.Y., and then to New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia, and finally to see life on the coast of Newfoundland, the old colony of England.

Everywhere is distance, everywhere is vastness, everywhere is variety, everywhere is history taught in the life of the people and everywhere welcome and acclamation extended to the Sovereigns.

In spite of Canada's vast extent the visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth will see respresentative Canada. there is no station but has had crowds to greet and wish godspeed to the fleeting royal train. From the farthest north have come trappers and Indians to acknowledge and greet the rulers. Children have been transported many miles to great central gatherings.

The King and the Queen have seen and are yet to see much of Canada and the Dominion's people have flocked to pay homage.

HEROES

Those who go down to the sea in ships invariably give a noble account of themselves in times of peril. It was so in the case of the men trapped off the coast of New Haven, on the ocean floor forty fathoms below the surface in the submarine Squalus. Immediate realization of their dilemma left them courageous to meet their fate whatever it might be. There was no disorder, no panic, the captain gave his orders calmly and these were obeyed as trained seamen obey. Each and every man lived up to the highest ideals of American seamanship.

What that heroism meant can only be realized by those who know what life on submarine is like. Their valour was matched by their rescuers who conducted operations from the relief ship above or went down as divers to the rescue of the living imprisoned men. A job for heroes this was, and it was carried out with so perfect a method that every living member of the crew was brought up safe to the surface. Unfortunately many had died.

Both tasks are difficult—that of the imprisoned men to hold their nerve and wait, that of the brave rescuers who went through the most perfect demonstration of efficiency in the history of ocean rescue. Not a single flaw in the relief plan was to be found. Never before in marine history has such rescue been equalled. Scientific invention made it possible through the heroic cooperation of the rescued and the rescuers.

British pilots are to be trained in Canada in Royal Canadian Air Force Camps. Canada is happy to have the opportunity of serving Britain in this way. British pilots and Canadian pilots gave a memorable account of themselves in the Great War and if the call should ever come again, they will give effective service.

However degraded or wretched a fellow mortal may be, he is still a member of our common species.—Seneca.

THE GREEN MONTH

What of all the colors shall I bring you for your fairing
Fit to lay your fingers on, fine enough for you?
Yellow for the ripened rye, white for ladies' wearing,
Red for briar-roses or the skies' own blue.

Nay, for Spring has touched the elm,
Spring has found the willow,
Winds that call the swallow home sway
the boughs apart;
Green shall all the curtains be, green shall be my pillow
Green I'll wear within my hair, and green upon my heart.

QUICK THINKING PROBABLY SAVED A NEAR TRAGEDY when the special train returned from Kingston late Sunday night. Arriving at the north C.N.R. station a number got off, then the doors were closed and the train started for Pinnacle Street to save many of the children a walk. Misunderstanding the arrangements when the train began to move and confused by relatives and acquaintances on the platform shouting at the windows some of the children managed to get an exit door open and swarmed out on the platform of the car. Fred Chapman, of the railway C.D.I., saw what was happening and immediately sprang on the car platform barring the way and preventing the children from jumping off with the train in motion as they had every intention of doing. Detective Chapman crowded the children back in the car and mounted guard until Pinnacle Street was reached and the train came to a dead stop.

THAT ARDENT LIFE-LONG IMPERIALIST, Col. W. N. Ponton, would not be denied his view of the Royal Couple, despite the fact that he is a casuality by reason of broken bones caused by accident. He sat in a wheel chair on the railway platform Sunday evening and joined in the cheering as the royal train with Their Majesties slowly passed by. Neither age, nor injuries, nor life or death can keep that glorious British spirit from exerting itself on occasion.

WHEN HALF AN HOUR BECAME AN HOUR AND A HALF. When the King and Queen stopped at Port Arthur and Fort William only half an hour they actually stopped there one hour and a half. One hour is picked up at Port Arthur by the change to Central Time from Eastern Standard Time—and so Their Majesties had an extra hour to spend in the Twin Cities without dislocating their time schedule.

AMATEUR POETS HAVE BEEN SATURATED WITH INSPIRATION as the result of the Royal Tour, and a flood of verses attesting the loyalty of the individual and the nation has poured forth, some of it reaching print, more being born to blush unseen and waste its substance, or is it sweetness, on the desert air. The verses, as might have been expected, have been good, bad, and indifferent, but good practise for those who like that kind of thing. Editor of Watertown Standard admitted that there were three thousand would be poets on his subscription list but only four who could write poetry. That's about the proportion which prevails generally, and perhaps it is well that this is so, for more than that number could hardly find local expression.

LOOKING BACKWARD OVER THE HIGHLIGHTS OF THE ROYAL TOUR OF ONTARIO there are some things which stand out prominently. The trip of Belleville school children to Kingston to see the King and Queen was epic. Some said it could not be done, but it was done, and so well done that it was perfect, well organized and splendidly carried out. Not only that but Belleville was an inspiration to Peterborough and other communities and helped to make it possible for thousands of children of those places to see Their Majesties at Kingston and Toronto.

Address of the Common People

Your Majesties:

We, the ordinary, common-or-garden people of Canada, desire to greet you. We desire to welcome you to our country—which is also your country because we are your people. We desire above all to assure you that we know, and are grateful, that it is we, and not the great and mighty of this land, whom you have come to visit.

True, we shall not be presented to you; our names — which are Jones and Macdonald and O'Higgins and Hebert and Johanssen and Schneiderand Straus and Salvatore—will not be registered in the official diary of your tour nor on the tablets of your retentive royal memory. Nevertheless, we are the people whom you are visiting—we, and not the three hundred guests with whom you will dine at Rideau Hall or the five hundred at Hart House. These we know have been picked for you by the officials according to the rules of the game.

We are not jealous of them, for we know that you would much rather have dined with us—or, since there are rather too many of us, with a run-of-the-mine sample of us; say, a farmer or two (yes, we are a bit sorry you are going to be short on farmers, they are still the backbone of this country, even if the backbone is a bit bent with shouldering the national debt), a printer's foreman, an automobile mechanic, a corner grocer, a telephone switchboard operator, and the man who mends the breaks in the Niagara transmission cables.

We wish you could go for a night run with the chap who drives the fastest motor truck between London and Toronto. We wish you could have a lunch with the girl who does the secretarial work for old —— of the —— Manufacturing Company; you will not meet him, but he won't tell you that he could not run the show without her assistance. We wish you could go to the bottom of the——Mine with Old Charlie, who has saved at least forty men from pretty certain death because he knows the tricks of the old hole-in-the-ground as a mother knows the tricks of her baby son. We wish you could take tea with the young wife of a young doctor up in the young Peace River country. We wish you could attend a meeting of one of the little Canadian Clubs, say in the Okanagan Valley. We think it would be nice if you could spend a day up in a fire-ranger's tower near the B. C.-Alberta boundary, and just look out over ten thousand square miles of mountain and forest with not a mayor or a provincial minister or a telegraph operator—and scarcely a human being—nearer than twenty miles.—B.K. Sandwell, in Saturday Night.

Some Cases of Migraine and Epilepsy Helped by Thyroid Extract

It is believed that the number of individuals who suffer with migraine—one sided-headache, nausea, vomiting—is in the hundreds of thousands. When a clinic investigating the cause of migraine invited sufferers to attend their clinic, hundreds applied and were willing to undergo any method of treatment that would give them relief. Thanks to the use of ergotamine tartrate by hypodermic injection and in tablet form taken by mouth, most sufferers can now be relieved of their headache although this remedy does not prevent the attacks. The cause of migraine has not yet been found.

In epilepsy, which is as old as history, yet its cause is unknown, (except when caused by injury to the head), there is a method of treatment which prevents attacks in many cases, and in others causes them to be less severe. The usual treatment is to cut down on all starch foods—bread, sugar, potatoes, pastries—also on all liquids, and to increase the amount of fat foods—butter, cream, fat meets. The patient is also given phenobarbital in suitable dosage as prescribed by his physician.

A discovery which may help a great many cases of migraine and also many cases of epilepsy is that these two ailments are alike in that the patient often has a low basal metabolism; that it, his body processes do not work as rapidly as in those who are normal due to an insufficient amount of thyroid juice in the blood. The heart beats slower, digestion is slower, there may be an increase in weight and often a desire to sleep or rest more at times. Dr. A. I. Rubenstone in American Journal of Digestive Diseases, says:

"Patients suffering from migraine and epilepsy frequently have a low basal metabolism rate. Three such patients responded dramatically to two grains of thyroid extract daily. To make sure that the low basal metabolism is present, the metabolism test should be made as near as possible before the attack (which is usually known to the patient) and never immediately afterward."

Now, three cases are not many, but certainly the basal metabolism rate should be learned in cases of migraine and epilepsy because when it is low, thyroid extract treatment should be very helpful.

Railway Problem

Dear Sir:—

In the Toronto Evening Telegram of May 5th appeared an article stating that Dr. Manion had told the House of Commons that the C. N. R. losses cannot be righted out or appreciately reduced, and that the Canadian taxpayer will not be satisfied with that or Dr. Manion's policy.

The article also says that competent Railway experts have testified that a saving of $70,000,000.00 can be effected by operating the two roads as one.

It should not take an expert to understand that two systems like the C. N. R. and C. P. R. run under one management would be a lot less expensive than when run in competition to each other or in other words that two roads running side by side with two sets of officials are more expensive when one set of officials and one road could do the job. If amalgamation will effect a saving of $70,000,000.00 how much more could be saved if they were operated by the Government and one set of officials.

It should not take an expert to see that if the Railways are operated by a private company, it will cost the taxpayers plenty to be sure that the C. N. R. gets a square deal. There are lots of people who think that the C. N. R. is getting trimmed on every corner.

If we had some one at the head of the C. N. R. who would tell the taxpayers that it was up to themselves to settle the Railway problem and that they had no kick coming if the C. N. R. went behind so long as they did not patronize their own road. If the heads of the C. N. R. would take the lead and tell the taxpayers that all that was necessary to settle the Railway problem was co-operation on their part and to work to their own interests by shipping and travelling on their own road and since the C. N. R. shareholders are nearly a hundred to one of the C. P. R. shareholders living in this country it would be a short job to settle the Railway problem.

HOT ENOUGH HERE

Goodhouse, South Africa — (CP) —Carl Weidner says he lives in the hottest place in South Africa. Temperatures at his home were 104, 110, 113, 106, 113, 115, 108 and 106 on successive days. Perhaps he's right.

Fish Take Time to Sleep

It seems that Mr. Ripley wants to know if fish sleep. The question he propounds is slightly askew in his catalogue of marvels and wondrous things. It simply doesn't belong there. Nevertheless, it is not uninteresting. Nobody really knows whether fish take a nap now and then but it is generally supposed that they do. That natural law which ordains that animate nature must occasionally "knit up the ravelled sleave of care" could not have made an exception of fishes, even though their eyes are lidless.

Every fisherman must have convinced himself that there are times when the fish sleep and will not be awakened, no matter how enticingly the lure of bait is presented. Indeed, every fisherman has witnessed fishes so steeped in soporfic bliss, to all appearance, that the wonder was they were not snoring. Such fishes, poised motionless in their element, seem not to see the inducements that are dangled before them. If not abruptly roused, as when from one of us the covers were jerked rudely away, the fish remains apparently as in a trance — withdrawn and quite immobile. Master Ripley, putting a question to you in turn, do fishes dream? For sleep they must.

There is remembered a catfish that was kept in a garden pool. This fish alarmed its wardens at the first by leaning against a rock at the bottom of the pool, sidewise on the concrete. They feared that it had yielded up its curious ghost, its tail and half its golden body resting but when a hand touched it the catfish leaped to its fins, like a suburbanite remembering his bus schedule, and flashed away, figuratively buttoning its collar and adjusting its necktie.

Afterward the catfish frequently was observed in this presumably eccentric position, as a lounger with his hatbrim down, taking a haystack siesta. They then supposed the prisoner of the pool to be a sort of lilypond character, but when another catfish was introduced to keep the first one company, blessed if this second fish didn't start lounging, too!

Do fish sleep, indeed! Mr. Ripley cannot be a brother of the angle or he would not seek enlightenment. Of course, fish sleep. But what a joyous chance it is to be present, by grace of great good fortune, with appropriate tackle when they yawn and wake up. There isn't anything somnolent about a fish then. A fish is then superlative of alertness, instancy and motion. — Portland Oregonian.

The War Correspondent

I first met Mr. J. F. B. Livesay, who is soon to retire from his post as general manager of The Canadian Press, in a sunken road in France, not far from a heap of rubble and brick-bats which once proudly bore the name of Cherisy. It was in the early Fall of 1918 — one of "Canada's Hundred Days" about which Mr. Livesay wrote so intelligently and understandingly after the war.

The enemy was flinging over a few scattered gas shells, the odor from which appeared to be so different from that of our previous experience that some of us wondered if he were not springing a new one on us. Naturally we felt somewhat dubious about the efficacy of our masks. Just as we were debating the point, some distance away at the other end of the "cut", appeared an officer apparently wearing the green and black brassard of a divisional gas officer. We waited for him to approach and then the following conversation ensued:

"Is that a new gas that Fritz is throwing over?"

"Don't know — couldn't say" — this from the "gas" officer.

"Well, did you ever smell anything like it before?"

"Can't say I did."

We didn't seem to be getting very far, and some of us were beginning to doubt the capacity of our casual acquaintance for his position.

"But surely you must have samples of all kinds of gas at headquarters, haven't you?"

"Yes—yes, I suppose so."

That just about tore it wide open.

"Say", said one of the boldest of us, "You're a gas officer aren't you?"

A smile broke over the face of our visitor, and his keen blue eyes twinkled. With his stick he nonchalantly knocked an empty bully-beef tin into a shell-hole. "Well," he replied, and purued his lips, "I suppose I am a sort of a gas officer — I'm a war correspondent." It was J. F. B. Livesay, then representing The Canadian Press at Canadian Corps Headquarters. The brassard he wore was not the green and black of the gas services but the green of the intelligence. Twenty years have gone by since then — twenty years of hard work and valuable service by Mr. Livesay to the daily newspapers of Canada — and his many friends across the Dominion will wish him good heath to enjoy his well-earned respite.—By F.X.J. in the Saint John Telegraph-Journal.

Dealing With the Dandelion

This is the time of year when gardeners renew the lifelong campaign against the dandelion. We do not need to remind them that it is mostly effort wasted, because this golden flower has survived long wars and shows each Spring vigor and persistence worthy of a distinguished cause.

If the dandelion were a timid plant of precarious existence, with a fancy for hot-houses and their artificial warmth, it would be prized highly and no doubt would bring fancy prices on the florists' market. Few flowers have a finer yellow, and a field of dandelions in bloom is something worth seeing. But a dandelion in the front lawn is just a weed and nothing more, and people dig it up and put salt on its roots and practice all sorts of measures for its elimination with very little success. The dandelion may be down but it is seldom out.

So it is just as well to accept the dandelion philosophically and think of it merely as a flower strayed from its proper setting. After all if roses or tulips persisted in coming up through the grass we should pursue them just as energetically, forgetting the time and labor given their cultivation in another place.—Ottawa Farm Journal.

The Man Who Saved the Allies

If I said—as I do say—that a man had died in the past week but for whom the Allies might have lost the Great War, many readers, I fancy, would be hard put to it to decide whom I meant. I mean the man who saved our shipping in 1917.

In that year the German submarine had all but settled the issue. Jellicoe gave an almost desperate report to the War Cabinet. Admiral Sims cabled home to America "I consider that at the present moment we are losing the War", owing to the success of the submarine campaign.

All this time there was a young officer of the rank of commander, at the Admiralty, who was convinced that the convoy system could save the situation. Everyone was against him. Lord Jellicoe had a dozen reasons why the system was impossible. But the young officer never faltered.

So far as his limited authority permitted he worked out plans for convoy. He got into unofficial touch with men high up in the Ministry of Shipping. They got in touch with General Smuts, then a member of the War Cabinet, and through him with the Prime Minister. The proposal was discussed; Jellicoe was prevailed on to give the system a trial; the sinkings which had risen to no less than 25 percent. of the ships bound to and from British ports, grew fewer; ship-construction began to overtake ship-destruction; the submarine was defeated.

The young officer was given a modest C.B. at the end of the War; ultimately he rose to be Third Sea Lord, and he died as Vice Admiral Sir Reginald Henderson, K.C.B.—London Spectator.

HUNGRY DEER

Scarcity of feed for deer in this district as a result of the late Spring is causing anxiety to those interested in the wild life of Algoma.

President F. E. Hollingsworth of the Algoma Game, Fish and Forest Association, says that conditions are not unlike those of the Spring of 1923, when this district lost a large proportion of its deer from starvation.

This year some stories coming in show that conditions are very bad. One man tells of seeing about a dozen deer close to the Batchawana road, who were so weak from hunger they could scarcely move.

The situation is one in which the Government should take a hand. The plan followed in some sections of Michigan where over-browsed cedars are cut down so that the tops will provide browse for the deer might be worth looking into.—Saulte Ste. Marie Star.

THE CLAM BATTLE

What can we expect of semi-barbarians like the Europeans when the highly intellectual states of Maine, Massachusetts and New Jersey go to war over the components parts of clam chowder?

The battle began when a measure was introduced in the Maine Legislature, approved by the Governor of Massachusetts, to make it illegal to include tomatoes in the dish. Scoffing at the old bromide that "as Maine goes so goes the nation," New Jersey's clam-chowder-loving Governor, A. Harry Moore, picked up the cudgels with the contention that to any gourmet tomatoes were not only essential, but a basic ingredient. "Clam chowder", reflected Saltonstall of Mass. "Ummmm, guess I'll go to lunch. And there'll be no tomatoes in it. It'll be the real thing — New England clam chowder." — Charlottetown Guardian.

'MOBILIZE FAITH' CHURCH'S TASK

Premier Chamberlain Addresses General Assembly of Church of Scotland

Edinburgh, May 26 (CP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain told the general assembly of the Church of Scotland today that the church's task was to "mobilize faith" and to "keep clear before the people the fundamental principles which must govern human relations."

"I hope I am not presumptuous in thinking that your reception of me this morning is not only an act of courtesy to a prime minister but that it is an expression of sympathy for a man who has been striving night and day with all his might and main, in spite of many discouragements, to keep the peace of Europe, and not only to keep the peace precariously from day to day, but to do something more—to remove that fear of danger of war and that sense of insecurity which today is oppressing the hearts of millions of people," Mr. Chamberlain said.

World Peace Appeal.

The prime minister spoke warmly of the action of the church moderator in joining the Archbishop of Canterbury's appeal for all Christian people to pray for world peace at the approaching festival of Pentecost, May 28.

Those who carry the weight of great responsibilities today "can profess to see no other way but to arm the country in its own defence," Mr. Chamberlain said. "We recognize that the troubles of today cannot be cured by arms or armaments. We have to go further and deeper than that and I have no doubt that there will be a wide response to your call for prayer.

"It is that faith, that conviction of the rightness of certain things which constitutes a spiritual force which cannot be measured in physical terms:

Fundamental Principles

"It seems to me that if the church mobilizes that faith, with the spiritual force to foster and encourage it, to lay down and keep clear before the people the fundamental principles which must govern human relations—if they do that there may well be an ultimate power which you, the Moderator, said in that same call to prayer will eventually lead nations and rulers to try to be good neighbors to one another."

And so

"THE BABY GETS NEW SHOES"

Jim Morgan, switchman at Plessey, watched No. 7 fast freight thunder past. Then he trudged home to his wife and four children. As he went, he jingled the money in his pocket. "No. 7 was heavy tonight", he said. "Business must be picking up." That made him feel happy, for better business meant more steady "time". He knocked the dottle out of his pipe and went to bed.

Jim did not know what was in those cars. If their sides had been glass, he would have seen that several of them were loaded with tobacco products. It never occurred to him that you who smoke help to put that money in his pocket.

For the Tobacco Industry increases freight traffic by over $1,000,000 a year. Thus it helps to make work and wages for thousands like Jim, enabling them, in turn, to buy the necessities and luxuries of life . . . The money goes round and round . . . and so "the baby gets new shoes".

The Stars Say—

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, May 28

SUNDAY'S horoscope is particularly auspicious for all pertaining to religion, charity, ecclesiastics — the church and state generally. There may be some very successful celebrations in connection with these interests. It is a promising time for all manner of social romantic and educational functions. There might be a rather extravagant or costly gesture of friendship.

Those whose birthday it is may not be surprised if a marked honor, or token of preferment or friendliness, comes from high places. The year will be notable for promotion, expansion and achievement, with enhanced personal and social prestige.

A child born on this day may be efficient ambitious, generous and of pronounced humanitarian sympathetics, which may place it high in the ministry, or in an educational or judicial position. Its affectionate nature assures it many friends.

For Monday, May 29

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is not a very encouraging one, as it holds omens of delays, disappointments, obstacles or possible frustrations due to a depressed physical condition. The most difficult situations, however, may be gainfully manipulated by tact, shrewdness or undercover compromises, but use caution with strangers and with writings.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of some impediments or setbacks which had best be managed by tact, subtlety or shrewd compromise. Concerning papers and strangers exercise much vigilance and discretion. Safeguard the health of self and family.

A child born on this day may be difficult to understand, disposed to fluctuate between high spirits and grave depressions or moods. It should succeed through its deep, subtle and shrewd mentality and ideals of justice and right.

The all-important invitation

The exclusiveness of New York's erstwhile "400" pales to insignificance in comparison with Washington's newly appointed 1,300—the number of those receiving the coveted invitations to the large garden party Sir Ronald Lindsay, British ambassador, and his staff will give in honor of King George and Queen Elizabeth on June 8, in the spacious grounds of the British embassy in Washington. A favored few of the 1,300 will also be invited for tea with Their Majesties on the pillared portico of the embassy. The names of these fortunates have not been revealed.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

Which—New Furniture or a Baby?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My husband and I have been very happily married for the past three years. We are now free from debt, have a car, a piano and a hundred dollars saved. My husband is 24 and I am just past 20. We'd love to have a baby. But the apartment house where we live will not admit children.

We've been thinking of buying our own furniture, but we hate to go into debt again. Should we stay where we are, save more money and own our own furniture before we think about the baby? It would take another year to buy the furniture I'd like, but we couldn't afford the baby and to rent another furnished apartment. Thank you.

The Missus

It seems to me that a young couple who have managed to buy a car, a piano, save a hundred dollars, and keep out of debt are entitled to that greatest happiness—a baby.

Excellent furniture can be bought second hand, very cheaply. And good early American models are now made up in cheap woods; replicas of the Windsor chairs in unfinished pine can be bought as low as a dollar, and it's lots of fun to paint them.

If you move from the inhospitable apartment house, opposed to children, you could accumulate enough furniture to get along with before inviting the stork. Your letter sounds thrifty, and thrifty people are always able to manage.

Is Kissing Silly?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Why is it that girls want to rush headlong into kissing? About two weeks ago I met a very nice girl at a dance. She gave me a date, and too many opportunities to kiss her, winding up finally with daring me.

Now I wouldn't mind kissing this girl, when I get my bearings a little better. But I've always thought that kisses were a pledge of affection and not cheap, thrill-chasing. So I'm not accepting the little lady's bid to come over and have supper with her next Saturday night. Am I a young old-fogy, or entirely wrong about this kissing business?

J.

Everyone is entitled to his own opinion regarding kissing. And if you think kisses are a pledge of affection and not cheap thrill-chasing, certainly you're entitled to that belief. And here's hoping your letter may sound a note of warning to young ladies who are over-eager to begin. This will also answer "Duke", who thinks there's a time and place for kissing.

Has College Changed Her?

Dear Miss Fairfax

My girl friend and I both graduated from high school last year. She went to college in another city and I had to stay at home and go into business with my dad. We correspond, but her letters sound so indifferent at times, and when I ask if she still cares for me, she just replies: "A little bit". And when we used to go together, she was always so anxious to be in my company.

Dick

Very probably college has opened up an entirely new field of interest, new friends and other activities. Try not to let her change of mood affect you too seriously.

In the meantime, how about yourself? Are you doing anything to keep up with her in the things she seems so interested in? Are you doing anything in the line of studying? Keep up your reading, and don't let your ambition drop. Perhaps you can take up a course of study at home, or at night school. If you really want to make a good impression on her, try and keep yourself educated up to her standards.

Don't Rush into Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax

I'm 18 years of age and have been going "steady" with a boy of 20. He has asked me to marry him, and as I am very much in love with him I consented to become engaged. But now I'm wondering if I didn't make a mistake. Often times I think there might be someone else whom I could care for, and I might meet him after I marry this boy. Would advise me to marry this young man or wait and see if someone else comes alone?

Anxious

By all means wait, my dear. Don't rush into a marriage at your age, and marry the first man who has made love to you. After again reading your letter I have come to the conclusion that you are less in love than you think. Every girl finds it pleasant to be courted by a likeable young man.

My advice is to tell your boy friend that you aren't sure of yourself, and prefer not to become engaged until you are at least twenty. In the meantime go out with him and have a good time.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Answering Your Own Bell

Several questions of etiquette are often bothersome to the woman who must answer her own door bell.

Looking hospitable in opening the door is important. The hostess (or host) always shakes hands with a guest, woman or man or child, and expresses pleasure that the guest has come.

Informal callers usually remove their coats. If a woman, the hostess helps her, hanging the coat in the entrance-hall closet, or, if there is no closet, putting it on a chair.

It is more comfortable for a guest if the hostess proceeds her in going upstairs or to the living-room, especially if the guest is not acquainted with the house. The hostess says, "May I lead the way?"

A guest never hands her card to the hostess, but contrives to leave it on the card-tray or table when leaving.

It is not necessary for the hostess to take a man's hat and coat when he enters, though permissible. She may say, "Will you put your hat and coat here in the closet, please?"

On departure the hostess again offers her hand and assures her guest with some such phrase as "It has been delightful to see you again."

Remember, in greeting your guest and in saying good-bye, it's twenty-five per cent what you say and seventy-five per cent how you say it.

Scientists Discover Value of Cod-Liver Oil in Fighting Rickets

Rickets is a disease in which the system doesn't absorb enough calcium. As a result, bones grow crooked and become brittle. Although scientists knew this, it wasn't until as recently as 1922 that they discovered the system needed supplies of Vitamin D before it could utilize the calcium in the diet.

As soon as this was discovered, a great deal of work was done to find a food which was rich in the vitamin and which could be fed to babies successfully. You see, babies need protection from rickets more than anyone else.

Experiments finally led the scientists to the livers of fish. It was found that the livers of practically all fish had the vitamin, but some had it in larger quantities than others. The only way the properties of these various oils could be measured accurately was by feeding animals on a diet that would give them rickets, and then finding which oil cured them fastest.

Finally a definite measure of Vitamin D potency was established. A group of men decided that they would determine one unit of Vitamin D as the least amount that would lay a thin layer of calcium across the bone of a rat suffering from rickets. Since this measure was made we have a definite means of comparing Vitamin D values.

It has been found that the average baby is completely protected from rickets if he receives from 1,500 to 2,000 of these units each day. This is the standard which has been set up. It would be foolish for me to attempt to evaluate here all the different commercial preparations which are on the market. But if a mother will remember the above figures and compare them with the strength of the material which she buys, she will be able to choose the best.

I would advise every mother who buys codliver oil to see just what strength there is in the different brands offered, so that she will know how much she must give her baby each day. Most of the preparations on the market today are satisfactory, but it is a wise mother who buys her baby's codliver oil from a reputable drug firm.

Interesting Program For Empire Day at... Tweed Con. School

Tweed—Empire Day was observed in Tweed Consolidated School on Wednesday, May 24th, with a special patriotic programme. The morning was devoted by the teachers to instruction in the greatness of the British Commonwealth of Nations and the part which it plays in World politics.

Splendid addresses appropriate to Empire Day were given by Rev. A. E. Pepper, M. A., Lieutenant McLaren and Rev. H. L. Morrison, B. A. These addresses were full of information and were heard with keen interest by the pupils. The remainder of the programme was made up chiefly of patriotic choruses and readings. Principal S. H. The charm and beauty of Gaspe have inspired another book—"Summer Roads to Gaspe" by Dorothy Childs Hogner whose previous book "Westward High Low and Dry" achieved unusual popularity. With her artist husband who has provided numerous black and white illustrations, Mrs. Hogner motored leisurely through Gaspe and took also a brief boat trip to Newfoundland and Labrador. She has woven into a chatty informal narrative information gleaned on the way—bits of incidental history, Cartier, early Basque and Breton mariners—and such practical notes as the price of gas, condition of roads, etc. For armchair travel the book gives an entrancing picture of Gaspe and for those motorists ever anxious to head for places they have never seen, the book is also an excellent guide.

Robert E. Sherwood, author of the Pulitzer prize-winning play "Idiot's Delight" has turned to an historical theme in "Abe Lincoln in Illinois". In New York, with Raymond Massey in the role of Lincoln the play has been making theatre history. It is a dramatization of the life of Lincoln from sometime in the 1830's in New Salem, Illinois to 1861 when he set out for Washington. It shows him not as a great man, rather as becoming a great man slow of growth of conviction and purpose; emerging as the real Lincoln in the Lincoln-Douglas debate, in his candidacy for President and in his final adieu to his fellow citizens of Springfield as he leaves for Washington. Carl Sandburg says "One goes away from seeing the play haunted by some- reality persuasive of Lincoln's presence, of his sobriety and wit, of his sombre broodings over the Family of Man on the earth and the strange prices of devotion and discipline paid for the getting and keeping of freedom."

"Problems in Canadian Unity" is the collected papers and addresses delivered at the seventh conference of the Canadian Institute on Economics and Politics held at Lake Couchiching last August under the auspices of the National Council of the Y.M.C.A. of Canada. "The purpose of the Institute has been to give intelligent guidance chiefly to young people, as well as to stimulate their interest in the social, economic and political problems of the Dominion." Last year the ills of the Commonwealth and the disruptive forces which are weakening the structure of the Dominion were discussed and Violet Anderson, editor of the volume has chosen to arrange the papers under these headings— Dominion-Provincial Relations, Labour and Unionization, and Rehabilitation of Agriculture. It is a book well worth the reading and study of every thinking Canadian.

PINS IN SHIRT

One of my minor ambitions is, in making purchases at the haberdasher's, always to choose if possible, a shirt that the shirtmaker has folded and fastened with seven pins, instead of with nine or eleven; for few things put greater strain on a man's resolution to "swear not at all" than trying to get the pins out of a new shirt.

Imagine, then, my delight on unfolding a new shirt yesterday to find it fastened with three pins only! It brightened the bright morning and I wended my way down town in a gay and jocund mood convinced in spite of municipal elections and war in Albania, that the world is getting better and bursting with desire to spread the glad tidings.

Then the very first man to whom I broke the good news sniffed sniffishly and remarked that for months he has been buying a brand of shirt that is fastened with one pin!—Baltimore Sun.

DIVORCEE'S DAUGHTER

—By Vivian Radcliffe—

"Can this possibly be Janice?" Wylde Greene asked, standing before her table, tall and handsome in his evening clothes, gray-blue eyes searching her face. Robert Craymore, intoxicated now, made an attempt to rise but sank back in his chair with an annoyed frown.

"Yes, Wylde," Janice's reply came in a gasp of relief. Then, she added quickly, "I was wondering if you'd ask me to dance with you. Our last dance was one I have not forgotten."

Though a puzzled frown puckered Wylde's brow, he replied gallantly, "Of course. This dance." Before Janice could introduce her employer, Wylde had her in his arms. They had never danced together, but she simply had to use some excuse to get away from the table.

Breathlessly, she told him of her predicament, begged him to stay with her until she was able to obtain her coat check from Craymore, and to see her safely outside the night club. Embarrassing to ask this of him, but would he? Better still, he said, he'd handle the man himself while she talked to his mother.

Wylde had been so kind to her five years ago, that Janice had secretly enthroned him in her heart as the kind of a man a girl should fall in love with. And now to meet him and his mother again! New York, after all was not such a lonely city. You could meet friends.

Janice sat at Mrs. Greene's table after introductions to Corinne Wexton, the beautiful red-headed girl, and Anson Hartt, who was apparently quite wealthy and a little bored with life in general. Quickly, Janice told of her mother's death in Hollywood, and of her own trip to New York to find work in an entirely different locale.

"I didn't know. We've just returned from aboard," Mrs. Greene murmured. "How inconsiderate of Lois to commit suicide. Didn't she realise what it would do to you? But then, she never considered anyone except herself. No offense meant, my dear—I was very fond of Lois—but we can be fond of a person and yet see her faults."

Janice, filled with embarrassment, was watching Wylde arguing with Craymore. She could see her job disappearing in thin air. Tomorrow she would go to the office and collect the money for the few days she had worked, and then look for another position.

"Who is the man?" Mrs. Greene demanded, in her austere manner, which, while it threw Janice on the defensive, made her feel that, in this friend of her mother's, she had an ally.

"My employer. A friend of mine gave me a letter of introduction to him." She did not explain about bringing Dolores east and obtaining the position without the use of Lawrence's letter of introduction. "I was very foolish to accept his invitation, but I was getting lonesome and—"

At that moment, Wylde came back and placed the cloak check before Janice. A waiter hurried forward with a chair, but Janice protested.

"I must go. Would you see that he doesn't follow me out?" she begged of Wylde.

While they waited for the girl to bring Janice's cloak, he insisted. "You'll come to see us soon, won't you?"

"Of course, I'd love to." Janice's eyes clouded until they seemed almost black. "Was Mr. Craymore very angry?"

"Furious. I guess I lost your job for you, but call up Mother in a few days and we'll help you locate one, if you haven't already succeeded in finding one yourself."

Just like that. If you haven't a job in a few days, we'll try to help you get one. How little the wealthy Wylde Greene understood the business world, understood how hard it was to get jobs!

As Wylde helped her into her velvet evening wrap and she pulled it close about her slight figure, competely covering the golden lame dress she wore, she smiled up at him with more courage than she felt.

"I'll probably have a job. Don't worry about me."

Though she insisted there was no need, he put her in a taxi and paid the driver to take her home. She wondered if he remembered her address a few moments after he had given it, if he would come to see her should she fail to telephone his mother.

Driving home in the cab, she was torn between three courses of action. She could return to her father; she could struggle on, working, trying to work, doing anything to keep body and soul together; or she could telephone Mrs. Greene and throw herself upon that woman's mercy and maybe be assisted to employment.

There was really no reason why she should feel so desolate. She wasn't licked yet. Far from it. Tomorrow she would see Mr. Craymore and get the money due her. Then she would hold her chin up and go out seeking a job. The letter from the secretarial school would help a little in the way of reference. But she heartily wished she had more than the meager fifteen dollars in her purse.

She had thought, in Hollywood, there would be more money left when everything had been settled. But so many little things kept cropping up, that the money had dwindled away to a mere nothing. The cold weather of New York had made a heavy winter coat necessary, taking most of the money left upon her arrival.

But she was not licked. No, she decided, she would not go to her father, or to Mrs. Greene. She would fight along on her own until the last ditch, and then — well, then she would turn to Mrs. Greene rather than to her father. When she went to him—if ever—she must not go as a mendicant.

CHAPTER VIII

Next morning, when Janice went into Mr. Craymore's office, she was inwardly quaking. She dreaded meeting him again, face to face, after the repulsion she had felt for him the night before.

She worked at her desk as though nothing had happened. Until his tardy arrival, late in the morning, she wondered if he were coming in at all that day. His frown of positive fury, as they faced each other in his office with the door shut, made Janice zealously wish she did not need to ask for her pay, that she could have disregarded the money due her and never have seen him again.

"I wish to leave, Mr. Craymore," she said, in a voice that trembled as her knees were trembling beneath her. "The cashier said he could not pay me unless you so ordered. Will you kindly arrange it?"

"Nice way you treated me last night!" the man stormed back at her. "Trying to make a fool of me? Getting that sap to take you away. I don't bite little girls! And I had come to think that you were different from the usual run."

"Different?" Anger flashed in her blue eyes, making them deepen in color. "In the condition you were in last night, you wouldn't know what type girl was with you. It was you who made a fool of me.

"But I should have expected that. I might have known that no employer takes out a girl in his office with decent intent. And you are one of the men Lawrence Worthington gave me a letter of introduction to!" Scorn fairly dripped from her words.

"Lawrence Worthington— of California?" The man's manner immediately changed. "Do you know Worthington?" He evidently could not believe it.

"He was a very good friend of my mother's," Janice admitted cautiously. No need to say that Lawrence wanted to marry her.

"Why didn't you say so before? Why didn't you give me his letter?" His manner had become almost fawning now.

"Would it have made any difference?"

Her shot told. Nervously, his fingers fumbled with papers on his desk.

"All right. I was wrong last night. I got drunk. There was an excuse—that play. But I should not have taken it out on you. I'm sorry. Accept my apology and let bygones be bygones?"

"I'll accept your apology, but I wish to leave, Mr. Craymore. I couldn't work here any longer."

"But I can't have you leaving, not when Worthington gave you a letter to me."

"You don't have to worry. I know Lawrence has you handle a lot of his legal work at this end. I shan't tell him the way things have turned out."

No, she would not tell Lawrence. She had not written him even a line since the brief postal of her safe arrival. She had not given him her address, and she had sworn Helen to secrecy, so he could not look her up on a visit to New York.

"That's mighty decent of you. But I feel responsible for you. Won't you let me call some of my friends and see if I can't locate a job for you?"

"No, thanks. I don't think I'd care for your personal recommendation for the short time I've been and a general letter of recommendation for the shirt time I've been here—not long, but it may prove helpful. You might say it was temporary work I was engaged for, and that will explain the short time."

"Of course." He dictated the letter to her and arranged with the cashier for the money to be ready when she brought the letter to him for signature.

"You won't reconsider?" he begged.

"I couldn't," she assured him. Each time she looked into his face she saw the man of the night before and heard Dorothy Dane's warning ringing in her ears.

Three weeks dragged by, with skimpy meals hardly appeasing Janice's healthy appetite, and with discouragement growing upon her. There didn't seem to be any jobs. Her money had dwindled to a few dollars, when the sympathetic woman at the employment agency handed her a slip of paper.

"They are very fussy about their people. Want good references for character and business experience, but they are in a great hurry and I've nobody else to send. So try your hand at it and good luck."

Janice smiled bitterly at the mention of luck. Lady Luck had deserted her now, apparently.

She would have loved to work in that office, the atmosphere seemed so wholesome and friendly, as she passed through the big outer room where busy stenographers and clerks were seated at numerous desks. Even the man who interviewed her was the type who could call forth the best in her. But she was inexperienced. They must have experienced girls.

The man was sincerely regretful when he explained that she could not fill their requirements. His kindly suggestion that he would keep her name on file, send for her if they could use an inexperienced girl in the near future, was not encouraging. She knew he had meant it only to ease her disappointment a little.

She went back to her rooming house that night footsore and discouraged. Where was she going to end up? A waitress, or a girl behind a counter serving soft drinks? Well, anything but defeat. Even if she poured drinks behind a counter, she could still answer advertisements in the paper and try for an office position.

There was still two dollars in her purse and the rent was paid on the room for three more days. A lot could happen in three days.

A lot could happen in a few hours.

That evening, as Janice sat in her room, looking over a paper she had picked up at a restaurant, Mrs. Greene came puffing up the steep three flights of stairs, and demanded, "Why haven't you come to see me? And why are you living in such a hole? Lois' daughter here! Pack your things immediately, child. I'm taking you to my apartment!"

CHAPTER IX

The beginning of the third week in December found Janice installed in Mrs. Greene's apartment as social secretary and companion. The apartment was the acme of wealth and taste in furnishings and decoration. The atmosphere was more peaceful than Janice had hoped for.

Altogether, Janice's new surroundings were lovely. She recalled that this would be the sort of environment in which she would live if she went to her father's home. She never allowed thoughts of her father to fill her mind, but they seemed to have found permanent place in one corner, to issue disconcerting suggestions at most untimely moments—such as the reminder that all this loveliness could be hers in the home where she was welcome at any time as a daughter.

Not much time had been required to get the lay of the land at Mrs. Greene's. She found that Wylde was very fond of Corinne Wexton, whose family lived in Cleveland. She was a house guest, and her visit seemed indefinite. Anson Hartt, a cousin of Corinne's, also a house guest, was from Chicago. He had been graduated from the University of Illinois and had taken a post-graduate course at Harvard, where he and Wylde had become fraternity brothers.

Janice felt more than grateful to Mrs. Greene for making her duties less arduous than those of most social secretaries. She accompanied the older woman everywhere she went. It was nice to be received in the homes of Mrs. Greene's friends, even though that lady might be a little patronizing in introducing her as the daughter of a dear friend.

Janice knew that Mrs. Greene often explained that she preferred to work rather than go to her father, Ogden Flagg, from whom she had been separated for many years. And she knew the name Flagg gained acceptance for her many places.

"As long as I don't use it as an open sesame, it's all right," she told herself. "When I want to use it that way, I shall go home to father and be his daughter in word and deed."

That explanation salved her conscience. She was not flying under false colors.

Living in the same apartment with Wylde, even though she knew he was interested in Corinne, proved thrilling. She found him as heart-disturbing now as he had been to an impressionable girl in her early teens five years before. She found herself listening for his footsteps in the hall.

His wavy, jet black hair intrigued her. She wanted to smooth it with her hands, feel the unruly mop curl about her fingers. She liked the way his gray-blue eyes lighted each time he saw her.

There was almost open animosity between Corinne and herself. It was not apparent to Mrs. Greene, but Janice knew the hatred Corinne felt for her—hatred born of fear, fear born of Janice's appearance on the horizon, of Wylde's vision.

Despite her money and ability to get almost everything she wanted, Corinne was not sure that she could get Wylde. It was that lack of assurance that made her want him more.

Quick to judge characters, Janice had promptly sized her up. Of Wylde she was not so sure. Wylde seemed to be in love with Corinne, but why he hadn't "popped the question and settled the girl's mind, she could not understand. Maybe he liked to have a girl running after him.

Well, one thing sure—she, Janice, would not run after him. She might listen for his step, find excuses to bring her into the room where he sat reading or listening to the radio, but not by word or act would she let him know that she loved him. No indeed—not unless he should some day tell her he loved her.

The five of them, in the living room for coffee, and cigarettes after a late dinner, made an attractive home picture. The coffee tray was on a low table before Mrs. Greene, who smiled benignly at them as she poured.

Then it was that Anson spoke a name that made Janice listen breathlessly.

"Yes, heard from Peter Hathaway today. He's going to be in New York next week—holidays at Illini, you know. I want you people to meet him. Charming chap."

Peter Hathaway! Coming to New York next week. She would see him again. How wonderful! She wondered if, in this environment, he would take more notice of her, realize that she was an attractive and interesting girl.

"I've met him," Janice ventured, knowing it would come out sooner or later. "He's assistant to Professor Craymore, and the professor thinks highly of him."

"You know the Craymores?" Anson asked.

"I stopped at their home for a few weeks. I was bringing their little granddaughter from Hollywood to New York."

Corinne's patronizing raise of eyebrows nettled her.

"Mother had acted in a picture with Dorothy Dane, and when Miss Dane learned I was coming East, she arranged for me to bring Dolores. Mr. Hathaway took me all over Illini campus one afternoon. It's lovely there, and he adores the place."

She told this with a straightening of her shoulders and a slight tilt of her chin.

"He has no use for girls," Anson laughed. "Never saw a man like him. Corinne tried to land him, but no go—and was she mad!"

Anson laughed teasingly as he cast a sidelong glance at the furious Corinne.

"And don't let your red-headed temper run away with you, coz, for you sure were dippy about him."

"That was three years ago," snapped Corinne, her red-brown eyes seeming to grow redder as she struggled to control her anger.

"What's three years?" Anson tormented. "You were supposed to be grown up then. Anyway, you insisted to me that you were perfectly able to take care of yourself, when I warned you against falling for him."

So, other girls had fallen in love with Peter Hathaway and he had withstood their onslaught! It did not give Jan much courage in the face of his pending arrival. He'd probably not notice her any more this time than he had the other. Not consoling—but at least, she was going to see him again!

CHAPTER X

Can love that a girl keeps locked in the secret places of her heart transmit itself to the object of her affections? Janice anxiously asked herself that question. That seemed to be just what was happening.

Wylde Greene had begun to notice her, to say little things that brought up happy memories. As when he looked up from a book, through a haze of cigarette smoke, and exclaimed, "Hello, Beautiful!"

Jan blushed. What girl wouldn't? Wylde hastened to add, "You weren't much as a kid, but a few years have certainly done wonders to you!"

"Thanks," she managed to murmur, despite the inner turmoil.

"Of course, you'll never be as beautiful as your mother—or Ivonne. But—" he studied her until the color deepened into a dark red on her face and throat—"but darned if I don't prefer your beauty to theirs. Yours comes from within—and—"

Again he paused, her embarrassment stopping him.

"Have I hurt you?" he demanded quickly. "I wouldn't for the world, you know."

"No, you haven't hurt me. It's just—just a little bewildering to be so frankly dissected to my face." She laughed tremuously, and sat down in a near-by chair, clasping her hands in her lap like a young and interested child. "Go on."'

"Oh, now, that's no fair"

But he went on, explaining that he thought she had a lot of spunk not to have run back to her father at the moment of her mother's death.

"Ivonne would have," he said. "I'd like to bet you've got your father eating nails. Ivonne is so like her mother that she's caused him many heartaches."

"You know Ivonne well?" Janice asked eagerly. Here was a chance to learn about her sister first-hand.

"Uh huh. Was madly in love with her a couple of years ago. She couldn't see me for dust. Ivonne is after a title, I think. Then, again, the way she is playing around with Bradish Braxton makes me wonder if she really knows what she wants. She's a swell girl if she'd ever really find herself.

"Doesn't seem to realize there is something besides fun and excitement and money in this world. I didn't have enough money for her. Brad is simply reeking with it, though rumor has it that your father has put his foot down flat on anything doing in that quarter."

"I—I wonder how we would get along together?" Janice spoke aloud, not realizing it.

"You and your mother got along swimmingly. She's your mother over again."

HERO OF DISASTER

Lloyd B. Maness, who slammed shut the door connecting the forward and rear compartments of the ill-fated submarine Squalus, was given credit for saving the lives of his 32 companions. Had Maness been unable to shut the water-tight door the entire crew of the Squalus would have perished.

BACK FROM DAVEY JONES' LOCKER

Blanket-wrapped to protect them from fresh chill after their ordeal of long hours trapped in a steel prison on the bed of the ocean, these survivors of the submarine Squalus disaster are shown in a navy ambulance on their way to hospital at Portsmouth. Four men are able to sit up; a fifth is a stretcher case. The diving Bell of the U.S.S. Falcon brought up 33 alive; the task of extricating 26 given up as dead is still going ahead.

REUNION AFTER SUB ORDEAL

Rescued from the ill-fated submarine Squalus, which took the lives of 26 of his fellow seamen, third-class machinist's mate, Judson T. Bland, of Greensboro, N.C., is hysterically greeted by his wife as he steps ashore at the navy yard in Portsmouth. Bland was brought to the surface in the rescue chamber's second trip. Pronounced fittest of all survivors after the ordeal 240 feet beneath the waves, he was designated by naval authorities to receive the press in an informal interview.

WIFE GREETS AIR RECORD-BREAKER

As Francisco Sarabia, Mexican flier, steps from his plane at Floyd Bennett Field, New York, at the completion of a non-stop, record-breaking flight from Mexico City, Mex., he is greeted by his wife. He broke the record made by the late Amelia Earhart, who flew the distance in about 41 hours. Sarabia's time was 10 hours and 50 minutes, 3 hours and 29 minutes faster.

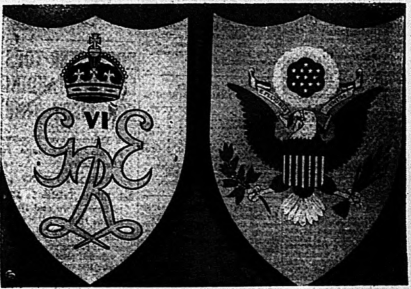
VETERAN DESIGNS SHIELDS FOR KING'S WASHINGTON VISIT



J.A.C. Johnson, an American citizen who served in the world war with the Canadian forces has designed these official shields to be used during the visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth to Washington, June 8. They were chosen by Sir Ronald Lindsay and approved by the state department as the most representative of the British Empire. On the LEFT is the shield bearing the initials of the British rulers and on the RIGHT, the U.S. emblem to decorate the route from Union Station to the White House.

A SAD STORY

The story of the floor map in the Post Office Department Building in Washington is one to wring tears of sympathy from a mapmaker. A few years ago, when the $20,000 map of the world was worked out in various colors of stone, the world itself was a fairly serene and settled planet. Boundaries seemed assured and countries seemed established. Now the embarrassed guardians of the map have to explain to visitors why Austria and Ethiopia and Czecho-Slovakia and Albania are outlined in stone on the floor of the big foyer.

It would be easy, if expensive, to correct the map, but even corrections would be dangerous. Until somebody invents a way of making a loose-leaf stone floor map the Post Office Department will have to grin and bear it.—New York Sun.

Reds, Young, Cocky, Capable, Top National League and May Stay There for Entire Season

Beat St. Louis 7-5 to Win Eleven Games in a Row and Take First Place

HITTING HOLDS UP

Yankees Win Second in a Row after Being Held to Four Hits Each Time

(By Judson Bailey Associated Press Sports Writer).

Cincinnati Reds, young, cocky and capable, are back on top of the National Baseball League and liable to stay there until the frost is on the pumpkins next October.

It was two weeks ago tomorrow that Cincinnati was beaten for the fourth time in five games and toppled into third place and it might seem foolhardy to get steamed up about any club on a two weeks trial.

Yet the Reds have won 11 consecutive games with such aplomb that nothing in baseball right now can compare with them except the world champion Yankees, who generally are incomparable.

The Reds beat St. Louis Cardinals 7-5 yesterday in the Cards' own park for the percentage points which finally lifted them to the front of the race.

In their 11-game surge the Cincinnati starting hurler has finished nine times.

Hitting Holds Up

Meanwhile the hitting has held up unbelievably. The Reds have rolled up 108 safeties for 59 runs and slammed out at least one homer in nine of the contests.

In the only other National League contest yesterday the Pittsburgh Pirates staged a 14-5 vendetta against Chicago Cubs. They shelled Bill Lee from the mound in the fourth frame and continued a steady assault on three succeeding pitchers.

The Yankees again proved indomitable by beating Philadelphia Athletics 1-0 on Tommy Henrich's fourth home run of the spring. It was the second successive day they had triumphed while being held to four hits.

There were just two other games in the junior circuit and in one Boston Red Sox, with a revised batting order, halted a three-game slump by whipping Washington Senators 4-2 and in the other Chicago White Sox hobbled Cleveland Indians 2-1 on Joe Kuhel's homer in the seventh inning.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Briets Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York May 27 (AP)—While New York fight managers were busy outsmarting each other, John Roxborough signed and sealed Buddy Moore, sensational amateur heavyweight who is a ringer for Joe Louis in and out of the ring....Insiders say the Lou Gehrig retirement is permanent, rain or shine....Now that the Detroit front office has denied Hank Greenberg will manage the Tigers, New York writers are trying to root Charlie Gehringer into the job.

The other day when Bill Terry told the Giants to forget the curfew and go out and have themselves a time, all hands gave three cheers except Cliff Melton ....It turned out Cliff knew of only one joint where every third drink is on the house and that was in Baltimore....The Giants were in Cincinnati.

Minneapolis writers are far too conservative. They say: "University of Minnesota Gophers show promise if not grid title class." Tell that to Sweeney....There is a "Lou Gehrig Tavern" in Astoria and a "Bill Terry's Heigh Ho Club" just outside Gulfport, Miss...... Henry Mendel, the big face czar, will be the major domo in Tony Galento's training camp....The joint will feature the longest bar ever set up in a fight camp.

The Giants have dropped to such a low estate that a New York studio audience booed a guy who said they were his favorite team.... Jersey Jones, veteran press agent will celebrate his fifth Decoration Day in a Joe Louis fight camp Tuesday....He was at Pompton Lakes in 1935 when Joe drilled for Carnera; at Lakewood the next year before the first Schmeling fight; at Kenosha in 1937 prior to the Braddock joust and back at Pompton last year for the return match with Schmeling.

ATHLETICS BEAT FERGUS THISTLES

St. Catharines Team Appears on Their Way to Another Title

(By The Canadian Press)

On the right trail towards a successful defence of their Mann Cup championship, St. Catharines Athletics went into first place in the Ontario Lacrosse Association race last night by defeating Fergus Thistles 14-7.

The St. Kitts' team was not extended against the hard-pressed Thistles who could not score until three minutes of the second period had passed Led by Morton with four goals the Athletics established a 9-2 lead at half time.

Barnard's two major penalties for fighting made up the biggest part of the A's 20 minutes in the penalty box. Sloski and J. P. Bergin tallied twice each to lead the Fergus goal-getters.

Hamilton Tigers opened their Ontario campaign on the right foot by beating Brampton Excelsiors 25-11 in a wide-open game at Burlington. While Brampton scored goal for goal with them for the first half, the Hamilton boys drew away in the third quarter.

Martin, with six goals, and Bill Isaacs, with five, set the pace for the Tigers' victory as Goaltender Harris, substituting for Bert Large, proved shaky in the Excelsior nets. Bill Anthony counted four goals and White three for Brampton.

MAJOR LEAGUE "FIRST"

First major league player this year to perform the very neat batting trick of slamming out three homers in a single game was Ken Keltner, (ABOVE), third baseman with Cleveland Indians. Keltner was one of the best rookies of 1938 and has been going well again this year. His three homers came during Bob Feller's recent one-hit game against Boston.

10-6 Triumph over Montreal Royals Sets Stage for Their Entry

TORONTO WINS

Bob Elliott Triples in 12th. to Score Two and Defeat Bisons 10-8

While Jersey City and Newark Bears were playing puss in the corner, with first place as the corner, Rochester Red Wings slowly made their way into the International League leadership.

It's been a difficult job for the Wings because on the days they would win either Newark or Jersey City would be sure to do likewise. It wasn't until Thursday, when the Little Giants lost and the Bears were idle, that a victory set the stage for their first-place entrance, with only a few percentage points separating them from Newark in first and Jersey City in third.

Last night's 10-6 triumph over the Montreal Royals lifter Red Wings over the top. The victory went to Mike Ryba, his fifth in as many starts. Two homers off the bat of Harry Davis and another by Dusty Cooke in the first three innings gave him a lead the Royals never overcame.

Newark Now Third.

Newark went from first place to third by losing a 2-1 decision to the Syracuse Chiefs, and Marius Russo, who allowed only two hits, was charged with the defeat. Johnny Gee, the winner, was nicked for five. John Bottarini, Syracuse catcher, drove in the tying run in the fourth inning with a triple and scored the winning tally when Schulte, Newark's first sacker, misplayed Longacre's roller.

The victory boosted the Chiefs into sixth place, a half game ahead of Buffalo Bisons, who lost a 12-inning contest to Toronto 10-8. Buffalo protested the game because of an infield fly ruling. The Bisons twice forced tie scores by making single runs in the ninth and tenth before a long triple by Bob Elliott sent home Schuster and Mayo Smith with the deciding runs.

Bill Harris, veteran right hander, won his fifth victory of the season, as he blanked Baltimore Orioles 5-0 to boost Jersey City back into second place.

LUCKY STRIKES

Murrin, Australia — (CP)—Terrence Molly and David Garrin, prospecting here, obtained 300 ounces of gold at a depth of three feet. Near Kalgoorlie, R. G. Saunders took 25 ounces from 100 lbs. of stone.

THIRD BASEMAN WON THIS DECISION

Back of this action at third base was a snappy throw from the outfield by George Selkirk, who got an assist as Red Rolfe, New York Yankee's third baseman, tags out Dan Heffner, second baseman for St. Louis Browns, who makes a neat slide into the bag, with a dusty accompanimnt.

EXPECT FIGHT TO END IN KNOCKOUT

Maxie Baer and Lou Nova Are Both Reported in Fine Condition

New York, May 27 (AP) — Although they haven't been knocking their sparring partners kicking and there's not much time left for them to start, there's an idea going around that next Thursday's 15-round scrap between Max Baer and Lou Nova at the Yankee Stadium will end in a knockout.

They will wind up their heavy training over the week-end although Baer plans to keep on boxing daily until Tuesday. They are both reported in fine condition.

Baer's ability to do damage when he lands his Sunday punch is well known. Maybe he isn't as good as he was a few years ago, but that appears to bring the possibility of a knockout nearer. If he can't last the 15 rounds, he'll have to go out and try for a quick finish.

Up at Nova's camp there has been a steady stream of visitors who have had nothing but praise for the young Californian.

CORBYS A. C. STAGED RALLY TO DEFEAT TIREMEN

Victory Costly to Corbys When Simpson Splits Finger

SINFIELD HOMERS

Game is Loosely Played With Both Teams Chalking up 10 Errors

Coming from behind in the latter innings, Chuck Barnett's Corbys A.C. nine overcame Hal Kemp's Dracup "Tiremen" lead to chalk up their initial win of the season at the Flats diamond last night, when Corbys scored seven runs in the last three frames to win 9 to 6 over the Tiremen.

The game was loosely played, ten errors being committed in all, many of which directly attributed to the scoring of both teams, while Corbys only out-hit the losers ten to nine, but punched out hits when safeties meant runs, while the Tiremen failed miserably at the bat, when hits would have been productive of runs.

Both Schrieder and Dracup were nicked hard and often, although the former scattered the Tiremen's hits in the latter stages. Murray, Cole and Kiser pounded out triples for the winners, while Teddy Henn led the batters of the night with three singles, Sinfield clubbing a homer for Dracups in the fourth, driving two across the plate in front of him.

Scored Twice in First

Corbys scored two in the first on one hit, Dracup having to strike out the side. Three hits, including Sinfield's circuit blow, gave the Tiremen four runs in the fourth as Schrieder walked two. They added two more in the sixth on singles by Henn and Riggs, but failed to score in the last inning, when they got the first two batted aboard, but some fine fielding on the part of Cole and Miller pulled Schrieder out of a tough spot. Corbys went on a batting splurge in the sixth and seventh, counting three hits and three runs in each of these frames to cinch the piece. The Dracups failed to register a single extra base blow off the deliveries of Schrieder, with the exception of Sinfield's homer.

Alex Simpson, the Corbys A.C. catcher, sustained a severe hand injury in the last inning when a foul tip struck him on the right thumb, splitting the flesh between the thumb and index finger to inflict a serious wound. Cy Barriage of the same nine was injured in the opening game, which Corbys lost.

The Belleville intermediates, as well as the Picton club of the Bay of Quinte League, are up in arms relative to the league schedule, as released by Secretary Lynn Crossman. "Why Belleville does not meet the Air Force until the Flyers have played Picton and Napanee on two previous occasions. We even meet Napanee and Picton twice before we meet the Flyers. I notice that Napanee gets a couple of games with the R.C.A.F. before we do, however," stated players today as they stated the locals were not in accord with the present schedule. "All we want is an even break with the rest of the clubs," pointed out Wilkins. "On two occasions our club plays on successive days, as do Picton and the Air Force, but we can't see where Napanee is co-operating in the matter of hurrying the schedule and accepting scheduled games too close together," lamented Secretary Marshall Woodcock today as he added that a revision of the schedule would be necessary.

According to the league schedule Belleville does not so much as see the Flyers until June 27, a full month after the league opens, and prior to which both Napanee and Picton come to Belleville on two occasions. The local mentors feel they "ain't been done right by our little baseball Nell" and are about to demand as even a schedule break as has been afforded others, they say. We realise the Flyers were handicapped with a late start owing to the Royal visit, but we see no reason why each club in the league could not have met the R.C.A.F. at least once in the first round of meeting. No doubt this was an oversight on the part of Secretary Crossman and when brought to his attention will be rectified. In the meantime Belleville's postponed game will be played on Thursday, June 1, with the league getting away with Picton at Napanee and May 30. If the Air Force is ready Belleville would likely welcome a home game with the Flyers on June 9, but in the meantime the locals are working out in anticipation of a game here next week.

What concerns the Picton management, however, is just how many players the Napanee Gibbards intend to use from Kingston. It will be remembered that Kingston divorced itself from the O.B.A. earlier in the season, leaving all and sundry of the Limestone City ballsters available for service by their nearest O.B.A. town, which happens to be Napanee. No doubt Walt Gerow will try and sign Stan Spratt, who hurled for the Gibbards last season, but we feel the same conditions will prevail in the Napanee-Kingston situation, as was handed down by the O.B.A. relative to Bowmanville using a wholesale gathering of Oshawa players in the Lake Shore loop. We do not believe Napanee will try to "pack" their team with former Kingston seniors, but doubtless will line up two or possibly three in a pinch, so we can assure Picton their worries are not too great in this matter. However, we have been reliably informed that the Picton team is a much improved nine over last year, Coach Roly Rorke is really hustling the boys over in Ron Church's stamping ground. Picton has two proven hurlers in Kitty Abbott and "Speed" Dainard.

So much for the other clubs in the Bay of Quinte League, but what of our own Belleville team? It seems too bad there is not sufficient interest shown by the citizens in this year's Belleville intermediate club. The players have been turning out to practice with regularity, anywhere from ten to fifteen players working out faithfully four nights each week, but the squad is like a ship without a rudder, they have no coach, manager, club president or even an executive to guide them. Bud Wilkins endeavored to take over the coaching duties early in the season, but pressing business forced him to relinquish these duties this week. It seems too bad these young boys are not given more encouragement, because there is the nucleus of a good intermediate baseball team in Belleville today, but like any other business there must be a guiding head to the organization. Down in Kingston the veteran ball players of yester-year are taking on the responsibilities of coaching and fostering baseball among the minors. Aren't there veterans here in Belleville equally as well qualified? If one or two would show some executive interest, we have been assured of the assistance of others, but it needs some one to first put their shoulder to the wheel.

Too many errors were seen at the Flats last night, ten being chalked up, but there were equally as many errors of omission which don't appear in the score book. Occasionally the batters unleashed a terrific barrage of hits, while Vic Hanna made a sensational running catch of Murray's drive in the sixth to halt the "tiremen" in their rally. Then Art Cole retaliated by stabbing Hanna's drive in the last frame. Had this drive got away from Cole, and it was a hit ordinarily, a different story might have been told. Errors were directly responsible for too many runs on both sides. Even in victory Chuck Barnetts charges suffered a secere loss. Catcher Alex Simpson split his hand between the right thumb and fore-finger when struck with a foul tip. Cy Barriage, the Corbys shortstop, is on the sidelines with a sprained ankle and now Simpson will be out for at least a month. "We got lots of luck, but it's all bad," mumbled Barnett after his team had beaten Dracups 9-6. Apparently the "tiremen" played better softball last night than they did in Point Anne, however.

We're Telling You That — Billy Taylor, star play-maker for the Dominion champion Oshawa Generals, has set up business in Oshawa....Charley Ruffing, one of the few good hitting pitchers in baseball, chalked up his 200th major league victory t'other day.... If you want to see the world's champion New York Yankees in action, they're playing an exhibition game in Toronto next week....The Reds moved into the lead slot of the National League by taking the Cards' measure 7-5 yesterday, when a fast double play in the ninth saved the Redlegs.....Willie Morrisey changed his mind and will start Bunty Lawless in the Hendrie Memorial today, maybe he'll be sorry after all, especially with Suffern and Donosiris in there .... Peterboro opens its senior ball schedule at home today..... Picton opens the Quinte League at Napanee on Tuesday and here goes for a good week end of pickerel fishing.

BENNY RITCHIE IS LIFE GUARD

Appointment Made by the Parks Board at Special Meeting

B. G. "Benny" Ritchie of this city was named life guard and supervisor at Victoria Park for the summer months by the Parks Commission at a special meeting held in the City Hall last evening. The duties of Mr. Ritchie will consist of that of life guard, safe-guarding the lives of those swimming off Victoria Park and also to arrange games and activities for the kiddies during the summer months, Chairman W. A. Woodley announced after the appointment.

The board went on record as being in favor of the erection of a cement retaining wall along the south and east sides of Victoria Park. Commissioner C. R. Clapp was named to wait upon the city council on Monday and present the views of the commission upon the matter.

"The east and south sides of Victoria Park are slowly dropping away into the harbor and unless a wall is erected around these points the park will soon be washed into the water. A cement retaining wall has been needed for many years, and at last the time has arrived when it is necessary to build one if we are to retain the island park," added Chairman Woodley as he further stated that additional beautifications would be added to Victoria Park this year.

A mammoth flower bed will be placed in the site of the present wading pool at the entrance to the park also.

AT THE BELLE

The Story of Vernon And Irene Castle"

Treading the Path of Yesterday is that Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers' film "The Story of Vernon and Irene Castle," now on the Belle screen dealing with those gracious years immediately preceding the World War when the Castles set the whole world dancing. These years will be recalled by millions with fond nostalgia!

It was no longer ago than 1914 that the Castles collectively were the biggest thing in the United States, at all points both east and west.

In New York they presided at Castle House, not so far from Rector's—but widely separated from it in social significance! Both landmarks are gone today, swept into limbo by the rush of post-war years.

But while Castle House stood, it was the rallying place of Gotham society, shrine of American dancers. From it went forth the Tango, the Hesitation Waltz, the Maxixe and the Castle Walk, to change the tempo of the dance world. These memory haunting dances, among many others, are recreated in RKO Radio's impresive screen presentation of the story of the Castles.

Leaders of New York society were proud to be the patronesses of Castle House with one or another pouring tea daily at the afternoon dansants. The official patronesses their names engraved on all invitations, included Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, Mrs. Herman Oelrichs, Mrs. R. W. Bourke Cockran, Mrs. W. G. Rockefeller, Mrs. Oliver Harriman, Miss Elsie De Wolfe, Mrs. Amos Pinchot—and a half dozen other big-wigs of the Blue Book.

To play the roles of Vernon and Irene Castle, monarchs of the dance in their day, the producers had at their command the dancing idols of today—Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers. These two have danced their way through many screen successes, but in "The Story of Vernon Castle" they have their finest and most important vehicle. It was a different task, too, to impersonate dancers of yesteryear whom millions alive today remember with affection.

In depicting the real life story of Mr. and Mrs. Castle, the screen also recreates a golden era of the dance, shattered by war, on the grave of which the jitterbugs now prance.

RKO Radio, in contributing its musical, nimblefooted entrant in the Hollywood trek down the Path of Yesterday, has bent every effort to mount the film lavishly and surround its two stars with capable performers. Among those in the supporting cast are Edna May Oliver, Walter Brennan, Lew Fields, Etienne Girardot, Janet Beecher, Donald MacBride and Frances Mercer. In addition, some two dozen hit tunes of a quarter century ago provide the musical background for the terpsichorean efforts of Astaire and Miss Rogers.

H. C. Potter directed the picture. The screen play was written by Richard Sherman, with adaptation by Oscar Hammerstein II and Dorothy Yost. It was based on two books of memoirs by Mrs. Vernon Castle, who also lent her personal aid to the attainment of authenticity in the dances and in the production values.

"Ugly Duckling" is the title of a wonderful Walt Disney silly symphony color cartoon to be presented on the same program with the popular Belle newsreel, and "Pilot Boat" an unusual screen reelism.

ICELANDERS USE PLANES LOCATING SCHOOLS OF FISH

Washington, May 27 (AP)—Icelanders now fish with airplanes. A Commerce Department report from their country says commercial fishermen have adopted the plane for spotting schools. At an altitude of 4,500 feet, herring have been detected nine to 12 miles away.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Double Danger"

Enhancing the ever-popular story of a gentleman crook by providing him with a clever feminine rival, R.K.O. Radio's new mystery offering, which comes next to the McCarthy Theatre, entitled "Double Danger" two of Hollywood's finest stars were selected to enact the principal roles, Preston Foster and Whitney Bourne.

The plot is sprightly Foster plays a writer of detective stories dealing with the exploits of "The Gentleman," a former cracksman whom the New York police have been vainly pursuing for years. Miss Bourne, as an adventuress, opens the proceedings by cleverly making off with a notable collection of diamonds.

The stones in turn are taken from her by Foster and his valet, posing as a pair of police officers, and from this point the action gains speed. A police commissioner has narrowed his search down to just two people—Foster and Miss Bourne—and he invites them both to his home as guests.

There the various complications rise to intriguing heights, with an ingenious scheme of the commissioner's to trap the long-sought criminal back-firing all over the place and getting itself mixed up with a romance between the two principals.

Ideally cast as the suave literary cracksman, Foster is seconded by Miss Bourne, who in her recent films have proven herself an unusually fine actress. Samuel S. Hinds, Donald Meek, Paul Guilfoyle, Cecil Kellaway, Arthur Lake, June Johnson and Alec Craig are in the supporting cast.

Along with its unique plot, many novelties are woven into the story. The use of an infra-red camera to take a picture of a safe-cracker by invisible "black light" without his knowledge, and other ingenious plans to thwart criminal activities, lead to much of the tense drama of the picture.

"Beauty For The Asking"

The plight of a girl in love with a married man who cares more for money than romance, provides the basis of "Beauty For The Asking" which is to be presented as a second feature to open next at the McCarthy Theatre with "Double Danger" and in which Lucille Ball, Patric Knowles, Donald Woods and Frieda Inescort play the featured roles.

The story deals with the romance of a beauty parlor operator and a handsome salesman. Engaged to be married, the couple is suddenly swept off his feet by a wealthy socialite and marries her.

Although she still loves him, the disillusioned girl tries to forget by entering the business world, but they are thrown together when the young man is made her partner in a busines venture. Bored with his wife, he tries to rekindle his former sweetheart's love, and she is torn between duty and affection. She finally reveals the fortune-hunter in his true light, and finds real romance with another man.

In addition an excellent musical revue completes the programme.

New Playing

The two current feature attractions now being presented at the McCarthy Theatre for the last times and for an evening of exceptional fun and mystery combined into a double feature program this offering is tops in screen enjoyment. Charlie Ruggles, Marjorie Rambeau and Charley Grapewin, in "Sudden Money" is the laugh hit of the year, and "Arrest Bulldog Drummond" is the best yet in this popular 'Drummond' series.

The Heart Song

By OSCAR YOUNG

Geraldine smiled over at the anxious face opposite. But, as she would have been honest enough to admit, that smile was wholly false and summoned only to reassure Delora Smith.

"But, perhaps, Geraldine, you cannot afford to let my share of the rent go and still advance me the $40 I need."

"Forty dolla rs,"ughthot ——

"Forty dollars," thought the girl in amazement, "how in the world can I do it? It simply means I'll have to draw it out of my rainy-day savings. And then I'll have to pay all the rent." Geraldine sat lost in thought, forgetting that she was supposed to reply.

"I'm planning to leave my violin with you as—security."

"Why, Miss Delora, that's absurd. Why should you speak of security when it's a matter between friends. I'm very glad to be able to accommodate you."

The strained look left the tired, middle-aged face and Delora's optimistic expression returned. "It's such a wonderful chance, my dear. I never even hoped to visit Greenville again, my earnings have been so inadequate lately, but now I can see my old friends and go through the house where I was born."

The more practical of the two swallowed a sigh. This unusual demand on her resources meant that she must give up her intention of getting a season ticket for the symphony concerts. And Tom had promised to reserve a seat for himself up in the gallery. She knew that he had wanted to treat her to the seat but his mother was ill and his money was needed. Now if she telephoned her admirer that she'd changed her mind about going to the winter concerts he might believe her to be piqued because he had not presented her with them. If only she had not said anything about it. She could not, of course, hint at her reason for not going. Delora Smith was absurdly proud and would refuse the invitation that opened up a vista of happiness if she had any idea of what the loan of $40 really meant. Delora was a visionary, living from month to month on the scant returns for her exquisite needlework.

"I'll pay everything back when I return," Delora was saying, her cheeks quite rosy with anticipation, "and, Geraldine, if it isn't absolutely convenient I can sell my violin. You remember, Mr. Homer offered me $70 for it."

Geraldine was tempted to answer that she thought that an excellent price for an instrument that was never used. It was not even an heirloom but a violin that had been given to Delora's father as a gift in return for a great kindness.

"I cannot play it and it's of no use to me but, Geraldine, it does look so nice and musical lying across the end table. Don't you think it really lends an air of refinement to our tiny living-room?"

To Geraldine it was merely something to dust, for Delora had put the shabby old case away in the top of her closet. But it meant a bit of beauty in the barren life of her friend, the girl wanted her to keep it.

Tom was upset at Geraldine's change of plan, for he had bought his own ticket, and Delora returned in a day of bitter rain and caught cold. Her visit had been pleasant but her illness now frightened her. Geraldine lost two days' work at the office to care for her and had drawn again on her savings for dainties for the sufferer. So, instead of feeling self-righteous over the fact that she'd been able to do a favor to Delora, Geraldine wished she had not tried to play providence.

"There's the telephone. I expect the doctor wants my report."

It was Tom's voice that answered her. "I called for you at the office," he said contritely. "Have you been ill?"

Geraldine explained with a glad little thrill in her heart the circumstances and Tom, evidently sorry for his former churlishness, said he would be right out to call.

He arrived with a bunch of roses for the invalid and then, his glance falling upon the violin in the corner, asked if she thought Delora would enjoy some music. Through the open doorway Delora listened raptly to the lilting notes of the "Gypsy Love Song" that took her back to the moments of lost youth.

But Geraldine sat amazed at the depth and resonance of the music.

"Why, Tom!" she cried. "That is real music. I had no idea you played at all."

He laid down the bow and looked over at her with a puzzled gleam in his eyes. "I never had such an instrument in my hands before," he acknowledged. "Where did you find such a treasure?"

She told him of the $70 offer made to Delora.

He examined the date mark and then made a telephone call to a music dealer.

"The dealer tells me that this is a genuine Richard Duke violin from the markings and the date of 780," said Tom a moment later. "He will give you around $700 for it, Miss Delora."

In Miss Delora's heart there was vast relief from financial worries but in the hearts of Tom and Geraldine there was muted music—the song of the little god of love.

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and Glasses Magee and Sid Hunt were walking home from school and Sid said to Glasses, Well, I guess you wont have so much to be stuck up about pretty soon, you wont be the only one.

What's you talking about? Glasses, that's what. When the school docter examined me today he claimed I might need glasses on account of my eyes, so my mother is suppose to take me to the optician's, and if the optician says I have to have them why then nobody can keep me from getting them, so I bet it wont be long now, and I'm going to ask for a bigger pair than yours, with black rims around them to make them show plainer, he said.

Like fun, Glasses said. You're just pretending there's something a matter with your eyes and you might fool the school docter maybe but you cant fool the optician because he's got instruments and he can look right in your eyes and see more in them than you can out of them, so go ahead and talk, what do I care? he said.

All right. you'll soon see, it wont be long now before you wont know who people mean when they start calling Glasses around here, Sid said, and Glasses said, Go on, why even if you got a pair you'd only be an amtaure, because it takes years to learn to look through them like a expert. Here, try to look through mine and I bet you wont see a thing, he said.

And he took his glasses off and Sid put them on, Well, things look kind of funny, but that's because these glasses aren't strong enough for me, and that proves I need stronger ones than you, O boy I bet mine will be pretty near as good as telescopes.

Baloney, you dont need any glasses and never will, Glasses said.

Only he looked more nerviss than what he sounded.

BOMBAY PROHIBTION

Bombay City and suburbs are to go completely "dry" from August 1. The Ahmedabad experimental "dry area" is to be extended and converted into a total prohibition area, liquor permits being confined to Europeans only.

"On the whole the experiment o ftotal prohibition in Bardoli and the five villages of Mandvi (district) may be definitely said to be successful and Government have under consideration its extension to Valod Mahal," states the first official report reviewing the progress of total prohibition since its introduction six months ago in Bardoli taluka and five villages on Mandvi (Surat District of Bombay Presidency).

"While before the introduction of prohibition, the consumption of country spirit in the area under report for the same period in the previous year was 3,254 gallons, there was not a single gallon consumed during the same period after the introduction of total prohibition. The sale of country spirit at shops on the border of the area before the introduction of the scheme was 2,032 gallons and after introduction it was 1,617 gallons. Figures of other intoxicants show the same result." Indian Press Union.

TORONTO STOCKS CLOSE

Toronto, May 27 (CP)—Profit-taking on the week's rise trimmed prices narrowly here and there through the gold list in the short session today of the Toronto exchange. About 275,000 shares changed hands in the two hours.

East Malartic, the leaders of the secondary gold share advance, sagged back 5 cents to 2.65 and then tightened up to finish the day practically unchanged from Friday's close. Buying was again substantial in Preston with the price firm. Minor gains were netted by Pickle Crow, Siscoe, Teck Hughes, Beattie, Moneta, San Antonio and Central Patricia.

Against these advances appeared small recessions for O'Brien, MacLeod-Cockshutt, Powell Rouyn and Kirkland Lake.

Buyers of the base metals concentrated on Sherritt and the buying put the price up about 7 cents. Sudbury Basin and Falconbridge improved slightly and the seniors had minor fractional gains.

Industrials generally maintained a firm tone and gains outnumbered losses in the utility, food and financial groups. Senior oils showed little change and the steels registered a minor setback. Bell Telephone, Fanny Farmer, Laura Secord and Imperial Oil were firm.

WALL ST.

New York, May 27 (AP)—With steels well out in front, the Stock Market today put on a selective forward push that boosted favorites fractions to a point or so.

Encouraging to the brokerage fraternity was a pickup in volume as compared with recent sluggish Saturday's. Transfers were about 350,000 shares.

Motors managed to post modest improvement, although this group had to contend with the Briggs Mfg. strike at Detroit which has thrown some 70,000 employees out of work in companies that obtain accessories from this concern.

Prominent on the rising side during the greater part of the brief session—some slipped at the finish—were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Montgomery Ward, Eastman Kodak, Allied Chemical, Santa Fe, Great Northern and American Can.

A trifle backward were U.S. Rubber, American Smelting, U.S. Gypsum, Johns-Manville and General Electric.

Canadian shares failed to develop a definite trend. Fractional gains were chalked up for Hiram Walker, Distillers and International Nickel but C.P.R. and Lake Shore drifted lower. Dominion 4s were neglected.

Six Months Required to Raise a Hog

It usually requires about six months to raise a hog to the proper weight and finish.

After six months of careful feeding and management the hog is often made unfit for the export market by the lack of proper equipment and care in loading into the truck at the farm.

It is an easy matter to construct a light portable chute that will save much time and make it possible to load the hogs with care.

It is also advisable in as far as possible to load the hogs through a doorway that they are accustomed to using because a pig is intelligent enough to question the advisability of crossing new thresholds.

Every bruise that a hog receives in the process of marketing lowers the value of the product and the producer foots the bill.

Some good lots of hogs received during the week of May 26th, 1939, are as follows:

Name and address—	No. Hogs	GRADE A	B 1	B 2	B 3	C 1	C 2	C 3	Premium
Blake Stickle, Frankford	4	2	2						$2.00
L. C. Murphy, Wooler	12	6	6						$6.00
Thos. McGee, Stirling	8	4	4						$4.00
B. Fuller, Shannonville	3	2	1						$2.00
F. Fargey, Tweed	3	2	1						$2.00
W. Vitler, Belleville	7	6	1						$6.00
J. Parks, Plainfield	8	6	2						$6.00
G. Burkett, Frankford	5	3	1	1					$1.50
J. Lydster, Belleville	7	5	2						$5.00

Any farmer who experiences difficulty in obtaining his premiums, kindly notify W. M. Gordon, Federal Department of Agriculture, Canada Packers Limited, Peterborough, Ont

Butter Price Strong On Toronto Market

Toronto, May 27—Butter was strong at previous levels, and egg prices were easy during Friday's session of the Toronto open produce market, according to the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Buyers readily took up all available supplies, which were in light volume on the butter market. In the afternoon session of the market sellers were not offering, reporting that receipts had been cleared. While no Ontario first grade butter sold above the 21c mark during the day, it was not possible to purchase at this level before the close of the market. At the same time sellers did not appear prepared to quote on shipments to arrive, but were looking for higher prices. The close was firm, with prices nominal. Ontario creamery solids remained at 21c for No. 1 grades and at 20 1-4c for 38 score.

The egg market experienced another quiet day. Fresh receipts arrived in good volume and were difficult to clear. Prices, however, held former levels. Graded shipments closed at 19c for grade A-large, 17c for medium, 16c for B's and 15c for C grades.

Kingston Cheese Bd. Wants 2c Bonus on All 1st Grade Cheese

Members of the Kingston Cheese Board will ask the Dominion Government to pay a bonus of two cents per pound on all first grade cheese.

This action was taken at the Thursday evening meeting of the Board when the question of the new bonus was considered. There is a Bill before the House at the present time which proposes to pay two cents on cheese graded 94; one cent on cheese graded 93, but nothing on cheese graded 92.

Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association at a meeting in Selby recently passed a resolution asking that the cheesemakers receive a portion of the proposed bonus. This resolution was sent to the Kingston Board for endorsation, but it was decided to leave the matter with the various factories to act upon.

Government Plans To Take No Action If Families Evicted

Toronto, May 27 (CP)—Welfare Minister Cross said today the Ontario government planned to take no action if Belleville council evicted 10 relief families from city-owned houses.

Mayor Jamieson Bone said yesterday the council would consider the evictions as a test case to determine if the provincial authorities could not be persuaded to share the cost of sheltering these families, just as they do families not living in city-owned houses.

Several tenants are from $50 to $300 in arrears of rent, Mr. Bone said.

Mr. Cross said the provincial policy has been not to pay any share of the shelter cost where houses are owned by the city. "It is a general policy with no discrimination against Belleville," he said. "If council Monday night decides to evict these families, it is their problem, not ours. They can't put it on us."

A NIFTY SPOT— FOR GALS ONLY

Down in North Carolina the feminine of the species requested authorities for "somewhere to fish without male backseat driving." The result was a place called Neals Creek, in one of the state game preserves, freshly stocked with 10,000 trout this spring, which was set aside for the exclusive use of the gals, and here some of them are seen trying their luck in a pretty corner of their territory.

18 FOOT YAWL ON TRANSATLANTIC TRIP

Adventure is in the heart of Guy Avery, 35, of Florida, who set out recently from Bermuda for Genoa, Italy, in this 18-foot motorless yawl. Last summer Avery set out from Tampa, Florida, for the same destination, but after 42 days of storm-tossing was forced to lay up for repairs at Bermuda. Once bitten, twice shy has no place in the outlook of our Mr. Avery.

Lourdes, France, May 27 (AP)—Fred Snite today was lifted from the "Iron Lung" in which he had travelled 5,000 miles to Lourdes and immersed in the cold water of the miracle shrine of the Virgin of Lourdes. Snite, Chicago infantile paralysis victim, remained for almost half an hour in a bath next to the grotto in which the Virgin is worshipped.

BRITISH AMATEUR WON BY A. KYLE

Scottish Walker Cup Star Defeats Welsh Army Officer 2 and 1

Hoylake, England, May 27—(AP)—Alex Kyle, the Scottish Walker Cup star, today won the British Amateur Golf Championship with a 2 to 1 victory over Tony Duncan, Welsh army officer.

Kyle, a cloth designer, succeeds Charley Yates, of Atlanta, Go., eliminated in the early rounds by Dick Chapman, Connecticut Yankee. Chapman fell before Duncan in the quarter-finals yesterday.

UNION LEADERS DIFFER WIDELY

Not Decided on How to Settle Strike of 70,000 Workmen in Two Plants

Detroit, May 27 (AP)—Rival Union leaders differed widely today in their attitude toward proposed consent elections to be conducted by the National Labor Relations Board among employees of two automotive companies to decide a jurisdictional dispute and facilitate settlement of strikers which threw 70,000 persons out of work.

The offer to conduct immediate elections was made by Frank Bowen, Regional N.L.R.B. Director, last night on condition that consent be given by the strike-bound firms—The Briggs Manufacturing Co. and The Graham-Paige Motors Corp.—and the C.I.O. and Independent branches of the United Automobile Workers.

BRISTOL BEAUFORT

Six On Secret List.

Six warplanes on the secret list were shown to a group of members of parliament this week at the Northold Airdrome. Two of these were "mystery ships", so secret that they only flew across the airfield. One was a new type twin-engined plane with a top speed believed to be comparable to the Spitfire.

Britain has many types of fighting machines and bombers. The Wellington bomber for instance has a range of 3,240 miles and a top speed of 257 m.p.h. The Fairey battle bomber can carry 4,125 pounds of bombs and has a range of 1,200 miles. The Blenheim bomber has a top speed of 282 m.p.h.

Among the fighters, or pursuit planes, is the Gladiator, which can climb 15,000 feet in seven minutes, the Hurricane with a top speed "in excess of 330" and carrying eight guns in her wings. The Spitfire which will dive at 500 miles an hour, only 100 miles an hour slower than the speed of a bullet from a .38 calibre revolver.

Among new types still on the secret list is a Roc two-seater fighter with a rotatable gun turret amidships and a Skua dive bomber. Both are reported extremely fast and with the Bristol Beaufort are going into production immediately.

VANCOUVER READY

county societies prepared to shout that they remember the Old Land.

But 10,000 Vancouver Chinese started celebrating today with a lantern parade and Chinatown street dancing. They will find their own places along Monday's route, too, while 20,000 Japanese will mass on an east-end street, flag-waving and cheering like their Occidental neighbors.

Germans, Italians and other Europeans had separate reserved spots and hundreds planned to dress in brilliant national costumes.

Many Old Countrymen

In numbers, however, Old Countrymen will beat them all. Thousands of kilted Scots—complete with pipers, Highland dancers and a choir to sing "Will Ye No Come Back Again" as their Majesties pass, will mass in Little Mountain Park. Just as many Englishmen will line Burrard Bridge.

In North and West Vancouver coast Indians will wear their native costumes.

Their Majesties arrive here at 10 a.m. P.S.T. Monday by train, attend a reception at the city hall an hour later, and a civic luncheon at 1 p.m. Before sailing for Victoria at five o'clock they will have motored through all sections of the city.

Escorted by four Canadian destroyers and Royal Canadian Air Force planes on their 60-mile trip through the island-studded gulf of George, their Majesties reach Victoria at 9 p.m. for a two-night stay at Government House as guests of Lieutenant-Governor Eric W. Hamber and Mrs. Hamber.

MEDALLIONS FOUND

Dresden, Ont., May 27 (CP) — A package containing 240 medallions, stolen from a desk in the public school, were found yesterday in a drawer of the desk. The package, showing signs of handling, was discovered by Gertrude Robinson, the school principal. The thief evidently returned the bronze discs over the Empire Day holiday.

Sidelights on Royal Visit

Calgary, May 27 (CP)—Their Majesties were pleased with the reception the Indians gave them, said King George VI before the royal train left here for Banff yesterday.

"We were delighted with our welcome in Calgary, and most particularly with the splendid reception given us by the Indians," he said. "It has been one of our most enjoyable days in Canada."

Windsor, England, May 27 (AP)—Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose splashed gaily about in the Royal Lodge swimming pool today in their first open-air dip of 1939 while their parents, the King and Queen, rested in Banff, Canada.

The Princesses came to Windsor for the Whitsuntide week-end and for relief from a minor heat wave—several consecutive days with the mercury near 75 degrees.

Wilmington, Del., May 27 (AP)—The sovereign state of Delaware decided today King George VI and Queen Elizabeth could entertain guests with "spirits, wine or beer" while passing through the state on their North American tour. Permission was granted by the Delaware Liquor Commission. There was a legal question whether liquor could be served while the Royal Family's Canadian train crossed the tiny state on the way to Washington. Other trains passing through have special permits to serve drinks.

Vancouver, May 27—Approximately six miles of the King and Queen's drive through North and West Vancouver was cut from the original 57 mile route last night by the special committee in charge of arrangements.

The committee released a statement which said in part: "... in view of the unexpectedly heavy strain on their Majesties it has been decided by their advisers that the afternoon as presently arranged must again be converted as far as possible into the restful drive as originally intended."

CALGARY, May 27. — (CP) — Though Edna McLean, 15, of Calgary, fainted twice yesterday while waiting for Their Majesties to pass along the parade route she was able to fulfill a desire to get a snapshot of the royal couple.

ORILLIA, Ont., May 27.—(CP)—Assurance that the King and Queen will appear on the platform of their train during a 10-minute stop June 6, at Washago, 12 miles north of here, was asked last night by representatives of nearby counties in a communication to Ottawa officials drawn up at a meeting here.

The communication also asked that the train be re-routed from the east side of Lake to the west, passing through Orillia and Barrie.

EDMONTON, May 27.—(CP) — Twelve hundred Indians from Cree and Stoney reservations in this district will come here for the royal visit June 2, bringing with them the finest display of beadwork ever exhibited in Edmonton. An encampment including five decorated teepees has been allotted them on the royal route.

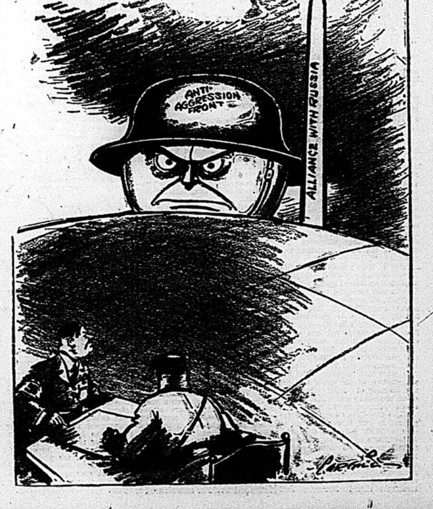
POOR OLD RED! —SORE ARM!

What seven American League teams would do if Red Ruffing's arm was in good shape we couldn't say. From time to time this year there have been reports on Red's ailing flipper and here the Yankees' mound ace is seen giving it special treatment in hot water, contained in a pan rigged up with a whirling gadget that gives a gentle massage. Red also fixes up his "innards" with a spoonful of something. Incidentally the patient has only been able to win seven straight games for the best record in the majors with his "sore" arm.

THE WORLD OF THE WEEK!



POLICE CORDON

Inspector Knight warned the posse that trouble might lie ahead in the hilly, swampy, wooded country. Black flies and mosquitoes infest the area.

Given Chance to Retire.

"If there are any men who want to go back, let them go now," he said. "I don't want anyone with me who won't see it through."

Every searcher stuck grimly to the task that took on new intensity yesterday when the bodies of Bennett and his friend, Sawyer, were fished from the bottom of Mountain Creek, near Bennett's prospecting cabin. Police believed Cassleman's age and injuries he is believed to have suffered will help track him down.

The bodies of Bennett and Sawyer, understood to have been working on a gold strike, were brought to Sudbury last night. Part of Bennett's head had been torn off by a sharp-nosed bullet and Sawyer had been shot through the heart.

Finding of the bodies was the first definite evidence that the prospectors had been slain, although police suspected foul play when the interior of Bennett's cabin was found in disorder. They had been summoned to the lake-side by relatives of Bennett when the prospectors' canoe was found floating in the lake last week. Cassleman, his face bruised, was questioned Tuesday night by police.

Never Staked Farm

Bennett's lawyer, J. R. Stirrett, of Toronto, who came to aid in the search for the bodies, said Bennett had told him that Cassleman's licence of occupation to his 150-acre farm had elapsed March 31, 1936, and was declared cancelled eight months later. But Bennett, confident though he was that valuable gold properties lay in that area, never staked the Cassleman farm, the lawyer said.

"Bennett knew the licence had elapsed but never took advantage of it," the lawyer said. "He told me about it often. Since he made his last good mineral find, he had been running blaze lines near Cassleman's shanty."

In his strikes along Mountain Creek, Bennett thought he had "the biggest gold mine on the North American continent," Stirrett continued. "He wouldn't deal for it. He refused $100,000 for it from a private Sudbury syndicate. He was going to mine it himself from the proceeds of his last big nickel deal, when he left his nickel holdings to go to the International Nickel Company."

The assays of gold found on the property were "amazing" the lawyer said.

Plenty of Free Gold

"First of all there was free gold found in 32 places along the vein. Samples taken from the surface rock, not where the free gold was, assayed all the way from $163 a ton to $8.05 a ton. It is a phenomenal diabase dike, with quartz veins. He also uncovered veins running parallel to it but north. These hadn't assayed quite as high, and he was running blaze lines through them to near Cassleman's property within the past few weeks."

An official of a lumbering company that brought Cassleman north in 1912 as a teamster said the old man always has been known for his love for horses and the outdoors.

Great Hand with Horses

"Bill Cassleman came to Sudbury from Wybridge, near Midland," the official said. "He had lived around Wybridge for about 25 years and was about 50 when he came north. He had always been a great hand with horses. So I brought him to the lumber camps to drive teams.

"In the summer months he acted as sort of barn boss and took care of all the horses left in the camps during the summer carryover. He loved a good horse and certainly knew how to take care of them. But he always liked to be alone and since the lumber company closed and Casseman took up his land on Mountain Creek, I do not think he has come to Sudbury more than twice a year.

FAMOUS SURGEON,

least three days.

Dr. Mayo was stricken here eight days ago and was rushed to hospital. Five doctors attended him.

Charles Horace Mayo was the younger of two sons of a country doctor at Rochester, Minn., who transformed their heritage of a general practice into a clinic and research foundation that made the pleasant little city in the dairy region of Southern Minnesota the mecca of the world's medical experts.

From St. Mary's Hospital, a small-town institution founded by their English-born father, they developed a setup that embraced six capacious hospitals, skyscraper office and laboratory buildings and housing for literally hundreds of thousands of annual patients and visitors. Millions of dollars flowed into their coffers, but, with the exception of fixed modest salaries for themselves and adequate pay for their resident staff members, the money, after 1919, went back to projects for the perpetuation of the clinic and for the training of future diagnosticians, physicians and surgeons capable of carrying on the work.

When the clinic formally was organized in 1912, it was designed to care for 14,000 patients a year. But in 1913 there were 24,000 registrants in 1925, there were 62,000 and in 1936 an estimated 80,000. What with patients, members of their families and scientists, it was estimated that upwards of 250,000 transients visited Rochester that year.

Foundation Grew Up

Along with the clinic there grew up the Mayo Foundation for Medical Education and Research at Rochester, in affiliation with the University of Minnesota. The brothers gave $1,500,000 to establish this project in 1915, and added $500,000 to its fund in 1935. The foundation also shares in the income from the clinic.

In 1919 they formed the Mayo Properties Association, to hold all property and funds of the Mayo Clinic and insure the perpetuity of its work.

All this developed out of the practice and vision of Dr. William Worrall Mayo, father of the famous brothers and known, until his death at 90, as "the old doctor". Born in Manchester, England, and himself a pioneer in surgery, he initiated his sons into medical work, frequently taking them on his visits to patients and afterward explaining his diagnoses and methods of treatment.

Three stages of development marked the clinic's growth. At first it was merely a group of hospital practitioners caring for patients attracted to Rochester by the deft surgery of the Mayo brothers. Then the surgical successes of the group operated to limit its medical work to diagnosis only. Finally it became the present comprehensive organization providing diagnosis, treatment, hospital management and convalescence for its patients from general and specialty viewpoints in both medicine and surgery.

SENATE VOTES

unification are simply preaching the impossible," said Dr. Manion.

"It is my idea that the only constructive proposal before the country today which could do something towards solving this railway problem is the proposal for further co-operation between the two railway systems.

"Practically the same economies can be made under co-operation as under unification. Yet the two railways would be kept separate. They would not ultimately combine into one monopoly, one group which would have a power which would be dangerous in a country such as this."

Dr. Manion said he had been accused of "muddled thinking" by a Montreal financial paper but the muddled thinking was on the part of those who claimed unification would solve the railway problem.

Still Believes In Act.

"I see," he said, "that even the gentleman who in another place supports unification so strongly (Senator Meighen) admits in his speech that it will not wipe out the deficit of the Canadian National Railways. I hope the financial paper that was kind enough to talk of 'muddled thinking' will take a lesson or two from him if they will not accept one from me."

It was Dr. Manion who, as Minister of Railways in the Bennett administration, introduced the Canadian National-Canadian Pacific Act under which the railways are required to co-operate. He said he still believed in that act.

"I believe it is the duty of the minister," he declared, "whatever government is in power, to see to it that these cooperative measures and arrangements are put into effect.

"We did not succeed very well in this respect. This government has not succeeded very well either. I believe that if there were less talk about unification there would be more cooperation."

Transport Minister Howe denied a suggestion the bill was a step in the direction of unification.

"The result of this bill will be that any co-operative measure will be viewed by the railways having in mind that the labor displaced must receive compensation," he said.

"I believe that to view a co-operative measure without any thought for the displaced employees would be to throw the whole thing out of proportion and any co-operative measure which will not carry sufficient benefit to justify compensation to the displaced employees should not proceed."

Won't Do Away With Deficit.

Dr. Manion repeated his statement that there was no solution to the railway problem if by solution was meant wiping out the C.N.R. deficit.

"Even the man who supports unification so strongly admits that unification won't do away with deficits," he said.

"I think it is the duty of the minister to do all in his power to see that co-operative measures are undertaken," said Dr. Manion. "We didn't succeed particularly well and this government has not succeeded very well so far."

Railway Minister Howe was seeking second reading of his bill which provides a scale of compensation for employees displaced or demoted by such cooperation.

Nothing was farther from the fact than the statement sometimes heard that this scheme was intended to pave the way to amalgamation, the minister declared at the start of the day's debate.

The plan was patterned after compensation plans adopted in Britain and the United States, as a preliminary to consolidation where there were hundreds of separate railways.

Voluntary Arrangement.

The U.S. plan had been a voluntary arrangement but there had been indications that the government would pass legislation if no agreement was reached.

Chief difference between the present bill and the Washington agreement was that men with less than one year's service were compensated under the latter.

The plan here would not be retroactive and would be administered by a board representing the railways and unions. The standard brotherhoods representing 80 per cent of railway employees had asked for the legislation and the minister had arranged a meeting between the brotherhoods and the railways. There had been no great difficulty in reaching terms.

Hon. Hugh Stewart, (Con.-Leeds), said a workman's property rights in his pay envelope should be recognized.

Rene Pelletier, (Soc. Credit - Peace River) urged further railway economies by way of reducing interest on bonded indebtedness and co-operation in eliminating competing express and telegraph offices.

Robert Finn, (Lib-Halifax), asserted Parliament had not the right to remove one pieces of track of the old Intercolonial Railway, which was built under terms of the Confederation agreement. (The Intercolonial linked Montreal and the Maritimes, and is now operated by the C. N. R.)

As long as he was a member, he would insist that every employee of that railway would continue in its employment.

Proposes Amendment

Mr. Finn proposed the Minister should amend the bill to include specific protection of those rights.

Hugh McKinnon (Lib Kenora-Rainy River) advocated that the bill be made retroactive to apply to men losing jobs in the last few years.

J. N. Francoeur, (Lib-Tobtinière) did not object to Montreal getting a new $12,000,000 C. N. R. terminal but he felt it only fair that rural parts of the country should get a share aswell since all taxpayers contributed to the deficit.

The House took a holiday today for the first Saturday in several weeks, except last Saturday when members took part in the celebrations attendant on the King's visit to Ottawa.

No Session Today

They ceased labor until Monday after adopting the railway measure and Finance Minister Dunning's Central Mortgage Bank Bill on second reading, besides completing the passage of estimates for the Department of Trade and Commerce and voting several items for the Mines and Resources Department, $8,500,000 in all.

The Central Mortgage Bank Bill will be studied in the banking and commerce committee next week. It is designed to bring about an adjustment of mortgage indebtedness, reduction in interest rates and the introduction of new money into the mortgage business.

Representations from insurance, trust and other financial companies lending money on mortgages are expected to be heard by the committee and the study of the bill may extend over several days. If the committee completes its work in time many members are hopeful the session may be brought to a close next week.

Painfully bruised when her automobile was overturned in a collision with a truck, Queen Mary celebrated her 72nd birthday quietly at Marlborough House instead of attending the races at Epsom as she had intended. King George and Queen Elizabeth sent the Queen Mother birthday felicitations from Calgary.

BIGGEST EGG

On Thursday last Menno Steckly, of the 14th of Ellice, left at The Sun office one of the largest hen's eggs we have ever seen. It weighed six ounces, measured nine inches in circumference and seven and a half inches in girth. Mr. Steckly informs us that the Rock hen which laid this abnormal egg died a short time after the egg was found. On receiving the egg we immediately placed it in our window but it was not there very long when someone suggested that we "blow it out" and fill the shell with plaster paris so that it could be kept. One of our staff volunteered to do the "blowing and he was not long in discovering that there was something inside that would not come out through the small holes we had pierced in the ends. The opening was enlarged and, much to our amazement, it revealed another average-size hard-shelled egg inside the outer shell. This freak is attracting quite a lot of attention and many of the youngsters after giving it the once-over ask, "How did you ever get that hen egg through that small opening in the goose egg?"—Milverton Sun.

HER garden is her haven—just as her husband had planned when he made his Will.

To him, her love of flowers was more than a symbol of her gentle and home-loving nature; also he realized, it represented a human quality that merited and needed protection against the worries and hardships of the business world.

It was a thoughtful act on his part when he arranged his Will to make certain that the most concern she need have for the rest of her life will be the garden she likes so well.

VISIT TO RESORT

in Banff last night for a rest spell on their trans-Canada tour.

Tucked high in the Canadian Rockies, Banff gave the royal visitors a quiet welcome after their rousing receptions at Medicine Hat and Calgary yesterday. Their visit here will be devoid of formal ceremonies and they leave for the Pacific Coast Sunday morning.

It was a new part of Canada in which Their Majesties rested today. And if plants materialize they will see the beauties of Banff from a western buggy drawn by a sure-footed mountain pony.

In Springtime Glory

Banff, 4,533 feet above sea level, is in its springtime glory. Poplar trees are turning a deeper shade of green. The Blue Bow River is gathering strength from melting snow and racing swiftly to the Prairies.

All-year-round residents of the mountain resort did some decorating to honor their royal visitors. But they did it on a modest scale in the knowledge Nature's handiwork needed no adornments. Flags are the major decorations.

From windows of the royal suite, Their Majesties can see the Bow River wind through its frame of rugged mountains, seemingly to disappear at the foot of the snow-ridged Fairholm Range. Almost beneath their window the Bow Falls play a symphony.

Against the sky are towering Mount Norquay, Mount Rundle and Cascada Mountain with their wooded slopes, and a score of other mountains capped by snow Cascade and Stoney Squaw Mountains lie at the end of Banff Avenue.

Luxurious Grass.

On the golf course, in the woods or wherever their Majesties care to stroll in the Bow Valley they will find a luxurious green carpet of grass.

In this mountain splendor King George and Queen Elizabeth, winning Canadian hearts wherever they go, will enjoy a break in the round of activities begun in Quebec ten days ago.

Calgary, where sunshine brightened the two hour visit, gave their Majesties a western welcome — as hospitable as a rancher's greeting to a weary traveller, as hearty as a cowboy's cheery "halloo" to a fellow trail-rider.

The ranchers, cowboys, farmers, and 2,000 Indians trooped to the modernized cattle town to join city folk in the roaring welcome

From the time the Royal train arrived on schedule at 3 p.m., M.S.T., until it rolled on again at five, their Majesties received and acknowledged cheers along the eight-mile procession route. Most spectacular was the Indian greeting at their teepee encampment.

Braves galloping madly on horseback, squaws whooping, tom-toms throbbing, the Blackfoot Indians, Blood, Peigan, Sarcee and Stony tribes paid homage to the "great white father" and his Queen.

Chief Pays Homage.

Buck Chief, 75-year-old son of Running Rabbit, signator of the 1877 treaty that made Canadian Indians wards of Queen Victoria, gave his Majesty a message that the foothills tribes were proud to see the "great white father" from across the waters.

White Head Chief, Medicine Man of the Blackfoot tribe, Chief Shot on both sides of the Bloods, Yellow Horn of the Peigans, David Bearspaw of the Stones and Dave Crow Child of the Sarcees grunted agreement.

Two children of the tribes, "Holy Spring", a boy, and "First Snake", a girl, excitedly presented a beaded medicine bag to the Queen.

Their Majesties took great delight in the beaded beauty of the Indian regalia, the coloring of the 20-foot wigwams. During the five-minute stop in front of the 30 teepees, his Majesty greeted Duck Chief.

Duck Chief wore the medal given him shortly after the signing of "Treaty No. 7", the Blackfoot treaty, and another to celebrate the visit of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York, later King George V and Queen Mary, the present king's parents.

Passed Cheering Throngs

It was expected the chiefs would lead the King into the main teepee for a peace-pipe smoke. But the milling crowd appeared to discourage it.

Later, along the railway from Calgary to Banff the royal train passed cheering throngs. Windshields flashed in the strong sun as automobiles stood parked in the low hills. Hundreds hugged the right-of-way at Cochrane, 25 miles west of Calgary and one of the oldest cowtowns of the range country.

Shadows were settling in the valleys as their Majesties reached Banff's rustic station but sun-flooded peaks rimmed the sky in brilliance.

While 1,200 children, many drawn from schools in the mountain fastnesses, stood excitedly on bleacher seats to cheer, Park Superintendent P. J. Jennings welcomed the royal couple informally.

Queen in Beige Ensemble

The Queen was dressed in the same beige ensemble she wore at Calgary and the King in the same navy blue, pin-striped suit but he had changed his derby hat for a soft brown hat.

They drove to the Banff Springs Hotel and went immediately to their suite but reappeared in ten minutes. As they wandered out into the invigorating mountain air to visit Bow Falls and the golf course, Royal Canadian Mounted Police Officers stepped up to accompany them. Their Majesties preferred, however, to find the valley's beauty for themselves and the King and Queen returned after a quarter-hour's stroll.

The Top Hat Tyranny Grows

This cult of top hats threatens to disrupt our Canadian democracy. But, make no mistake, the tyranny of top hats is growing. One by one they are sprouting on the landscape, a black, hideous fungus growth. And once a man has a top hat he is separated forever by a vast gulf of social consciousness from all men who have no top hats.

A man who has no top hat is always made to feel inferior. He may pretend to scorn the top hat. He may write columns in the newspapers attacking it, but at heart he is in awe of it. He is afraid of it. He feels small and mean beside it. And he hates the man who wears it.

I have seen many top hat occasions in my time and I have always noted the contempt which the bystander expresses for the top hat; not merely because he dislikes its shape and color, not because his aesthetic senses are affronted (as well they might be) but because he recognized here an emblem of social inequality, a token of privilege, a black pirate sign of economic inequality and established privilege

He pretends to hurl contempt at this emblem but inside he envies it. He tries to tell himself that he would not be found dead in a top hat, but he knows inwardly that he really wants one, has always wanted one, and will be found dead without one. That is what hurts. That is what stirs up strife in a nation.

One solution would be to forbid top hats altogether. That, however, would only cause bitterness among the top hatted. No, a far better solution is to force everyone to wear a top hat.

Let the state distribute them, like gas masks in war time (for they are just as ugly and not so useful) and compel everyone to put one on. Then, when every man has satisfied his secret vanity, when all classes are made equal again, you will find a sudden uprising of our natural democracy and independence. The top hat will have lost its mystic power, its symbolism of privilege, and no one will ever wear it again.—Bruce Hutchinson in Victoria Times.

"Baby Clipper" Believed Sighted Over Scotland

Small Airplane Seen Flying High Over Londonderry

Tom Smith, Irishman, May Achieve With Light Machine What Many Experts Believed to be Impossible

GOING TO ENGLAND

When Sighted Over Scotland Tiny Machine Was Heading South on Way to England

London, May 29—(AP)—A small airplane flying very high and believed by some to be Thomas Smith's tiny "Baby Clipper" was sighted at 4:15 p.m. G.M.T. (12:15 p.m. EDT) today over Wigtownshire, on the western tip of Scotland headed toward England. The plane which was coming from Ireland was seen about three miles inland.

Nearly two hours earlier a high-flying airplane similarly described was seen passing over Londonderry, Northern Ireland, in the direction of England.

Why the Weather!

Long range weather forecasts! These can not be said to be a great success to date. It is interesting to note the opinion of a great meteorologist of 40 years ago, when there was as great demand for them as now. He said that we should not expect the detail which is put into the daily forcasts, and should be satisfied with a statement as to the general features only of a week, month or season. He urged that we should study the basis of meteorological phenomena, the laws of mechanics and heat that apply to the air, and he implied (since the science did not start until 1830) that we should be obliged to wait some time and that the true basis is one founded on facts and laws labouriously discovered after a long search.

PARLIAMENT MAY FINISH SESSIONS BY END OF WEEK

C.C.F. and S.C. Members Oppose Measure to Borrow 750 Millions by Usual Method

DREW TO TESTIFY

Ottawa, May 29 (CP)—Parliament resumed its labors today with the possibility that prorogation might be reached by the end of the week.

Little legislation remains to be disposed of, but the unfinished business has accumulated, and some members consider it is too much to get through before the first week in June.

Among major items on the program was Finance Minister Dunning's bill for authority for the government to borrow up to $750,000,000 for refunding and other purposes. Social Credit and Co-operative Commonwealth Federation members have opposed the measure through the preliminary stages with alternative suggestions for an issue of currency to accomplish the same purpose. The government, however, has been equally insistent that there will be no such inflationary step.

Probably due for resumption today was debate on a Senate bill providing compensation for railway workers who lose their jobs or are demoted as a result of co-operative measures between the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways.

Yvonne Blows Out Four Candles, Acclaimed Champion of Quintuplets

Callander, Ont., May 29—(CP)—Yvonne, second last in the weight column, is the champion candle-blower-outer of the Dionne Quintuplets. She outpuffed her sisters as they celebrated their fifth birthday, only one of five candles on her personal cake weathering the blow.

As a lastminute surprise the children were presented with individual cakes besides one large Angel cake for the party yesterday with their parents, sisters and brothers. Marie, Annette and Emilie scored three candles with their puffs. Only two flames bowed to the effort of little Cecile.

The children started the sixth year of their lives with gifts prized more than any other of the thousands they have received—five dolls from their mother and father. Large sleeping dolls with brown eyes, they are gowned in the particular color of each Quint. Immediately the gifts were presented, other playthings were set aside.

Birthday cards, gifts, flowers and luck charms came from all parts of Canada and the United States. A greeting sent by two amateur short-wave radio operators in New Bedford, Mass., was delivered, after being picked up and relayed by other "hams" in Morrisburg, Ont., and North Bay, 11½ miles from here.

Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe kissed each of his famous charges tenderly as he visited them in the nursery before the party yesterday. He was rewarded when each of the children kissed his forehead today—the 56th life milestone of the little Country Doctor.

Besides their parents, Oliva and Elzire, the Quints played hostesses to two of their brothers, Daniel and Oliva, Jr., and their sister, Pauline. Ernest, Rose and Therese, have returned to their schools in Quebec, and baby Victor was having trouble with teething.

Festivities started in the afternoon and lasted four hours. When the visitors left to return to their farm home 100 yards away, the hostesses were in their pink pyjamas. They were placed in their cots as the door closed behind their Revelstoke, B.C., May 29 (CP)—The royal train rolled down the Pacific slope today, carrying King George and Queen Elizabeth from the rugged grandeur of the mountains, through the Fraser Valley's patchwork farms and down to the blue waters of the Gulf of Georgia.

Before them lay Vancouver's reception. Behind were nearly two days of relaxation in the beauties of the Banff National Park, an unscheduled motor drive over the Great Divide into British Columbia and the scenic train ride through the mountain ranges. The King and Queen rode in a locomotive cab en route.

The rest period, first long freedom from crowds and official functions since their Majesties landed at Quebec, May 17, started on arrival at Banff, Alta., at 7.30 p.m. M.S.T. Friday. It ended yesterday when the Royal couple boarded the train again at Field, B.C., after motoring 56 miles from Banff by way of lovely Lake Louise.

Thousands Cheer

A crowd of 1,000 cheered with true mountain vigor as the royal party of 40 reached Field and boarded the train at 1.26 p.m. Another crowd of 8,000 shouted a lusty welcome during an unofficial stop at Revelstoke and 10,000 more greeted their Majesties at Kamloops, the city's population almost doubled.

Early Saturday the King and Queen made a motor trip to Tunnel Mountain, two miles from the hotel, and walked for 50 minutes. They reached the top of the 5,500 foot peak and returned to the hotel in time for lunch.

A deer wandering on the road forced the royal car to halt, their Majesties taking keen interest. They saw a young mear which the King photographed and the amus-

Vancouver, May 29 (CP)—Early crowds lined Vancouver's downtown streets today as the silver and blue train carrying King George and Queen Elizabeth to the Pacific came out of the coast range mountains into the green pastures of the Fraser Valley.

Street cars started service two hours earlier than usual, carrying crowds to vantage points along the 51-mile motor route, beginning at the downtown station almost immediately following the arrival at 10 a.m., P.S.T.

The waterfront, only 100 yards from the station, was ablaze with color as ships displayed strings of holiday flags and bunting. Ferries dotted the harbor, carrying throngs to the city from North and West Vancouver on the north shore of Burrard Inlet.

Streets along the route and down town buildings were decorated last week but during the week-end new flags and streamers appeared on thousands of homes. On the route and off, few houses could be found without some sort of decorations.

Temporary Stands

Temporary grandstands by the score—most at street level but some on building roofs — sprang up everywhere. Seats ranged from $1 to $30 for "high-class vantage points" with refreshments included.

Chinatown began its celebration Saturday night. The golden-headed, man-carired Chinese drag-

Gifts Presented To Housekeeper And Manager by King

By MURIEL ADAMS

Banff, Alta., May 29 (CP) — The King and Queen left two gifts behind them in return for their hospitable, informal stay at Banff Springs Hotel this week.

Before leaving the hotel to attend the Anglican Church service which preceded the automobile drive to Field to rejoin the Royal train, they summoned Miss S. C. Gongden, the head housekeeper, and R. M. Deyell, hotel manager, to the Royal suie.

The Queen presented the housekeeper with a rough-silver compact marked with a crown in red enamel. Miss Congden, who has served many distinguished guests in her long hotel experience but never a King and Queen, was charmed with her gift and the kindness of the Royal couple.

"I didn't expect a handshake but they both insisted on shaking hands with me and the Queen told me to use the compact every day, not to keep it for best," she said.

Mr. Deyell's gift was a pair of blue enamel cuff links, with G.R. engraved on them in red enamel. As the Royal car prepared to depart for church Mr. Deyell took his wife and four-year-old daughter, dressed in a Scottish plaid costume, to bid the King and Queen farewell.

The father held Roberta Jane up to see their Majesties, who smiled at her and shook hands.

Queen Gathers Up Wild Flowers Thrown into Car by 11-Year Girl

Banff, Alta., May 29 (CP)—There was many a charming incident when King George and Queen Elizabeth made their 40-hour stop in Banff National Park this week-end. 11-year-old Barbara Wakelyn is ever so happy and N. B. Sanson is in a bit of a dither.

Barbara, with other children of her own age, was gathering mountain orchids, better known as lady's slippers, when the Royal car passed slowly en route to Tunnel Mountain. Impulsively Barbara threw the armful of flowers into the car. Queen Elizabeth quickly gathered them up and waved.

Sanson, superannuated civil servant who for many years was Dominion Meteorological Officer and Museum Curator here, was taking a light constitutional on Tunnel Mountain when the Royal car went past. On invitation of his Majesty, Park Superintendent J. P. Jennings presented Sanson.

The King asked questions about the mountain and told Sanson the first thing he noticed on reaching Banff was a flag on the summit of Sulphur Mountain beside the observatory.

Vancouver, May 29 —(CP) — Cheers thundered over this great seaport today as King George and Queen Elizabeth, nearing the end of their westward tour of Canada received the homage of Canada's Pacific gateway.

The King First to Step from Train

King George was off the train first, a moment after it stopped. He shook hands with Mayor Lyle Telford, who was presented by Prime Minister Mackenzie King, then with Mrs. Telford, presented by her husband.

SPORTS CLOTHES WORN BY QUEEN

Enjoyed Morning Drive and Walk to Top of High Mountain Peak

Banff, Alta., May 29 (CP)—Queen Elizabeth wore sports clothes Saturday for the first time in Canada when their Majesties enjoyed a morning drive to Tunnel Mountain here and walked for 50 minutes, reaching the top of the 5,550-foot peak.

Her long-sleeved sports frock was of dull gold flannel, buttoned from the open neckline to the hem. The Queen's soft felt hat in matching tone had a creased crown and narrow brim turned up at the back. Her low-heeled walking shoes were of grey suede and she wore a soft silk scarf bordered in moss green. The outfit was topped by a gold camel's hair polo coat.

For an afternoon buggy ride, the Queen changed to a tailored, blue-grey suit of tweed, a high-off-the-face hat and high-heeled grey suede pumps marked with perforations around the toe. A three-cornered blue silk kerchief was tied around her neck and she wore a diamond maple leaf pin on the lapel of her short suit coat.

Stunning Costume.

The Queen appeared in one of the most stunning costumes she has worn since her arrival in Canada when she left the hotel Sunday for their Majesties unscheduled motor drive from Banff to Field.

To match her eyes, dress, coat and hat were a deep sky blue. Her long, light wool coat, falling to the hem of her simply designed crepe frock, was split almost to the hips at both sides, giving a panelled effect as she walked. Deep double bands of blue fox marked the below-elbow sleeves and on the front of the coat was pinned the diamond maple leaf pin she has worn almost daily since her arrival in this country.

Her hand-turned, high-crowned hat was caught close to her head in skull-cap effect at the back, brimming out at the front. Smooth feathers in fuchsia shade splashed color on the crown and front.

Her high-heeled pumps were dull grey suede and she carried a grey bag and a spray of pink orchids.

SARLES' PAVILION AT LAKE ENTERED

Gaining entrance by means of forcing a rear window, thieves stole large quantities of ice cream, chocolate bars and candy from Sarles' pavilion at Oak Lake some time last night.

Provincial Constable Wm. McBrien investigated and early today found traces of chocolate bar paper wrappers and ice cream cones some distance west of Oak Lake. The police followed clues strewn along the roadside for some miles, indicating the thieves had doubtless been travelling by motor car.

No disturbances were heard by the nearby cottagers or owner during the night. The canteen was open for business last evening. Mr. Sarles securing the building before retiring late. The value of the ice cream, chocolate bars and candy stolen was in excess of $10.00 police were told.

HEAVY RAINFALL IN MADOC DISTRICT

The season's heaviest downfall of rain was seen throughout the Madoc district yesterday when a torrential precipitation was seen. Low lands were flooded during the two hour downpour as the storm, preceded by some slight demonstration of electrical flashes and thunder, swept in from the west. Several boat loads of anglers in Moira Lake, mostly from Belleville, were caught in the sudden downpour, one boat load being swamped and capsized. No serious results were reported, although considerable fishing tackle was lost as the storm tossed the boat and occupants about in the water for some considerable time. Fortunately the occupants could swim, it was learned. Residents of the Madoc district stated, after the rainfall had abated, that is was the heaviest downfall and squall seen in that district in years. Small young trees were uprooted in various sections of the countryside.

Mr. Hunt was proceeding easterly on Dundas St. and was forced to swerve out of the line of traffic as another car, driven out of William St. onto Dundas by Geo. G. Webber, Toronto, crossed the former's path. It was raining at the time, Traffic Officer Ellis learned upon his investigation. No person was injured, although Mr. Hunt's car was somewhat damaged and the pole broken off. An amicable arrangement of settlement of damages were reported.

CITY FIRE-HALLS ARE SPICK AND SPAN

With the completion of the renovation and improvements of the fire-halls, city fire squads today forsook paint-brush and other spring-cleaning apparatus and again donned the brass and blue of their calling.

All woodwork in the firehalls has been freshly painted. Stairways gleam in a new coat of grey. Cream and brown decorate the sleeping and recreation quarters, while new varnish shines on walls and ceiling.

New woodwork now covers the unsightly plaster and kalsomine that formerly decorated the walls of the engine house of No. 1 Fire Hall. The outside of the buildings have been treated with coats of red water-paint, and the fire halls inside and out now present a bright, fresh and attractive appearance.

Quarry operations, cold-patching of roads, concrete sidewalk repairing and sewer cleaning, coupled with other routine jobs of the Department accounted for an employment list of forty-eight men hired by the Department of Public Works today. Though roads within the city emerged through the winter in comparatively good shape, considerable patching has been necessary to put them in shape for summer traffic.

FIVE GENERATIONS SERVE CANADA

Bonnycastle of Campbellford, Invited to Attend Service in Kingston

Scions of a sturdy British military family, five generations of which have served the Empire in Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bonnycastle and Miss Hilda Bonnycastle, of Campbellford, were honored recently when they received invitations to attend the divine service which was to have been held in Fort Henry, Kingston, during the Royal Visit to that city on May 21st. The service was cancelled owing to shortening of the visit of the King and Queen to that city.

It was during the wars of 1812 that Lieut.-Col. Sir Richard Bonnycastle of the Royal Engineers was sent to Canada to supervise construction of fortifications. He engineered the construction of Fort Henry, the Martello Towers and other fortifications. He also built similar forts in Halifax.

Colonel Bonnycastle served during the war of 1812-14 and while commanding Canadian and British troops near Kingston in 1837-38 was knighted for bravery. He was later Governor of Newfoundland and wrote many historical books still used as reference works on the early history of Canada. He spent the latter years of his life in Kingston where he died.

The five generations of the family, which have served the Empire in Canada, and in wars in which the Dominion was engaged are: Lieut.-Colonel Sir Richard H. Bonnycastle, 1812-14; 1837-38; Major Henry W. J. Bonnycastle, 1837-38; Major Richard H. Bonnycastle, 1866-85; Charles Bonnycastle, 1866, of the third generation; Lieut.-Col. A. L. Bonnycastle, 1914-18; Major R. H. Bonnycastle, Jr., Medical Corps, 1914-18, Captain G. C. Bonnycastle, 1914-18, Captain fourth generation; Geoffrey Bonnycastle 1914-18 and other members of the fifth generation.

Police Blotter

Sneak thieves have been reported stripping metal from the old Roy property, razed by fire last winter. Fixtures are being freely taken, Mr. J. Cruji informed the city police over the week-end. The articles taken are usually plumbing goods and other metals that can be sold for scrap iron. The matter is being thoroughly investigated by the authorities, as the looting of such properties is considered a serious offence under the Criminal Code.

James Sopha, Charlotte Street, reported the theft of gasoline taken from his car over the week-end. Mr. Sopha parked his automobile in front of his own premises on Charlotte Street, on Saturday night. Upon his return the cap was found missing from off the gasoline tank and six gallons of gasoline had been stolen. The gas had doubtless been siphoned out of the tank, although no strangers or undue disturbances were seen or heard.

City police court, held before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., was short and to the point today. A domestic case was amicably settled when the husband and head of the family charged with non-support, stated he was quite willing to take care of the needs of his family. "I was only up north on business when this ridiculous charge was laid," stated the man. His Worship enlarged the matter for a fortnight, pending an amicable settlement.

A local youth was given seven days at hard labor after being convicted under the L.C.A.

Applications for Employment Show a Decided Decrease

Farmers Apparently Secure Help from Other Sources Than Employment Office

DOMESTICS SCARCE

Applications and placements in the many phases of employment, farm, shop, factory and the home have decreased at an alarming rate over the figures of former years, officials of the Employment Office stated today.

Farmers apparently have secured their seasonal quota of help from other sources than the Employment Office, it was stated. Some placements were made earlier in the season, but the number of applications from farmers for help was well below that of other years.

Odd jobs have likewise noted a sharp decline from those of other years. Domestics have been fairly well employed but there is a distinct shortage of women trained and experienced in household work. At present there is a fairly good demand for trained domestics but as these jobs necessitate leaving the city for summer cottage and camp, the reply has not been enthusiastic. Several untrained domestics are available but the call for this type of employee is very limited.

While the tomato planting season is expected to get into its full stride this week, no calls for day-labor have been received.

Highway work has not started as yet, and while a greater number of the registered unemployed are waiting this more lucrative employment, there is little or nothing for them to do, until it starts.

ONT.-INTELL. NEWSBOYS GUESTS OF SHOW

Ontario Intelligencer newsboys will be guests this evening of the Sims Greater Shows on the old Cricket Field and will be conducted on a tour of the show, through the rides and other amusement attractions by the management. The boys are asked to attend the invitation in a body at seven-thirty and will be personally attended.

The midway which will play here this week is for the benefit of the Belleville Civic Beach, funds thus received will be used for further beautification of the beach.

NURSES ATTEND DIVINE SERVICE

Baccalaureate Sermon in Bridge St. Church Given by Dr. James Semple

"The nursing profession is a noble one, its eminence is due to the value of human life and its sacredness before God," the Rev. Dr. James Semple told a crowded auditorium at Bridge Street United Church yesterday on the occasion of the Baccalaureate service for the nurses of Belleville General Hospital.

Speaking to forty-five graduate and undergraduate nurses, attractively garbed in the white and blue uniforms of their profession, Dr. Semple declared that the true marks of a nurse were sacrifice, endurance, discretion, fine judgment, tact sympathy, hard training and a love of humanity. "No girl thought of being a nurse until Christ came," he added. "No hospitals were available in the Roman world. Christ taught us to care for the sick."

" 'The lady with the lamp', Florence Nightingale, shocked her parents when she decided to nurse the sick in the hospitals. They shared the popular opinion that nurses were drunk and immoral. For eight years they carried on negotiations against nursing but finally they yielded to her request. She dared to be different and nursing took on a new outlook," the speaker said in reviewing the life of that noble woman.

Vitalizing Conception of Service

"The vitalizing conception of service was the tribute of the representative of the United States to His Majesty King George, when he formally received the American Ambassadors' credentials in Ottawa the other day," the speaker said. "His Majesty is a gracious servant. Serving his people in their work and play. He went among them opening hospitals, homes and camps for boys, where he appeared dressed as one of them."

"So, too, is Christ a servant and King. Jesus took a towel and washed the feet of one of His disciples. The King of England copies that eloquent gesture every year when he presents several poor men with the 'King's Maundy' at Westminster Abbey. Lord Shaftesbury and the famous Louis Pasteur gave the world antiseptic surgery. The children of France consider him a greater servant than was Napoleon. And above all, he was a great churchman."

Sin of Selfishness

The noblest men and women who have ever lived have felt obliged to renounce, not some little thing, but some great and appealing possession or relationship; and all because of the imperious call of duty, the speaker asserted, adding that the "sin of selfishness is the root of all our troubles in the nation, the home; the church, in politics. In industry, too, selfishness does its diabolical worst." The story of the Prodigal Son is an adventure in selfishness," he said.

"Through doctors and nurses, the healing ministry of Our Lord is continued," Dr. Semple told the nurses. "Think of your glorious opportunity. You can be a very Christ in the sick room. But no doctor or nurse can carry on this wonderful work without first having had full Christian experience. May you be inspired to attempt to do the impossible and to specialize in it."

Illustrated With Story

In conclusion, Dr. Semple illustrated his sermon with the story of Dr. Rosenow, famous Mayo clinic physician, whose contribution to the cure of infantile paralysis has alone earned him the undying gratitude of the world. "When a boy, Dr. Rosenow's brother became very sick. The doctor came and the timid boy followed him to the room where his brother lay. When told he would survive, his parents' faces lighted up so wonderfully that the boy decided that he would do something to cause people's faces to light up."

"Is not that the secret of the greatest happiness ever experienced in heaven or earth. Neither men nor angels know a more wonderful joy. It is your great task in the world."

A beautiful basket of flowers graced the front of the pulpit, the gift of Mr William Leslie. Anthems by the choir under Mr. Alec Gordon and a splendid solo by Mrs. (Dr.) G. H. Stobie featured the musical part of the service.

ALLEGED ROBBER CAUGHT IN MILL

Tamworth Mill Entered and Police Seeking One Man in Bush

Napanee, May 29—(Special)— A posse of fifty men from Tamworth Village is searching the bush and nearby country for a safecracker surprised early Sunday at Bradshaw Flour Mill in the village, 20 miles north of here. The fugitive is believed to be armed.

A trail of blood for 200 yards north from the mill indicated he was cut when he jumped through the window ten feet from the ground or was wounded by one of three shots from the .22 repeating rifle which Earl Bradsaw, 27, fired when he and Harold Bawn, 20 surprised two men trying to break open the safe in the flour mill.

The fugitive's companion meekly surrendered after he had run up the stairs in the mill to elude capture. He gave the name of Harold Fraser, no address, and was remanded in custody in the jail here until tomorrow morning when he will appear in court on a charge of breaking and entering. Police said Fraser suggested his companion was armed.

No Money in Safe.

There was no money in the safe the two men were trying to open, said Bradshaw, who, with Bawn, was praised highly by police for trying to capture the pair. The two young men had heard a "banging" in the mill about 2 a.m., and Bradshaw went across the road to his home for his rifle before they investigated further. Bawn threw back a sliding door in the mill as Bradshaw aimed his rifle at two men about to knock off the safe combination and said: "Hands up."

The thugs ran to the back of the mill and Bradshaw fired twice, aiming high each time. Both bullets were found later in the wall. After Bradshaw fired, one man ran up the stairs, the other jumped through the glass window ten feet above the ground. Bradshaw fired at the window, but does not know if he hit the fugitive. The bullet has not been found, but the thug may have been cut by glass.

Posse Organized

Chief Clare Hayes of Tweed and Provincial Constables W. Smith and D. Carruthers of Belleville, were notified at once and organized a posse with the aid of the telephone operator, Mrs. Dunvegan who awakened most of the village. The posse of men, formed early in the morning, searched all day and late in the evening without finding a trace of the fugitive.

The men were using an axe as a chisel, and a large crowbar as a hammer in attempting to open the safe, Bradshaw told police. "But there was nothing in the safe anyway," he said. "I had taken all the money out of it last night and have it in my pocket right now. The only thing in the safe is a large record book.

"We didn't think we were taking any chances when we broke in on the men," he said, as police praised the courage of the two young men. "As it was I could have shot them both as soon as Harold pulled back the door. But I fired high into the rear wall when they both ran back there."

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and Glasses Magee and Shorty Judge and Leroy Shooster were standing around the letter box talking and arguing, and Sid Hunt started to go passed with his mother, and he pointed to his eyes and kept on going, and I said, O boy she's taking him to the optician's up on the Avenue to find out if he really needs glasses like the school docter said he might, O boy that'll be the end of you being the only one around here with glasses, Glasses.

Aw, he's dreaming he dont need glasses any more than a dog up a tree, Glasses said, and Leroy Shooster said How do you know, do you think you're the only one in the world with bum eyes?

I'm the only one around here, anyways, that's honor enough for me, Glasses said and Shorty Judge said, Let's follow him and wait outside the opticians then we'll find out quicker.

Wich we started to do, Glasses going too and saying, I'll go with you just for fun, but I tell you he's imagining things, he dont know what he's talking about.

And we saw Mrs. Hunt and Sid go in the eyeglass place and after a while they came out again, us fellows saying, What did he say, Sid? did he say you have to, are you going to get them, Sid?

Sid not saying anything and his mother saying, Good news, boys. the optician says Sidney's eyes are perfectly all right you can stay with the boys now. Sidney, it was very nice of you all to be so concerned about Sidney's eyes.

And she kept on going alone, and I said G, hard luck, Sid and Glasses said, See what did I tell you? And Sid said, Aw, who wants glasses? The optician dont even wear them himself and he could give himself a pair for nothing so I guess it cant be such a great privilege, he said.

Sounding like somebody trying not to sound like sour grapes.

THE ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER

THE DAILY ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER is published every afternoon (Sunday and holidays excepted) at The Ontario Intelligencer Building, Front Street, Belleville.

WE HAVE SEEN

Does the world know Canada in its infinite variety of climate, its wealth, its expanse from ocean to ocean and from the U. S. boundary to the north pole?

The march of Canada's King and Queen across the richest grain lands of the continent, day after day and night after night, must have opened the eyes of crowded countries to this land, blessed with climate, forests, rocks laden with precious and base metals, rich farm lands, waters teeming in fish, and cities and countryside populated by a people as free as the winds that blow.

The world has seen how Britain's King-Emperor and Queen-Empress have fraternized with the people of this Dominion in great fetes, in walking among them in public grounds, on country roads, or on station platforms, in shaking the hands of little children, meeting Indian braves who whoop and dance about them. He and she who are as kingly and queenly as any potentates in history are by that very royalty of nature, as human as the least known of their subjects and interested in every little detail of the life of the people. Britain's slight tall bronzed young King and her Queen, whose simple loveliness and graciousness have endeared her to millions, have won an empire of hearts. The King has shown how tolerance brings unity and how racial differences may be built into a bond of an enduring civilization.

The world must have studied these things and wondered how such freedom of a sovereign and a people can be. And yet we in Canada have the proof. We have seen these things.

PEACEFUL NOTE IS LOUDER

With the triple alliance of the three great powers, Britain, France and Russia, the lineup of nations today somewhat resembles that at the time of the World War. Italy of course has gone with the Germans in a military pact, but Turkey, a German ally in 1914-18, is with Britain and her allies. So is Poland, as well as parts of Hungary which as a section of the old Austro-Hungarian Empire are now outside of Germany, some being in Poland of today, some in Rumania.

Diplomats have built a wall from the Arctic to the Black Sea and as much farther southeast as is necessary to dampen any German territorial ambitions towards southwest Asia. Italy made a gross tactic error when she grabbed a state, largely Moslem, Albania, after Germany pried loose a portion of the barricade built after the war by making parts of Czecho-Slovakia a protectorate. This has been overcome by a new wall and the Germans have in their midst the Bohemians and the Moravians who will be forever Bohemian and Moravian, never German, despite the Hitlerization of their country.

The Teutons went against the world in just such a state in 1914 and lost, though they escaped the final retribution which many felt should have been dealt out to them in November 1918.

Will Germany, even with Italy, dare to take the chance again? Many observers think she will not.

Germany and Italy, if they appreciate the situation at all, must realize how little they and their systems are desired by other nations. No free nation courts the dictator spirit. The anti-aggression nations are largely democracies, at least they are much more democratic than Germany and Italy. They fear Fascism and Naziism.

The two states which have talked threats and war, find themselves standing alone, weighted down with armaments, the speeches of their leaders falling on a world which scarcely listens, or if it listens, hears without the trepidation it felt at the time of Munich last September.

Germans and Italians have admired strength We have the words of Hitler and Mussolini for that. Now they can look to the anti-aggression bloc to see real strength, but yet strength reserved for mutual defence, not for imposing on the world, even on those two nations which have irritated and rubbed the sores of the nations until it seemed they were about to plunge the world into war. Today the outlook for peace is more bright than for a long time. Prime Minister Chamberlain has worked well since Munich where he kept the world from plunging into war, if it was true that Hitler intended to act at that time. If that was his intention Hitler was defeated at Munich for his chances have been sloughing away since that momentous moment.

Dictator lands, have had an enjoyable time for some years building up in the democratic world propaganda of terrible pictures of their supremacy but now the world has had time to get itself in shape and it sees the German, Italian and Japanese dictators not as demi-gods but as ordinary men subject to all the weaknesses of their kind.

THE THREAD OF GOLD

. . . . They are poor
That have lost nothing; they are poorer far
Who, losing, have forgotten; they most poor
Of all who lose and wish they might forget
This life is one, and in its warp and woof
There runs a thread of gold that glitters fair,
And sometimes in the pattern shows most sweet
Where there are sombre colors. It is true
That we have wept. But, oh! This thread is gold;
We would not have it tarnish; let us turn
Oft and look back upon the wondrous web,
And when it shineth sometimes we shall know
That memory is possession.

Jean Ingelow.

DEAD WEIGHT IS HARD TO MOVE according to Rotarian Magazine. A man of ordinary strength can push a 3,000-pound automobile, yet may be unable to budge a 300-pound rock. The inertia of people who need work but do little to find it for themselves is a dead weight that complicates unemployment. "Here I am, move me! Find me a job!" Some economists believe that this attitude and the tendency to heed it and to accept responsibility for job placement as a social obligation, have promoted mass inertia. There is growing conviction that it is important to return to individuals most of the responsibility for finding their own jobs.

Encouraging, in view of this, is the kind of activity embodied in the Forty Plus Club. This club, born in Boston, Massachusetts, is now more than a year old, and a pioneer. To be a member you must be past 40, you must be out of work, and you must have held and still be able to hold a job worth at least $4,000 a year. The purpose of the club is mutual help. Some members call on employers and ask for jobs. But note this: they ask not for themselves, but for fellow members. It seems that a man can usually "sell" his friend's skills better than his own. Other members keep records, make speeches, write job-getting letters.

x

The response has been surprising. Many a man, after knowing the depths of discouragement when hunting for work alone has located an excellent job quickly with the group's help, and has helped others to do the same—this despite the prejudice of some employers against men past 40. As soon as a member gets a job he automatically becomes an ex-member.

x

Several other cities, including Chicago and New York, now have clubs on the Boston model. In London, England, a Forty Plus Club was organized with the help of members of the London Rotary Club, and one of the first members, a man well over 50, who had hunted work for six months, was found a job in two weeks.

x

Men past 40 have special prejudices to overcome. But at every age level, and in every field of employment, there are special prejudices and handicaps. Overcoming them is often made easier by practical group activity. There is, perhaps, no good reason why job-hungry youngsters should not band themselves together as the Just-Out-of-College Club, nor why slightly older out-of-work women should not unashamedly have a Women-Past-Thirty Club.

x

The plan is based on sound salesmanship. Most employers respect the worker who, instead of being a dead weight, uses the leverage of a little extra ingenuity to get on the pay roll, and feel that he may do as much to stay there. Forty Plus is fresh proof that human beings who intelligently cooperate to help themselves do somehow "go to town."

THAT BODY OF YOURS

Xray Helps Many Cases of Sinus Infection

I have spoken before of the successful treatment of the catarrhal form of deafness described by Dr. F. W. O'Brien, Boston, in Radiology. The treatment of other forms of deafness by this method is not as yet reported.

That a disturbance of another portion of the nose, throat and ear combination—the sinuses—can be corrected by Xray treatment is reported by Drs. Frank E. Butler and Ivan M. Woolley, University of Oregon, in Radiology. They observed the effects of Xrays in chronic sinus disease and have studied the results in experimental animals and over 1000 treatments.

The effect of the Xrays is to stimulate the usual reaction to infection and hasten repair. The patient usually notices an increase of his symptoms beginning a few days after the Xray treatment and lasting for three or four days.

"Best results have been obtained in patients who have had symptoms of chronic infection for months or years and whose Xray films showed a thickened lining of the sinus, thus lessening its air space. These patients usually respond to a single treatment and return in six or eight weeks with clear sinuses, no discharge and no other symptoms due to sinus disturbance.

The effect upon the other symptoms so common in sinus infection—headache, nerve pains (neuritis), bronchitis—which have been traced to this sinus infection have, in almost every instance cleared up even thought the sinus condition itself was not entirely corrected.

Dr. Butler and Woolley report that the greatest number of failures occurred in patients who failed to gain relief following surgical operations on nose and sinuses. Large masses of scar tissue—due to surgery—prevented the Xrays being effective. Efforts to relieve the dry form of catarrh, which is one cause of bad breath, were likewise a failure.

Although it is true that other Xray physicians have not obtained such good results in treating sinus infection, nevertheless before surgery is used, it would be well to remember that "when skilfully applied, Xray does no harm and causes no serious reactions and there is no loss of time for the patient."

Even if Xray fails to cure the condition, it in no way interferes with any surgical operation should it become desirable.

CALEB SLADE

Seventy-five year old Caleb Slade of Shrub Cottage, Hardenhuish, Chippenham (Wiltshire), has become the father of a bonny daughter.

He cycled ten miles to see his 29-year-old wife and the baby at a Corsham maternity home.

"It is wonderful, and I'm very happy about it all," he said.

The romance between Mr. Slade and his young wife—formerly Miss Gladys Humber, of Dorchester — began when she answered his advertisement for a housekeeper last year.

They exchanged photographs, and Miss Humber went to Mr. Slade's house for a week on trial.

Six days later the banns were called.

The wedding was attended by his grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Mr. Slade was once a well-known boxer.—London Sunday Dispatch.

MILK FOR BASSOS

While we're on the subject of milk we might as well turn to another angle. A short time ago a singing teacher in Ohio opined that the drinking of milk had the result of producing deeper voices. She asserted that it made children's voices lower. On this point the Stratford Beacon-Herald interviewed a number of vocal teachers, none of whom had found that out for themselves nor believed that it had that result. Our own view is that if the Ohio teacher lived close to a public school and heard the cacaphony of hundreds of shrill voices together she would either want to move, or else feed those kids at least a quart of milk a day.

But if milk develops lower voices we're all for a promotion campaign to make embryo singers drink more milk. We're soured on the incessant parade of sopranos who feature the radio programs, and long for a few nice, mellow contraltos. We're tired of tenors who save their breath to wind up with a squeaky high note in order to win a round of applause and get an encore. The tenors and the sopranos get all the fat parts in opera and musical comedy. They are the heroes and heroines, the leading man and leading lady, and the bassos and contraltos are doomed to enact subordinate roles as villains and mothers. The operatic basso occasionally dons black whiskers and sings a minor priestly role; the contralto dons a grey wig and drab garb and has to be her stage age. The tenor has curly hair and gaudy togs, and the soprano has a blonde wig and coruscating clothes.

If drinking milk produces more and better bassos and contraltos we're all for that. What they can't drink we'd drown a host of tenors and sopranos in.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Seaplane Landings Different

It is one thing to be able to fly and to land an airplane on a grassy airdrome, and it is quite another thing to land one on the deck of an aircraft-carrier. Pilots who are quite competent in the air and on the ground need special instruction and practice before they can land on a deck with confidence, and one of H.H. aircraft-carriers has to be told off for this training work. At present the task is being undertaken by the Courageous in the Firth of Forth, and recently I was privileged to spend a few days in her to see how the work is done.

On my first day I saw a batch of pilots finishing off their training, each doing eight consecutive landings. The machine used was a Fairey Swordfish, known as a T.S.R. machine because it can carry a torpedo, spot for the guns, and be used for reconnaissance. It has a very sturdy under-carriage (and it needs to be sturdy) and wheel brakes. A hook can be lowered underneath rear part of the fuselage to engage the arrested wires. Of course, it was stripped of all superfluous fittings and flew light. With a powerful Bristol engine it did not need anything like the full length of the deck to take off; in fact it leaped into the air after a run of about 20 yards.

As soon as he was clear of the bows the pilot lowered his hook, climbed slightly and circled round to behind the stern, and then approached the deck. A red and white flag was flown from the side to give him leave to land on. An instructor on the port side signalled with colored disks to keep the plane at the right height.

Meantime, four arrester wires had been raised above the deck by means of hinged standards. These wires are connected at each end to powerful springs. The pilot would fly over the stern and stall his Swordfish from a low height. In most cases the hook under the tail caught the first wire, but if it missed that there were three more.

The wire gave for a few yards, and then pulled up the machine dead. At once the deck party of sailors rushed from the sides and seized the wings and tailplane. In fact, all the pilot's troubles were over once his hook had engaged a wire. Just occasionally a pilot delayed his stall to long, and missed all the wires. Then he opened up his engine and flew around again. That day was a record for Courageous, for 212 landings were made.

All the time the destroyer followed close behind the carrier with a manned boat hanging from her davits in case of a crash into the water. Such crashes are fortunately rare, and some experienced pilots hold that even the safety nets on each side of the flying deck are superfluous.—Manchester Guardian.

Ontario's Vanishing Wildflower

Canada's diminishing succession of lively wild flowers from Spring to Fall has now reached the point that their ultimate disappearance can be avoided only by the care and consideration of the people.

Throughout the years, the greatest destruction of wild flowers has been the clearing of the forests and land for farms and habitations, assisted by forest fires and the grazing of animals. Still later, the want of thought on the part of persons, particularly in the vicinity of large centres of population, has hastened the possibility of wild flowers sharing the fate of the buffalo, the musk ox, the great auk, the carrier pigeon and other wild life, for already some of the finest specimens in the woods have disappeared. Hence, the appeal of horticultural societies throughout Canada for the preservation of wild flowers.

The preservation of wild flowers does not mean that no one is allowed to pick a bloom, but it does demand a little thought from the picker.

For example, some wild flowers should not be picked at all. Plants like the white trillium, the floral emblem of Ontario, are best left alone in all the glory of their original setting, because these flowers cannot be picked without removing all the foliage on which depends the maturing of the bulbous root for the following season's crop of flowers. Other species of wild flowers, such as violets, hepaticas and the like, whose flower stems rise directly from the roots, may be picked at will, provided the body of the plant is left undisturbed.

Tearing up a plant by the roots to gain a bloom is wanton destruction and means only one thing—the passing of beautiful flowers from the Canadian landscape. It is against this reckless plucking of wild flowers that the horticultural societies make their appeal —Ont. Dept. of Ag. Bulletin.

Challenges Christian People To Protect Sabbath Day

Lord's Day Alliance Says Determined Efforts Are Made to Make Inroads on Sabbath

Never in the history of the world have there been such determined efforts at work, the Rev. George G. Webber, General Secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, Toronto, said in Bridge Street United Church last night in a ringing challenge to Christian people to turn back the forces that are attempting to make inroads on the sanctity of the Sabbath Day.

"Conditions here are becoming similar to those in Europe and the United States," he asserted. "The Christian Church is being assailed and challenged as never before. Its very foundation, its philosophy of life and its interpretation of the word of Christ are being undermined."

Decrease in Church Attendance

It is not difficult to name the main cause of the decrease in church attendance today, the speaker maintained. Quoting Dr. Harry E. Fosdick, he said: "The world is witnessing the most complete surrender of its history. Sports, baseball, hockey, football are taking the place of the church service. The destruction of the Sabbath is the entering wedge of Fascism, Nazism and other 'isms' bent on the destruction of civilization."

"Attempts have been made to build up sentiment to open the way for motion picture theatres and other organizations spoke as to operate on Sunday," Mr. Webber charged. He cited the recent agitation on behalf of games of sport on Sunday which would, Mr. Webber said, nullify the Lord's Day Act.

Agitation Loses Out

"But the churchmen and people of Ontario rose in their righteous wrath. Representatives of the Christian churches, social services and othe rorganizations spoke as never before in protest. The Roman Catholic Church as represented in Toronto went on record as opposing the scheme. City, town and county councils were unanimous in their stand opposing the plan. Such a volume of protest carried the day and the commercial interests were informed that the "time was not suitable for such a change," the speaker asserted.

"But the battle is not over," the speaker warned. "Attempts may be made at a later date to break down our Sunday legislation. Continued vigilance and aggressive leadership must be maintained if Sunday is to be preserved as a day of rest and a day of opportunity for worship."

Commercialization Opposed

He warned against the commercialization of Ontario's tourist and beauty spots." If we are not careful these places will become so commercialized that they will lose all their beauty and attraction," he said. He quoted the incident of the Sidney Township Council in passing a bylaw prohibiting the use of a professional dance hall between the hours of Saturday midnight and 8 o'clock Monday morning. "If we can secure action like this, we can save our Sundays and our summer resorts."

Favors General Police Force

The speaker levelled stern criticism against "municipally-controlled small police-forces." He advocated the changing of the "too many small police units under the thumbs of councillors" to a general force directed from the Attorney-General's Department.

"In one place," he charged, "a municipality actually passed a bylaw forbidding the chief-of-police to enforce the Lord's Day Alliance Act. The only solution to this is the doing away of the small municipally-controlled police forces of the Province."

Alliances Program

The Alliance, the speaker declared, was using its influence to prevail upon employers from working employees seven days a week. "Our people must have their rightful privilege of one day's rest on the Sabbath. As a Christian people there is placed upon us a large responsibility. Not only must we secure the proper legislation and good law-enforcement, but we must remember our own duties. If we, as a Christian people, fail to place the proper emphasis on our Sunday life, what can we expect from those who profess no church or religion."

Il Duce Mussolini seems highly pleased by the honor guard of babies and mothers which greeted him at Pinerole, where he visited the famed army cavalry school during tour of northern Italy. slightly from shock.

A sudden slide of rock trapped the miner at 11 a.m. E.D.T. Friday as he worked in the mine, one of the many so-called "bootleg" workings which dot this eastern Pennsylvania hard coal section. Two companions escaped.

Just a Little Hungry.

Galligan's 80-year-old father, Patrick, who had kept vigil at the scene from the time his son's plight was learned, was among the several hundred spectators who witnessed the rescue. The son greeted his father with "H'ya pop, I'm okay but a little hungry."

Loose dirt covering Galligan's refuge, a small chamber which did not cave in, made the rescuers task doubly difficult. Toward the end the rescuers worked two and three at a time in a space only four feet square under the constant threat that they too might become engulfed by new slides.

A one-inch pipe driven through the wall of dirt into the miner's tomb early last night gave Galligan air. Before he was hoisted to the surface, Galligan was blindfolded to prevent injury to his eyes by the sudden emergence into a glare of floodlights erected to aid the rescuers.

"BABY CLIPPER" HAS APPARATUS FOR NIGHT FLYING

T. H. Smith, 24, Sets Out on Unsanctioned Flight to Europe

Old Orchard Beach, Me., May 29 (AP)—Only the North Atlantic knew the whereabouts today of 24-year-old Thomas H. Smith and the "Baby Clipper" he lifted from Old Orchard's hardpacked sands in an unsanctioned experimental flight to Europe.

Into yesterday's dawn, the Los Angeles birdman nosed his 670-pound monoplane with its four-cylinder, 65 horsepower engine on a course associates said was plotted for a landfall at Slyne Head, Ireland, nearly 2,800 miles away, about noon today.

Fog and rain clamped a low ceiling over the first third of his route. No word came of the ship's passage over Newfoundland, but at Saint John, N.B., airport officials heard a plane they thought might be Smith's.

Gas For 3,600 Miles

The former transport pilot had 160 gallons of gasoline—he calculated it was enough to take him 3,600 miles at a cruising speed of 100 miles an hour—when he rose from the beach at his ocean resort at 4:47 a.m. E.D.T. yesterday.

Smith had the equipment to fly blind, if necessary, but no wireless. His only means of communication consisted of three canvas message bags he hoped to drop to ships at sea.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Smith expressed themselves as "amazed" when news of their son's take-off reached them at Clarksburg, W. Va. "We had no advance notice," said the father, a lawyer.

Fuel Costs Less Than $30

Nor did the Civil Aeronautics authority, officials said at Washington, adding they had given no permission for the flight, which Smith said was to demonstrate the practicability of long distance flying by light planes. Associates estimated Smith's fuel cost less than $30.

Charles Deland, Cincinnati, one of the associates who helped Smith prepare secretly near here for the flight, said weather reports indicated good conditions over much of the "great circle" course Smith was to follow.

Most recent of the many airmen who have set out on that rail was Charles Backman, unreported on a solo hop to Sweden in a "flying gas tank" not much larger than Smith's little ship.

CAR CRASHES THRU

ville club that won the Intermediate Ottawa and District Championship.

They were driving north on the Roosevelt International Bridge, on their way home. The swing bridge over the Cornwall Canal was open to permit boats to pass, but the car crashed through the safety gate, tearing it away.

The automobile plunged dizzily downward, turning end over end and landing upside down on the embankment between the canal and the St. Lawrence River. The bridge attendant and other employees removed the four from the car but all were dead.

Unable to Explain Crash

Bridge workers said they were unable to explain the accident. Currier drove the light coach automobile into the heavy steel gate at considerable speed in spite of reflectors and warning signs on the gate. Bridge workers thought no car could break through the guard.

The two-inch steel pipes on the gate snapped like sticks as the car smashed through, leaped 25 feet into space and crashed between the canal and the St. Lawrence River.

William Garson, bridge operator, said he had closed the safety gates and had opened the bridge span about one quarter when the car hit the safety guard. He rushed down with several others and righted the car.

One of the girls had a fractured neck, the others had fractured skulls.

The four had crossed the bridge to New York State about 10 p.m. E.D.T. and were returning at 2.10 a.m. E.D.T. driving through a light rain.

guests, tired but sorry it will be another year before they get another chance to blow out candles.

"It was the happiest birthday we have spent with the children," said Dionne after arriving home. His wife nodded in agreement. "Everything was fine and the Quintuplets were all ready for us, dressed in their Sunday frocks."

Seven-year-old Daniel gave little thought to his recently-broken arm as he romped in the nursery playroom with Pauline, Oliva, Jr., and the Quints. Throughout the play period the five little girls did not let go of the dolls their parents had just given them.

Dionne said the children were too busy to think of giving the dolls names today, but he expects when he visits them next—perhaps tonight—all will be duly christened.

Only outsider at the party was Rev. V. E. Pilon, Roman Catholic Priest at nearby Corbeil. He sat in at the chicken dinner and before leaving imparted his blessing on the happy family group. Father Pilon blessed the family before they departed for Toronto last Sunday night for an audience with the King and Queen.

Major Robert Boal, D.S.O., O.B.E., and Mrs. Boal, also Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Boal of Toronto, were guests over the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Griffin, Chatham Street. Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Boal, the former a brother of Major Boal, were accompanied to Montreal by Mr. and Mrs. Griffin, where Major and Mrs. Boal were met at the boat on arrival from England en route to Toronto. Major Boal spent thirty-two years in the service of the Imperial Army, being located in India, and other Eastern colonies, and is now retired and will enjoy an extended visit in Canada and the United States before returning to England.

ing antics of a grouse that settled on the road while the car was halted made the King laugh.

King and Queen go Buggy-Riding.

Their Majesties went for a ride in a buggy, locally called a shay, drawn by two white horses. The old-fashioned rig was unearthed from a stable loft at the Queen's request and the royal couple enjoyed a six-mile ride around the golf course, towering mountains above, green, tree-bordered fairways nestling below.

For the drive the Queen changed from her sports frock of the morning to a tailored blue-grey tweed suit, short-coated, and off-the-face model hat. A blue silk kerchief encircled her neck. The King was comfortably dressed in a sports jacket, plain grey trousers, and snap brim brown hat.

During the early afternoon Saturday their Majesties posed for photographers on the hotel terrace where they walked for ten minutes with Prime Minister Mackenzie King and George Steward, press liaison officer.

See Wild Life in Park

After leaving Banff Springs Hotel the royal party attended a special prayer service in St. George's Anglican Church at Banff, then set out on the Lake Louise road with Jim Brewster, mountain pioneer and Park Superintendent J. P. Jennings travelling in their Majesties' car, Brewster driving.

They saw deer grazing along the highway, a beaver, Rocky Mountain goat and scores of elk. Their Majesties, enthusiastic photographers, got a snap of one of Canada's rarest animals—an albino moose, feeding in a swamp 11 miles west of Banff. The King also got a picture of a large black bear.

The party stopped thirty minutes at Chateau Lake Louise, standing almost deserted—the season has not opened—beside the ice-coated lake.

Queen Wears Striking Ensemble

On the drive the Queen wore one of her most stunning ensembles of deep sky blue. The long, light wool coat, trimmed with double bands of blue fox, fell to the hem of her simple crepe frock. Her hat was high-crowned, brimming out at the front, and she wore high heeled pumps of grey suede. The King, hatless, was dressed in a grey-checked suit and grey topcoat.

Forty news correspondents and photographers accompanying the royal tour also made the Banff-Field motor ride—but not from choice. Many unshaven and without breakfast, the newspapermen were held in the hotel half an hour until the King and Queen had left for the prayer service and they missed the pilot train, which left at 10 a.m. After a fast and dusty drive they caught the train at Field.

King and Queen in Engine Cab

At Beavermouth, 63 miles west of Field, the royal couple left the comfort of the blue and silver train for the cab of a big Selkirk-type, oil-burning locomotive, one of the largest in Canada. They rode 13 miles with the engine crew along the 2.2 grade climbing the spectacular Beaver River Canyon gorge to Stoney Creek. There they returned to the royal train just before it entered the five-mile Connaught Tunnel.

From their vantage point in the cab of the lead engine on the "triple-header" pulling the royal train up the stiff grade, their Majesties looked down 275 feet to a tumbling mountain stream as the locomotive crossed Stoney Creek bridge, highest on the journey thru' British Columbia.

The King and Queen wore sport clothes and both were without gloves for the thrilling engine ride. With them in the cab were Engineer Jock Rutherford, Fireman Stan Lea and W. M. Neal, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railways, Western Lines.

The engine crew, for whom it was the "thrill of a lifetime," expressed astonishment at the King's mechanical knowledge, and admiration, too, for the Queen.

Thrill of Lifetime for Engine Crew

"I thought I'd feel a bit uneasy," Lea said, "but she was so gracious and genuine. She hadn't been in the cab a minute when she smiled—and then I felt right at home again.

"It sure was the thrill of a lifetime for Jock and me."

Just before their Majesties entered the locomotive, Shirley and Sheila McCormick, school-girl twins, presented the Queen with bouquets, two other small girls — Marjorie Burnstall and Mary Berzanski, also gave her flowers.

The King and Queen shook hands heartily with Lea and Rutherford, one of the senior engineers in the mountain division, as they entered the cab.

Their Majesties were delighted with the cleanliness of the cab. They sat facing the front of the locomotive the King directly behind the Queen.

Monarchs Study Engine Technique

They watched "Jock" pull the throttle. They were interested in the technique of handling three locomotives together. When the train was ready to start the third engine was given the steam first and when the train began to move the other two joined in.

Rain fell heavily as the royal couple left the train at Revelstoke, but, undaunted, the King stepped back into the car for a tan raincoat and brown slouch hat and he and the Queen, carrying an umbrella, walked 400 yards around the station to the cheers of 8,000 people.

Stay Extended at Kamloops

The train arrived 30 minutes late at 5.20 p.m., P.S.T. It had made up 21 minutes of the 41 last waiting for the royal party at Field but lost another ten minutes here when the King and Queen extended the scheduled 20-minute stop.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Fifth Birthday Shows Quints Abounding with Health and Vitality

On their fifth birthday the Dionne Quintuplets are bigger and healthier than normal children of the same age externally, the scales and the measuring tape show us that; and their continued good health proves it in other ways.

The five little girls weigh from 50 to 53 1-2 pounds apiece, and they range from 41 3-4 to 42 1-2 inches in height. The average girl of five born a full time child, and not prematurely as the Quintuplets were, and weighing seven pounds at birth—weigh 49 pounds and stands from 39 to 41 inches in height.

Speaking for themselves these figures are a source of great satisfaction to us who have been attending the children since they were born. Somehow or other we always take their birthdays to take stock. So I think for a few days we will just review the events of the past five birthdays and see how they have progressed.

As you know, the Quints were premature children, and all five of them, weighed at the same time, tipped the scales at about ten pounds when they were born—two of the children actually weighed less than two pounds.

At their first birthday, the children were healthy little tykes, considering what they had got through, but they were still a long way behind other children in the matter of development. They had not caught up what they had lost because of premature birth.

I remember being highly elated when we were able to tell over the radio, on their first birthday, that the Quintuplets were just on the verge of crawling. None of them had actually crawled yet, but arm and leg movements were getting so strong that we expected some of them to launch out any day.

At this time, they were sitting up, eating from spoons and drinking from glasses. They got their daily portion of prune juice, orange juice, cooked vegetables, fruit and egg yoke. The nurses were noticing, too, that when some food they didn't like was offered them, they were playing sick. Now and then they even seemed to be playing jokes on the nurse.

It was that month their first teeth appeared. Yvonne made the front page by being able to pat-a-cake, and Annette showed her increasing strength by bridging herself on her head and heels, holding her body up in the air, and then dropping back on the soft bed with a gurgle.

Even little Marie, whose life hung in the balance so often that first year, was coming along nicely. She had discovered the joys of conversation and she would lie in her cot, blab-blab-blabbing away to herself by the hour. She earned for herself the title of "Nursery Alarm Clock" because she wakened every morning at 4.15 and sang a little song. Cecile and Emilie were learning to suck their thumbs, much to the worry of the nurses, who were doing everything they could to discourage this.

This month, too, there was another significant piece of news—the daily laundry had dropped from 150 item daily —mostly diapers—to just half that number. And the whole nursery knew that Yvonne and Annette were special pals.

Giving Baby Codliver Oil No Problem, Says Dafoe

Much of the codliver oil on the market is the unconcentrated type. There are other preparations in which the vitamin is concentrated partially, and still others in which the vitamin is fully concentrated.

But there are other products which lie between. Some are so concentrated that they require only a teaspoonful a day, while others are so little concentrated that they aren't much different from plain codliver oil. That is why I counsel every mother to make sure that she reads the number of units the product contains so she will know how much to give in order that the baby will get 2,000 units every day. With that much in his system, he is completely protected from rickets. Even so, a doctor should be consulted.

I have known cases where giving the baby codliver oil has been quite a problem. Often the mother is at fault. A mother often writes to tell me that baby doesn't like the taste of codliver oil and won't eat it. As a matter of fact, babies don't have any sense of taste until they are about six months old. So the mother needn't feel that baby dislikes the taste of the oil just because he spits it out. If he refuses it, then it is altogether likely that his only reason for doing so is that it is a new form of food and he doesn't quite know what to make of it. If you will just be patient and continue to give it to him, after a few refusals he will decide that it may be all right after all, and down it will go. Remember, codliver oil doesn't taste any different to him than his milk does.

Occasionally, however, we do run across a child who either vomits the oil when he swallows it or develops diarrhoea. When this happens, it means that the system can't assimilate the oil in this form. These children should be changed to the concentrated oil that requires only ten drops to give the necessary protection. This was the product we used with the Quintuplets, and I can't begin to tell you what wonders it performed.

We gave them the concentrated oil because they were so frail and weak at the time that we couldn't take a chance of upsetting their stomachs and giving them another setback. But, of course, they were premature babies, living in incubators.

Most babies will take to the regular codliver oil, and will actually get fond of it. We switched to codliver oil just as soon as we could. We give it to the Quints every day of their lives, winter and summer, and we don't have to coax them to take it either. They are fond of it.

AT THE BELLE

"The Story of Vernon and Irene Castle"

Capturing in vivid fashion a slice of the American scene from 1911 to 1918, "The Story of Vernon and Irene Castle" which is now on the Belle screen, stars Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers in their most distinguished vehicle to date.

As its title indicates, the film deals with the dazzling career of the noted pre-war dancing couple; and it was a happy thought to team the wing-footed Fred and Ginger in the respective roles of the Castles, for they are perfectly cast as that famous duo, and their interpretation of the Castle routines are delightful to behold.

The film's story begins with Vernon Castle at the time when he was a knockabout "stooge" (although the term wasn't invented at that time) for comedian Lew Fields; Fields, incidentally, plays himself in the picture, and does it brilliantly.

Vernon meets Irene, an enthusiastic but untrained amateur dancer, and marries her. She persuades him to give up comedy for dancing, and the two, rebuffed in New York, go to Paris, and by a lucky accident get a start there. Soon they are the sensation of two continents and their meteoric career, ended by Vernon's enlistment in the Royal Flying Corps—to be followed by his death later in a Texas air crash—forms the colorful basis of the plot.

Against the fleeting backgrounds of Paris cafes, New York theatres and ballrooms, flying fields and motion picture studios, are painted the highlights of the famous team's creations—the Castle Walk, the Castle Waltz, the Tango, the Texas Tommy, the Maxixe, the Castle Polka. And as recreated by Astaire and Miss Rogers under the remembering eyes of Mrs. Vernon Castle herself they are among the most notable dances the screen has ever featured.

Musically, too, the picture is a treat. Scores of old-time tunes, "Pretty Baby", "Waitin' for the Robert E. Lee", "Missouri Waltz" and others of that melodic vintage, are abundantly scattered through the offering, either as songs sung by one or the other of the stars, or as dance music for their graceful routines.

A notable supporting cast adds much to the film's excellence, and to the amazingly realistic performances of the two principals, Edna May Oliver, Walter Brennan, Janet Beecher, Etienne Girardot, Lew Fields and other well-known players take prominent parts in the story.

The popular Belle Newsreel, a wonderful Walt Disney cartoon, "Ugly Duckling" and "Pilot Boat" an unusual screen reelism precede the feature attraction.

AT THE McCARTHY

"DOUBLE DANGER"

Introducing a new "Gentleman Crook" and his dangerous socialite lady rival, in a story of the "Raffles" type always popular on the screen, the McCarthy Theatre is now playing the exciting, fast-stepping mystery comedy "Double Danger."

Preston Foster and Whitney Bourne head the cast of this unusual offering, which presents the popular "gentleman burglar" theme in a brand-new form and with many unexpected complications. Instead of one of these suave persons in the film, there are two. One of them is Foster, ostensibly a novelist who conceals his light-fingered activities under the cloak of writing mystery stories. The other is Miss Bourne herself, a mysterious damsel who manages to steal the famous Konjer diamonds and who in turn loses the priceless stones to Foster.

A dogged police commissioner (Samuel S. Hinds) is suspicious of both, and he persuades them to visit him over the week end. At his country home surprising events bob up, with the commissioner's scheme to trap the master crook running afoul of a sudden romance between the two principals. It all makes for a genuinely entertaining picture that will intrigue any audience.

Foster and Miss Bourne turn in brilliant performances in roles that call for unusual suavity and significance. Hinds as the persistent police official, Donald Meek, as a prominent jeweller, Paul Guilfoyle, Cecil Kellaway, Arthur Lake, June Johnson and other players acquit themselves finely under Lew Landers' direction.

"Beauty for the Asking"

Skilfully combining a novel three-way romance involving two women and the same man with the glittering background of "The beauty business", the companion feature hit with "Double Danger" now playing at the McCarthy Theatre, entitled "Beauty for the Asking", is a picture that affords a behind-the-scenes peek at the secrets of the beauty trade and also it is a picture of truly different screen entertainment. You'll enjoy its unusual story, its excellent cast and its interesting revelations on woman's search for glamor. Lucille Ball, Patric Knowles, Donald Woods and Frieda Inescort, head the cast that brings this high-speed, heart-tug story to the screen in one of the finest romantic settings of the season. In addition to the feature presentations, an excellent musical-comedy revue is also a pleasing added attraction on the programme.

Formal Wedding Announcements

If the wedding is a small one, with no general invitations issued, it is usual to send formal announcements of the marriage. Other circumstances of the wedding may also suggest this convenience. Announcements are not sent to those who have been invited to the ceremony or to the reception.

The engraved wedding announcements should be ordered well in advance of the wedding date engraved, addressed, stamped—to be mailed as soon as possible after the ceremony.

Like wedding invitations, announcements are engraved on fine quality folded white or ivory sheets. The size most popular now is the small double sheet which fits unfolded into the envelope. The paper may or may not have a panel. I prefer it without. For mailing announcements, there are two envelopes. On the inner envelope (with unmucilaged flap) is written only the name of the guest or guests; on the outer envelope, the name and address with only the essential abbreviations of Mr. and Mrs.

If both invitations and announcements are sent (as is often the case when the entire list of friends of both families cannot be invited to the ceremony or reception), the style of engraving chosen for the announcements should match that of the invitations.

In the announcements, the hour of the ceremony is, naturally not included. But, unlike the invitations, the year is spelled in full. The place where the ceremony was performed must also be given, and, if desired, the church.

When the parents are making the announcement, this is the correct form:

Mr. and Mrs. John Ferris Strong have the honour of announcing the marriage of their daughter Mary Thayer to
Mr. Alexander Clark
on Tuesday, the twentieth of June
Nineteen hundred and thirty-nine
Haven, New York

Some notes about announcement forms:

The word honour should be spelled in the old-fashioned way with the u.

The second line may read "have the honour to announce", or "announce the marriage of their daughter". The form "announce the marriage" is considered abrupt; "have the honour of announcing" is the usual form.

The year may be written either "Nineteen hundred and thirty-nine, or One thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine". The first form is usually preferred.

With the announcements an At Home card may be enclosed. Since these cards are mailed after the wedding, the married name is used.

The most formal wording for this card is:

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Clark will be at home after the first of September
Ten Gracie Square

Another form, correct, and practical because the plate may later be used for the engraving of a joint visiting card, is:

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Clark
Ten Gracie Square
New York

At Home
after the first of September

Advice to the Lovelorn

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

Movie-Mad

Dear Miss Fairfax

Every time I call on my girl and ask what she'd like to do, she suggests a movie. She's a good girl and sensible and while I'd hate to lose her friendship, I really would like to spend an evening at home with her. Can I get her to agree to this, do you think?

Jack

Don't ask what she'd like to do Just say, tactfully: "Let's stay home this evening: I'd like to see you against a domestic background". Of course, you'll have to be entertaining and make the evening pleasant for her. If she has a radio you can dance. You might like to play games, or work out a crossword, or a jigsaw puzzle.

She Loves Brothers

Dear Miss Fairfax

I have known two men who are brothers for a long time and I've gone out with both of them on different occasions It has caused a good deal of unfriendly feeling between them. One is 25 and has a good position. The other is only 19, a violinist, and up to the present plays only in an orchestra. Both want me to marry them, and my mother thinks I ought to choose the older one, but I sort of lean to the younger boy. There's something so lovable about him.

Megs

I don't believe you care very much for either of these boys, my dear, or you would stop playing a dangerous and selfish game. A good many tragedies have resulted from just such behaviour as yours. Brothers have been jealous and have quarreled, even fought because of some girl who has amused herself by pretending to care for one, and then the other. Suppose you stop going with both, until you can make up your mind.

Is He a Tightwad?

Dear Miss Fairfax

I became acquainted with a boy about a year ago and he's been very nice to me. I like him at times and then again I don't. He took me out at first and I had a swell time. But now when he comes over, he just sits around and doesn't even offer to go out. I don't care to merely pass the time with him. He talks about what a good job he has, and even expects to buy a car soon. Do you suppose he's just coming to see me because he can't find anyone else, or is he a tightwad?

Sally

He may be saving his money for the car he says he's going to buy. And maybe when he really gets it he'll be quicker about taking you to places of amusement. Then again there may be some extra demands on his pay envelope at home. Have you thought of that? If you think he's the tightwad type, and you're the kind of girl who feels a man should spend money on her, it should be easy to drop him.

Strict Parents

Dear Miss Fairfax

My parents are very strict with me, and do not allow me to have any boys at the house, so I have to meet them at my girl friends. I'm 16 and I think I ought to be allowed to see my friends at my house, because I think I have a pretty nice home.

For three months now I've been going "steady" with a boy I love very much. Not long ago he stopped making dates with me, but I hesitate writing or 'phoning him, because he might think I'm running after him. Is there any other way I could speak to him?

Mary Jo

I don't want to appear unsympathetic my dear Mary Jo, but I can't quite approve of your meeting your boy friends at another place besides your home. If you were a little older, it might be differen,, but at 16 you're too young to assume the responsibility of meeting boys outside when you're not allowed to have them at your home.

In all probability the boy found out that your parents are unwilling for you to have company, and he doesn't like this underhand method of seeing you. Have a little patience, and in time your parents will become a little more lenient.

THE TIMBER STATES

The northwestern corner of the United States, where lie the three great timber states of Washington, Oregon and Idaho, has long been the tinderbox of the U.S. But the last annual report of the Forest Service shows that Georgia, Mississippi and Florida accounted for more than half the damage in 1937, with Florida well in first place.

At the same time, Forest Rangers in Missouri reported that hundreds of small blazes, bobbing up so quickly and spreading so rapidly that Rangers, farmers and C.C.C. camp workers could not keep up with them, created the worst fire situation in the state since 1934.

The Rangers say much of the damage was done by landholders laboring under the delusion that the hills and valleys must be "burned off" every Spring if they are to be used for grazing and if cattle ticks and other insects are to be held in check. The main thing that this silly and reckless burning does is to kill grass and young trees, thus contributing to erosion, and to kill or drive away the birds that would keep the insects in check. Education along these lines could do much to keep the fire demon out of the Missouri woods.—St. Louis Post Despatch.

DIVORCEE'S DAUGHTER

—By Vivian Radcliffe—

Janice smiled. Oh, yes, she and her mother had got along very well to all appearances, because Janice had allowed her beautiful mother to go her carefree way, until suddenly she had had to take the reins and gently try to lead Mother into more frugal paths. Then Mother had rebelled. Yet Janice had persisted and, out of that persistence, had grown the secretarial course about which Mother had not known.

"But, Janice, you'd love your father. He is so like you. If you'd been a boy I'd say you should be Ogden Flagg, Junior."

That statement made something within the girl swell with pride. The more she heard about her father now the more she liked him, and the more determined she was to make something of herself, and then go to him and say frankly, "I want to know you, now that I'm standing on my own two feet. It's fair to me to come to your home now."

She could not explain this to Wylde, or anyone else. It was just a secret determination within her that could not be shared—anyway, not at this point.

She got up and walked to the window. From the window, looking down twenty stories at the steady stream of traffic in Park Avenue below, she again spoke her thoughts aloud.

"New York is such a busy city. Everybody going somewhere, and most of them not even taking time to have a little fun."

Wylde rose and joined her at the window. Their shoulders touched as they stood there looking down. It was almost noon hour, a busy time in the city. Wylde's arm went about her waist and he leaned forward, urging her to look at the dignified men of money who were going into a club at the corner.

"Old codgers going to talk over the affairs of the nation — the world even—during their luncheon Your father belongs to that club and often lunches there."

"My father isn't an old codger!" Janice protested.

"I didn't say he was," Wylde hastily explained, then looked long into her eyes and quickly bent his head until his lips hovered over hers. She knew she should not let him kiss her, but that secret place in her heart held the wish that he would.

His lips met hers, at first lightly, then with a hardness that showed he had often kissed girls and knew the language of lips. All the years the schoolgirl admiration for Wylde was in her response. The kiss lingered on until she broke from him, emitting a breathless gasp, and looked up into his face with startled dark blue eyes.

"I believe you love me!" Wylde exclaimed in a low, surprised voice as though the knowledge was very startling and entirely unexpected.

She swung away from him, hastily crossing the room, pausing at the doorway in her flight to hear his words.

"Janice, tell me, am I the first man you've kissed?"

She did not answer, but her flying feet carrying her out of the room and down the hall had told that his guess had been true. Janice had never kissed a man before!

Wylde stood at the window for a long time, his thoughts suddenly sobered. He hadn't met a girl like Janice before. He felt a great pride in the knowledge that such a girl loved him.

CHAPTER XI.

Mrs. Greene spoke with a note of finality in her voice.

"Please close the door, Janice."

Something was wrong, but Janice did not know that. She wondered with a panicky fluttering of her heart if Mrs. Greene could have found out about that kiss.

"I think Anson Hartt is falling in love with you, my dear, and I'm so glad. He is of a fine family and would be a suitable husband for you," said Mrs. Greene. All the match-making of the social mother was spreading itself upon this daughter of her old friend.

But Janice resented the suggestion. She did not want to marry Anson—or any other man, yet. She wanted to find herself before she gave her heart to any man. Even Wylde.

"I'm not thinking of marriage, Mrs. Greene." Janice could not keep the edge off her voice and tried to soften her reproof by frankly meeting the older woman's eyes. "I want to work for a while, to achieve something."

"That is very silly, Janice. Your mother would not have approved of that. She would have wished you to go to your father upon her death. She only kept you from him during her life in vengeance for something which he did, tho' it was no worse than she did to him. But she really loved you and would think of you now, not of her revenge."

"I don't understand," Janice managed to say. What did Mrs. Greene know that might explain so many mysterious things in her mother's attitude during life?

"But to go back to Anson, my child," Mrs. Greene insisted, not to be turned from the subject uppermost in her mind, "he is just the husband for the daughter of Ogden Flagg. I'm sure your father—"

"You forget I am the daughter of Lois Flagg." Janice flashed, wishing Mrs. Greene would mind her own business.

"You are the daughter of Ogden Flagg, my dear. You are so like him that it is disconcerting at times. And what's more, I cannot see why you do not go to him as he wishes, and live as you should."

"Because I was given to my mother in a divorce settlement, and I can't run to him, now that she is dead and I am — poor."

The pride was apparent even to Mrs. Greene, and the woman, very proud herself, felt growing admiration for the girl.

"My dear, I'm going to tell you something you should know. I do not mean to speak lightly of the dead, and I want you to remember that I was very fond of your mother—she was a good friend of mine. But you must not hold against your father things that are not true."

"I know practically nothing about my father," Janice admitted, suddenly unbending and eagerly leaning forward in her chair to listen, as Mrs. Greene unfolded the story of her parents' lives together.

Her mother, after six years of marriage to Ogden Flagg, had found another man interesting. She thought no one knew. She kept it secret until after she accused her husband of being in love with his private secretary. But after that accusation, it came out that he knew of her own love affair. Bitterly angry, she demanded a divorce, Janice as her ward, and Ogden's support of the girl until she became eighteen.

Looking back over her life, as Mrs. Greene talked, Jan could now fit into the puzzle things she had never been able to understand. Her mother's bitterness against her father was explained, her mother's fickleness in lover became clear and almost revolting. She could see her father not finding an understanding wife in her mother. That was impossible with a person of Lois Flagg's temperament.

"Your father married his secretary and was very happy for the short time she lived. He has not married again, concentrating on business and bringing up Ivonne. She has been more of a problem than his business, I'm afraid."

Mrs. Greene finished her recital and sat back in her chair with an air of satisfaction. To her, her duty had been clear. Janice was a dear child, but she foolishly permitted loyalty to her mother to keep her from her rightful place—her father's home. Lois Flagg would never have told her daughter anything that might arouse disapproval of her own actions. Lois had been beautiful—but selfish.

Janice was torn between loyalty to her mother and furious resentment of Mrs. Green's smug satisfaction in imparting the unpleasant story of her mother's inconsistent nature.

"You haven't succeeded in turning me against the parent I knew and loved," she said. "I do not know my father, but I do know that my mother was dear and sweet to me, no matter what her faults."

"That is like your father. He, too, is an idealist." Again, there was admiration in Mrs. Greene's expression.

"If that is all, will you excuse me?" Realizing that she sounded abrupt, Janice added, "you've given me a lot to think about, and I'd like to —think."

"Of course, my child — run along."

Alone in her room, Janice flung herself on her bed and sobbed. Her world was crashing about her ears. Her mother had been unfair and unjust to the man who was her father, and in her blindness Jan had further hurt him. She felt like going to him and confessing

"Now I understand, and I want to know you and love you as I should have loved you all along."

CHAPTER XII

Janice had been waiting for this evening ever since Anson Hartt had said Peter Hathaway would be in New York and they must all meet him. Peter was now in the living room. He was to dine with them. Janice hurried along the hall, entering the room behind the butler, who carried a tray of cocktails.

She paused in the doorway, a lovely vision in a flaring, yellow moire evening dress. Her clear, white skin made a startling background for her black eyebrows and the sea-blue eyes that peered eagerly from beneath long, curling, black lashes.

Peter Hathaway looked up, a frown puckering his high forehead. Then he began to smile, and his face lighted with recognition.

"Imagine finding the sightseer here!" he exclaimed. "How are you enjoying New York, Miss Flagg?"

"Just as you expected," she replied pertly. "How could you tear yourself away from Illini?"

"That had all the earmarks of a dirty dig, but I'll forgive you and answer with enigmatic statement—business."

"Tit for tat!" She shrugged her shoulders. But she did not feel so flippant. She felt warm with an inner glow, for her hand had rested in his a moment. A tingling sensation coursed through her.

Mrs. Greene smiled approvingly. Wylde looked at her as though he found her sweet enough to eat. A speculative look hung in Anson's eyes as he glanced from his cousin to Wylde, for Corinne was, without doubt, jealous of the picture of youthful loveliness that Janice made.

As they sipped their cocktails and the talk became general, Janice quietly watched Peter Hathaway. Yes, he was still a gallant knight, but a knight uninterested in finding his lady. There was such a wholesome sincerity about him that she warmed to him, listened eagerly for his deep, low voice, wished he would look in her direction again so that she might smile shyly at him.

He looked. She smiled. His eyes smiled back as he talked on. Her glance went to Wylde. How different they were. Wylde was not any too keen about business, had accepted the fact that he had not been able to find a position which he considered suitable for him. Peter had his work, was enthusiastic about it, about his college, and the boys and girls he taught.

Yet, though Peter drew her in his own way, so did Wylde draw her. Wylde was the Prince Charming of her dream-days in her 'teens. Peter was a man who could win her love now that she had grown up. But Peter was not interested in her love—or in the love of any woman, apparently.

"I guess Peter is just my ideal man and Wylde is the man I really love," she tried to settle in her mind. "I've more of a chance of winning Wylde, even with Corinne around and her cap set for him, than I have of getting even a little attention from Peter."

She knew a pang of jealousy as Peter's gaze went more often to Corinne, with her flaming hair and sophisticated black velvet evening gown. She was not jealous of Corinne's beauty. Oh, no! She was jealous of those glances Peter gave Corinne.

But, of course, Peter had known Corinne years before. They were talking and laughing about happenings of that time. Janice felt out of things, though Wylde kindly included her in the conversation from time to time. She was glad when dinner was announced.

When the young folks decided upon going some place to dance later in the evening, it was Wylde who said, "Come along, Beautiful", to Janice. The flash of Corinne's eyes told her that his remark had not set at all well with that young woman.

Dancing with Peter, his arms about her, Janice felt that the world was a very good place in which to live.

"Wylde calls you Beautiful and I believe he's right. Not so much surface beauty, though you are very attractive, but something from within that seems to shine in your eyes," Peter told her thoughtfully.

"I thank you, sir" she murmured demurely and they both laughed.

"I'm kind of boorish where women are concerned, am I not?" he continued. "But what can you expect of a bachelor who is all wrapped up in his work?"

She ignored his question. Silently they danced—or rather seemed to float across the floor, his lead faultless, her steps following very smoothly in the intricate pattern he wove.

"So you're Ogden Flagg's daughter?" Peter broke the silence at last. "And yet you insist upon working. Why? What makes you want to assert independence? What makes you want to take from a man or a more needy girl a job that you don't need?"

Resentment did not well up in her at this question.

"I doubt if I could explain to you, much as I would like you to understand, but it is something which I must do for self respect. Mother took and took from Father and so does Ivonne. I've got to prove I'm not a parasite. Some day, when I feel he'll be proud of me, not just love me because I'm his flesh and blood, I'll assume my rightful place."

Peter shook his head. "I can't understand you modern girls. I wish all of you were less complicated."

"I'm really not very complicated," she assured him, praying he would take her word for it.

But he didn't. Again he shook his head, as the music ended on a long-drawn-out low chord, led her back to the table.

That night, in parting, Peter said good-bye to her. He would not see her again during his visit. His final words rang in her ears as she fell asleep. "I've a feeling I'll meet you again on another sight-seeing tour, somewhere," he had said and laughed, his eyes looking straight into hers with a kindly light burning in their depths.

REMEMBER the typical car of the early Nineteen-Twenties? It didn't have four-wheel brakes or balloon tires. Its wooden-frame body perched, square and angular, over the wheels. It bounced pretty hard when the going was rough. And when the speedometer hit 45, you held your hat! . . . Remember the price? You thought it was a "buy" at $1,500.

But a lot of rubber has rolled over the road since then. Engineers have perfected hydraulic brakes — Knee-Action — and All-Steel Turret Top Bodies. Designers have mastered the streamline art. And while progress has marched on and up . . . the price of motor cars has been reduced one-third.

All the world pays tribute to the motor industry for this great achievement. But it would never have been possible without advertising.

Consider the 10,000 individual advertisements published since 1920 in the Canadian daily newspapers by General Motors Products in Canada.

These advertisements have done more than tell the millions of Canadians from coast to coast the story of Chevrolet, Oldsmobile, Pontiac and McLaughlin-Buick — LaSalle and Cadillac — and Chevrolet and GMC Trucks. They have made today's mass production and nation-wide distribution of automobiles possible, by creating thousands upon thousands of buyers everywhere.

It used to cost a lot to make a few thousand cars for a few thousand motorists. But as advertising in the newspapers led more and more thousands to want motor cars and buy them, General Motors was able to cut manufacturing costs and build better cars at lower prices.

Newspaper advertising—the advertising that reaches all the people—is still helping General Motors to increase quality while reducing prices. It is still helping more Canadians in all walks of life to own better automobiles for less money.

Allen, Dean, Mungo, Newsom Come Through in Big Show Staged by Majors on Sunday

Four Hurlers, Nearly Washed Up, Put on Brilliant Performances

YANKS STILL WIN

Start Another Winning Streak Which Has Now Run to Five Games

By Judson Bailey Associated Press Sports Writer).

The happiness boys are riding right side up again.

If you don't remember the happiness boys, they're the fellows who get fun out of baseball—which is a bitter business for a lot of their associates.

That makes it easy to single them out of Sunday's big Major League show:-

ohnny Allen, the temperamental righthander whose tattered shirt caused a furore in the American League and ended up in a department store window (the shirt, not Allen).

Dizzy Dean, the ex (?) popoff whose $185,000 pitching arm has been the most debated wing in all baseball.

Van Lingle Mungo the lean Carolinian who probably has had more fights, fines and suspensions than any current big leaguer and who set some kind of a record last year by drawing a salary of approximately $1,000 an inning.

Buck Newsom, much-traded, much-misunderstood mound maestro who once undertook to pitch both games of a doubleheader and in six seasons has played with four different American League clubs not counting St. Louis Browns twice.

Allen Went Route

Allen went the route yesterday for the first time this spring to give Cleveland Indians a 6-0 shutout over Chicago White Sox on three hits. Naturally this was most encouraging to the Cleveland people because Allen, who won 15 games in a row in 1937 only to lose his final, had a bad year last season and an operation on his arm during the winter hadn't helped him previously.

Similarly Newsom's seven-hit 6-2 performance against his recent teammates, the Browns, gave the Detroit folks something to cheer. It was Newsom's second triumph within a week and came on top of good showings by Tommy Bridges, Paul Trout and Schoolboy Rowe.

New York Yankees, who saw a winning streak broken at 12 games only last week, already have built themselves another five-game string. They beat Philadelphia Athletics, 9-5, Sunday in a hitting session featured by George Selkirk's two homers—which came off Bob Joyce the same as the two he hit in one game the day before.

Boston Red Sox also snatched a free-hitting game—their fourth in a row—in a 12-7 affair victimizing Washington Senators.

String is Broken

Dean had his string of shutout innings broken at 18, but he held the Pirates to eight hits to give Chicago Cubs a 6-2 victory and lift them back into third place in the National League.

Mungo was bombed out of the box, just like a lot of others in Brooklyn Dodgers' 16-12 marathon triumph over Boston Bees. Each team used four pitchers and Mungo not only stood up well in his four and a fraction innings of service, but contributed two timely doubles.

Cincinnati retained its lead in the National League by splitting a doubleheader at St. Louis, 6-5 and 8-4. Curt Davis bested Johnny Vander Meer in the first game to end the Reds' victory chain at an even dozen, but Paul Derringer was as steady as ever in taking the nightcap. New York Giants crowded five runs into the eighth inning to beat the last place Phillies, 7-2.

NO FLUKE HITS

Best catcher in the National League with the decline of Gabby Hartnett is Ernie (Schnozz) Lombardi, (ABOVE), one of the big reasons for the great play of Cincinnati Reds. Schnozz handles his pitchers in fine style and really lays into the ball at the plate. With his "speed" he has to get a genuine hit to reach first, and, of course, was good enough in this regard to win the league batting championship last year. And not making opposing pitchers any happier this year!

NIAGARA FALLS DROPS 1ST. GAME IN SEVEN STARTS

Smoky Comi of Port Colborne Hurls 6-0 Shutout in Registering Win

ST. KITTS WIN

Waterloo Consolidates Position at Top of Heap by Win Over Guelph

(By The Canadian Press)

Pitcher Smoky Comi of Port Colborne set up several new marks for Niagara District hurlers to shoot at as he handed Niagara Falls Brights their first defeat in seven starts Saturday—and made it a shutout at that.

Comi figured in nine putouts, one assist, two strikeouts, and drove in a run in the 6-0 victory. Niagara Falls used three pitchers in the effort to halt the landslide, but the Ports took two runs in the first, one in the fourth, two in the sixth and one in the eighth.

While Niagara Falls was losing, St. Catharines were chalking up their sixth win of the season, a 2-1 victory over Merritton. All runs were scored in the fourth inning and Bradden turned in a six-hit job for the winners.

A closely-contested fixture at Niagara Falls saw Brocks defeat Thorold 8-7 by gaining the tieing and winning runs in the last of the ninth. George Jamieson took over mound duties for Niagara Falls in the second after a shaky start by Miller, and filled in beautifully.

Welland Aces Drubbed

A rebuilt Fort Erie team got results in the other Niagara District game, by drubbing Welland Aces 11-1. Welland counted only in the first inning and threatened in the second, when, with the bases loaded, pitcher Lefty Pearl pulled himself out of the hole.

The way the senior Intercounty series is proceeding, it looks like a knock-'em-down fight between Stratford Nationals and Waterloo Tigers.

Each team has won three games and though Stratford dropped one of their decisions, their killing pace has bowled over one opponent after another.

Waterloo consolidated their position on top of the heap Saturday with a 6-3 victory over Guelph, while Stratford rolled over a weakened Preston Riversides squad by the same margin. Waterloo has yet to lose.

All Runs in One Inning

A big fourth inning which gave Waterloo all their runs was the deciding factor in the first game. Preston, minus several regulars, proved easy victims for the visitors, Pfeiffer striking out 11.

In the other Intercounty fixture Brantford crushed the cellar-dwelling Galt Terriers 11-4 to fatten their percentage at three won to three lost.

Peterborough handed Toronto Danforth Aces their initial loss of the Intercity senior season 6-3, behind the six-hit pitching of Ross Kitchen. Four errors by the Toronto team contributed largely to the Petes' success.

His Work Speaks for Him

For the benefit of the public this rookie hurler with Washington Senators goes by the name of Al Alexandra, having switched from Alexander Carrasquel, his cognomen when the Senators brought him in from South America this spring. The catcher's signals really mean something to Al — he can't speak English! He learned to pitch from barnstorming American players and already this season he's won more than he's lost, his efforts including a three-hitter against St. Louis.

Johnny Allen, Indians: Shut out White Sox on three hits in winning his 100th game as Major Leaguer.

George Selkirk, Yankees: For second game in succession he hit two home runs to lead attack on Athletics.

Harry Lavagetto, Dodgers: His homer with bases loaded in seventh was margin of victory over Bees.

Dizzy Dean, Cubs: Effective eight hit hurling along with his double and single broke Chicago's losing streak with victory over Pirates.

Ted Williams and Joe Cronin, Red Sox: Their homers headed slugging attack that gave Boston Clean sweep of series with Senators.

WRESTLING SHOW FRIDAY NIGHT

Johnnie Denchuck to Meet Jewish Champion in Main Bout

A "double-dipper" of science, speed and agility of wrestling marks the return of professional grappling to the Hume arena on Friday night when Johnnie Denchuck, the Polish-born New York City hefty, meets George Richards alias Benny Stein, the Jewish champion in the main bout with Johnny Gyroffy, the Hungarian grappler meeting Al Dunlop in a second main affair with the preliminary contestants yet to be announced, arena Manager Norm Barirage announced this morning.

"Denchuck wrestled in Toronto last week and made a hit at the Gardens. Richards beat Dunlop two weeks ago here and earned top billing with Denchuck," stated Manager Barrige as he added that Gyroffy, who appeared in Belleville several years ago, had just returned from two years wrestling along the Pacific Coast. Denchuck bears a splendid reputation as a sturdy ferocious and unscrupulous grappler, but Richards gladdened the hearts of local mat fans, when he soundly beat Dunlop here a fortnight ago and will be the favourite regardless as to whom he wrestles here on Friday night.

NEWARK BEARS DROP TWIN BILL TO THE CHIEES

ROCHESTER ON TOP

Toronto Rained Out After Six Innings of Play at Montreal

(By The Associated Press)

Rochester Red Wings, having found the rarefied air of first place in the International Baseball League a bit heady, almost lost their precarious hold on the driver's seat—but managed to hang on for at least another day.

The Wings, after climbing into the top spot Saturday, promptly tossed away the first game of a doubleheader yesterday to Buffalo Bisons 13-3 but came back to win the nightcap 7-4, thanks to pitcher Roy Henshaw.

The two clubs that have dominated the blue ribbon spot most of the season—Jersey City and Newark—helped the Wings stay up front by dropping crucial battles. The Little Giants let Baltimore beat them 4-3 and then had to salvage some glory by winning the second end of a double bill 13-5.

Meanwhile Newark was setting a new record for the season by losing both ends of a twin bill. Syracuse plastered the double defeat on the Bears by one-run margins, in both cases. The scores were 4-3 and 3-2.

Chiefs Now Fourth

By the double victory, the Chiefs jumped into fourth place just .002 points ahead of Montreal which could do no better than get a 3-3 tie with Toronto in five innings before rain halted that game and the one scheduled to follow it.

Baltimore moved to within .001 percentage point of Montreal by splitting with Jersey City. Buffalo and Toronto are still bringing up the rear.

In the Jersey City-Baltimore split bill, Harry Matuzak was too much for the Giants in the first game, scattering seven hits to win by 4-3 but the "Jints" massacred four Baltimore hurlers for 18 hits to take the nightcap 13-5.

Henshaw became a serious candidate for mayor of Rochester, at least, by limiting the Buffalos to eight hits and winning 7-4, after the Bisons had punched out 16 hits in the opener to win 13-3.

Sudden Influx Of Nova Money Reduces the Odds

(By Sid Feder Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, May 29 (AP)—Win, lose or draw for either man, the 15-round get-together of Lou Nova and Max Baer in Yankee stadium Thursday night is the "bettingest" fight this town has seen in a long time.

The odds in Maxie's favor have been cut considerably since the sudden influx of Nova money from the Pacific Coast and the odds-layers now will give you 3 to 2 if you like Maxie to win the decision, or 2-1 if you favor Nova.

One prominent gambler revealed today that $30,000 in Nova money arrived from the west on one day over the week-end and was promptly covered.

You can get 5 to 1 that Baer knocks out the ex-collegian in the first five rounds; 7-1 that he does it between the sixth and 10th and 9-1 that he'll put Lou to sleep in the last five. Nova, on the other hand, is less-liked as a knocker-outer. They'll give you 10-1, 8-1, depending on which set of five rounds you pick him to put "poppa" Maxie away.

Meantime each of the principals was head over heels in love with his own chances. Maxie, in the best condition of his career, his "playboying" a thing of the past—but still dancing around on 30-year-old legs—predicted he would flatten his fellow-California family man in six heats or less.

Nova, who doesn't pack the Baer artillery, but is fast, strong, young and full of serious determination, figures the fight will go the route and at the end he'll be the winner.

33 ARE ENTERED IN SPEED RACE

Louis Meyer Winner Three Times Will be Favorite to Come Home First

Indianapolis, May 29 (AP) — Thirty-three guys—just ordinary fellows like your next door neighbor, but who picked a tougher way of earning a living—will take off tomorrow in the 27th annual Indianapolis motor speedway race, shooting for a wad of cash.

The ticket sale brought indications of a 150,000 gate, officials said.

The field that will go to the post will be the fastest in the history of the 500-mile race. The 33 starters averaged 123.547 miles an hour as compared with last year's 120.032 miles an hour.

Four former winners, who between them have accounted for six Indianapolis races, will be in the starting field. No. 1 man, both in races won and for being mentioned as a favorite again is Louis Meyer of Huntington Park, Calif., victor in 1928, 1933 and 1936. Other former winners trying again are Kelly Petillo of Los Angeles, victor in 1935; Wilbur Shaw of Indianapolis, 1937, and Floyd Roberts, 1938.

MEYER DECIDES BEFOREHAND WHAT SPEED SHOULD WIN THE RACE AND THEN GOES OUT AND DRIVES IT.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with

Ken J. Colling

Trust George Laughlin to come to bat with something new and different. It was over two years ago Mr. Laughlin, who is athletic director at the B.C.I. & V.S., first introduced six-man football into the Belleville Collegiate sports program as an inter-form sport. Now George comes to bat with a new wrinkle—six-man baseball or softball. "The idea was thought up in the middle states for schools, where there were not sufficient players for the usual team of nine players and several spares," explains Mr. Laughlin. First and foremost the second baseman, shortstop and centre fielder are eliminated from the game, which is also played with what we know as second base. It seems the playing diamond is not a diamond at all, but a triangle, there only being three bases, home, first and what we now refer to as third. With the field laid out in a triangle shape, the base runner runs directly beyond the pitcher from first to the next base and then down the last leg of the triangle side to the starting point of home base.

The idea might be practical, but the shape of the triangle field cuts down the batter's attack, as he will not have the right angles of first and third base lines to bat through and therefore we expect to see more foul hits. However, we hope Mr. Laughlin will stage a game of this six-man ball for our benefit as we'll go for anything—once. On the surface it appears they are really doing things to the old game of baseball. For instance over in Finland they've taken the game, rejuvenated it to their Finish ideas and come out with a game called "pesapallo". The Finns wanted baseball included on the Olympic games program, but the Americans are skeptical, especially after the mediocre reception the game got at the 1936 Olympic games in Berlin. At any rate the Finlanders changed the old game of baseball all around. They completely eliminated the battery, that is there is no pitcher and catcher. Sounds rather screwy, we know, but never the less that's "pesapallo."

It seems the team in the field take their positions on what appears to be a diamond shaped playing field, not a square diamond as in baseball. The batter steps up to a home base while a man stands off to one side and easily tosses a ball into the air with an effortless lob, the batter then takes a healthy swing and the fielders try for the usual out. The batting of the Finns' game really reminds one of the old game of knocking out flies, or as they call it in professional baseball "fungo hitting." Apparently there can be no strike outs in the Finnish game, which would not prove very attractive to an American or Canadian baseball or softball crowd. However, the Finns really pack 'em in for their new fangled game, which does not carry physical hazards whatsoever, but is purely a game of speed and accuracy, from the meagre description of the pastime we have been afforded. Here again we'd like to see a game of "pesapallo" for curiosity's sake, but for downright thrills and a red-blooded game, we'll take the good old Canadian games of either baseball or softball and be satisfied.

Looks as though we're in for a busy week of sports locally. Monday, Tuesday and Friday sees City softball holding the limelight, Wednesday we've the greyhound races, something new and a novelty in these parts and Thursday the Bay of Quinte League shoves off locally with Walt Gerow's league champion Napanee Gibbards at Belleville. Just who will start on the hilltop for the locals has not been announced as yet, but at the time of writing it would appear as though Sammy Ellis a lefthander or Joe Kelleher, a righthander, will get the call, depending no doubt upon the type of batters trotted out by Skipper Gerow.

Do you remember when Suzanne Lenglen, who three years previously had reached the pinnacle of her career by carrying off all the gold medals at the Antwerp Olympic Games of 1920, collapsed during a tennis game at St. Cloud, 16 years ago today. She recovered from her slight illness, turning professional in 1926. She died of pernicious anemia July 4, 1938, at the age of 39.

Johnnie (No Hit) Vander Meer lost to the Cards yesterday, but the Cincinnati Reds won two out of three over the week end and are leading the National League with the Cards second while the Cubs advanced to the third slot. With Dizzy Dean pitching his second consecutive win of the week the Cubs downed the Pirates, as Dean scattered eight hits well. Until the Pirates scored two runs in the fifth Dean had pitched 18 consecutive scoreless innings for the Cubs in one relief job and two starts.

Did You know That—Wes Ferrell, 31-year-old veteran pitcher of the Yankees, had been given his outright release by the world's champions? Ferrell is a ten year man and could not be waived out of the league....Geo. Selkirk's homers won for the Yankees yesterday, he clubbed two of 'em against the A's.... Athletes from B.C.I. and Albert competed in the Ontario Secondary Schools track and field meet at Kingston on Saturday....T. Wooley (Albert) placed in the senior 100 yard dash, T. Powell (Albert) placed in the broad jump while B. Gilbert (B.C.I.) won the girls' broad jump and was second in the hundred.... Russ Kitchen hurled six hit ball as the Petes won their opening senior Inter-city ball game over the Toronto Danforths 6-3 on Saturday.

WHO CARES?

A screaming headline at the top of one of San Francisco's morning dailies announces that "Clark Gable weds Carole Lombard." Why should anybody care whom he marries? It would not interest us if he married the Devil's sister. —San Francisco Argonaut.

Burgess Whitehead, Giants, tags Terry Moore, Cardinals, coming into second, but "hizzoner" calls it safe.

The Stars Say—

For Tuesday, May 30
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

WHILE the astral indications are for fairly active moves in business, there also are tokens of adverse influences. These may be due to the impulses and indiscretions resulting from the high-pitched state of the forces and faculties. This want of poise and caution may prove a disturbing element, both in business and in the private life. Nevertheless, there are signs of some pleasant social or sentimental engagements.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy an active, progressive and pleasant year if they will put the brakes on some rather combative, turbulent, imprudent and intemperate conduct. This may be the result of an overestimated of an overstimulated nervous tension of some other feverish physical or mental condition. It may have unhappy reactions on domestic associations. Poise, calm, precaution are urged.

A child born on this day may have an excessively-stimulated and passionate nature, although it should be mentally bright, energetic and ambitious. Proper direction and discipline in infancy may preclude unhappy personal relations in later life.

KING AND QUEEN WALK BETWEEN SAILOR GUARD AT PRAIRIE CITY

CALGARY WELCOMES THEIR MAJESTIES PRIOR TO THEIR MOUNTAIN HOLIDAY

Saturday the King and Queen find rest in the heart of the Canadian Rockies at Banff. But still ringing in their ears and standing forth vividly in their memories is the colorful pageantry with which Calgary greeted them Friday. Calgary was informal for the most part, as the Indians of the prairies staged a thrilling wild-west show for the royal party. One of the few notes of formality came at the city hall, where Mayor Andy Davison, in cutaway, while the King wore an informal business suit, accompanied the Queen up the walk to the city hall between lines of sailors from a prairie naval unit. Here formal presentations of 40 city officials were made to the King and Queen. (Phonephoto)

CALGARY VISIT CLIMAXED AS 400 INDIANS CHANT WAR - CRIES

KING ADOPTS WEST'S INFORMALITY OF DRESS, BUT MAYOR DONS CUTAWAY

Shrill war-cries rent the air and 400 Indians swarmed from teepees massed in a redman's village that rose over night in Calgary to climax the visit of the King and Queen. There were Sarcees and Bloods, Piegans and Blackfeet in the rousing dances and in the thunderous tattoo of mustang hoofs that these native "plainsmen" staged to provide Their Majesties with a real "wild west show." The King and Queen walked through a sea of bobbing feather headdresses as they met and chatted with their Indian wards. In keeping with the gay air of informality which has enveloped the royal tour ever since Winnipeg, the King stepped off the train in a plain suit and gray fedora, but Calgary's Mayor Andy Davison, once a linotype operator, was all dressed up in cutaway and striped trousers.

'No News Is Good News'

By OSCAR YOUNG

"Of course," said the smartly visitor, as she glanced about the simply furnished, sunshine little room, "I can imagine your not wanting to work in winter— you always did hate wading through slush or snow, I remember, and it must be sort of nice just to stay at home and take things easy while the mercury clings to zero. But in spring—well, that's different again."

The bungalow aproned hostess merely smiled as she reflected that stoking a furnace, shoveling paths, tending to the supply of dry mittens, leggings and stocking caps, wool socks and warm scarfs for three active children wasn't exactly "taking things easy."

"You know you can get your old job back in a minute," declared Madeline. "Miss Burke said just the other day she would be tickled pink to have you in the French section once more—that you were the best saleswoman she ever had. She even said that in case you were short of cash to buy a nice chic little dress for work, she'd make you a special rate on one of the sample models, for she said the girls who get married always are short of cash by the time they have even one kid, let alone three."

"You better think it over, dearie," urged Madeline, drawing her smart crushed gauntlet gloves over smooth white hands. "Any time before the fourteenth, Miss Burke said to let her know. "My!" suddenly exclaimed Madeline, "it certainly will seem like old times to be going out to lunch again with you. And with Phil on the road three weeks out of four, you can get off for some good times instead of being tied to the house the way you are now, every day in the week just like every other day, week after week, month after month.

Her visitor gone, Viola Armstrong looked thoughtfully about one room after another of the little house.

She wondered if she would be able to pick up the new dance steps—Phil never wanted to go out evenings during the week he was in from the "road"—it would seem good to go to a movie or musical show once in a while.

Three hungry children, trooping in from the sand-pile in the back yard, interrupted Viola's thoughts. Deftly she prepared supper.

As the children ate, Viola once more thought of Madeline's words. Of Miss Burke's offer. And she reflected that all three of the jolly brown-eyed youngsters would be fed and tucked into their beds before she would be home from the store, if she went back to work in town. There would be but cold comfort in buying pretty clothes and expensive toys for the children if she was never home to see them wear the clothes or play with the toys.

Supper over, the three laughing children trooped up the stairs to make ready for bed. Viola tucked each child into its own little bed or crib.

Slowly she made her way down the stairs and into the silent living-room. Madeline was right— it wasn't so cheery, this having one's husband on the road three weeks out of four. That is, it wasn't so cheery during the three weeks. The fourth, of course, was just like a gorgeous vacation.

That fourth week wouldn't be so much, though if she were working in a store in town. Viola admitted to herself.

Seating herself before the well-worn old desk—the desk which had served Phil throughout his college years—Viola took out pen and paper, just as she did every night that Phil was "on the road."

Phil wouldn't be home till after the fourteenth—if she was going back to work, she must let him know.

Suddenly Viola remembered something Phil had said not many weeks before. "I never fret about the youngsters honey," he had told her. "I know you are right on the job, looking after them, instead of tearing around like a cuckoo flapper. I suppose it's lonesome business for you, but I'm telling you the kids are darned lucky to have a mother like you on the job 24 hours a day, every day in the week."

Forty-eight hours later, a certain gray-eyed young man tore open an envelope and eagerly scanned the closely written pages it contained.

"Madeline Clarke called — she looked like a million dollars— and she tried to inveigle me into going back to the store. No thanks. No clock punching and waiting on fussy women who have more time and money than they have taste. Not while I've such a grand job looking after the cunningest little house and the three sweetest children in the world, to say nothing of writing to the nicest husband who ever lived."

So read the letter which, strangely enough, commenced: "Dearest Phil: Today has been just like every other Sunday when you aren't at home; there really is no news at all."

And ended: "P. S.: I've gone all through my cedar chest and piece bag, and I've found enough stuff to make enough braided rag rugs for the nursery, new cushion covers for the davenport, and for a coat for Betsy.. Who says we aren't wealthy!"

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, May 29 —(AP) — Stocks took a turn for the better in today's market after an early downward drift failed to attract sizeable offerings.

Dealings were slow throughout, with transfers about 400,000 shares. Prices were moderately uneven near the final hour.

United States Steel and Bethlehem came back when this week's mill operations were estimated up 3.7 points at 52.2 per cent of capacity. Recording minor advances were U. S. Rubber, Chrysler, General Motors, American Can and Consolidated Edison.

Backward were Douglas Aircraft, International Harvester, Westinghouse, Du Pont, Anaconda and Sears Roebuck.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 29—(CP)—Toronto Exchange perked up today after a dull opening. Volume was fair with turnover of 287,000 shares

Leadership was lacking from Europe where stock markets were closed for the Whitsuntide holidays but New York displayed general strength, encouraging the buying here.

Leaders of the secondary Gold group were Siscoe, MacLeod-Cockshutt, Hard Rock, Kirkland Lake, San Antonio, Preston and others, all showing gains. Lake Shore and McIntyre were strong spots in the Senior Gold group.

Most of the Base Metals were firm to strong. Higher prices ruled for Pend Oreille, Sherritt, Noranda and Nickel.

Utilities, Foods, Banks and Senior Oils were unchanged to slightly higher and Home, Okalta and Prairie royalties showed minor gains in the Western Oil group.

INDIANS NOW ASK HARNESS MAKER TO BUY

Goldendale, Wash., May 29 (AP)—Through the years as automobiles and tractors replaced horses, the Indian stood out as the bright spot in the life of a harness maker—he still depended on the draught animals. Now, however, sighed harness maker W. H. Ward, "the Indians are changing, too. They all bring in beaded vests and horsehair bridles they want me to buy so they can get gasoline."

Pet Terrier Aids Identification Of His Mistress

Woman, Accident Victim, Wanted Dog Put to Death Painlessly When She Died

TORONTO, May 29. — (CP) — The will of Mrs. Sarah E. Abbott, 77, who died Saturday from injuries received in an automobile accident, specified that her four-year-old terrier, Judy, be put to death painlessly when she died. But Judy aided police in identifying her mistress and her life will be spared.

Judy's whimpers in the flat where she had been left alone by Mrs. Abbott attracted the attention of the janitor downstairs Saturday. When he found the dog alone, he notified police, who had been trying to identify an aged woman injured Friday. Bandages covered the woman's face and the janitor was not sure whether it was Mrs. Abbott.

But he knew Mrs. Abbott had a niece, who was brought to hospital and identified the woman from her glasses and clothes. Judy will be given a home with the niece, Mrs. Abbott.

GREAT SEAPORT

The Queen followed His Majesty as a sudden flash of sunshine broke through the threatening clouds. She, too, shook hands with the Mayor and Mrs. Telford.

Her Majesty wore a blue crepe ensemble, the sleeves banded with lace, and an off-the-face hat in matching blue. Her gloves, shoes and bag were in grey.

The King wore his uniform as Chief of the Royal Air Force.

Even before their Majesties could be seen—they stepped from their Royal train to a platform below the street level—a great cheer mounted, almost drowning the booming cannon firing a 21-gun salute from famed Stanley Park.

Arrives On Time.

The silver-and-blue train which has carried the King and Queen from Quebec where they landed May 17, arrived in the downtown depot at 10 a.m. P.S.T., on time.

When the Royal motor car appeared on the street after passing through a covered runway from the platform, the crowd went wild with enthusiasm. The King stepped to the roadway before nearby Pier BC to inspect a guard of honor posted by the Seaforth Highlanders of Canada.

50,000 U. S. Visitors

Automobiles from Washington State formed a steady stream at Pacific highway ports of entry. Some estimates placed at 50,000 the number of United States visitors.

Expected early traffic congestion didn't materialize. Police said Vancouver's 51-mile Royal route provided plenty or room for all to see their Sovereigns.

The sun shone occasionally through holes in the clouds as more blue sky became visible around 9:15.

Twenty-five thousand Scots gathered in Little Mountain Park with a choir to sing "Will Ye No Come Back Again" as Their Majesties passed. English societies lined half of Burrard Street Bridge leading from downtown to Kitsilano residential area.

Gun crews in Stanley Park, across Coal Harbor, an arm of the harbor proper west of the business section, fired a 21-gun salute when Their Majesties train stopped.

TOTAL ALLOTMENT NOT EXACTLY KNOWN

Belleville's total allotment of free butter under the Dominion Government's scheme of distribution is not exactly known as yet, but vouchers for the supply are already being issued by the local relief office, by Miss H. Lynch, supervisor, it was stated by Mr. I. G. Hefkey president of the Belleville branch of the Red Cross Society. Under this government scheme, Canada's surplus butter is to be issued through the Red Cross branches of the various municipalities in order to relieve the industry of the oversupply created last year.

'LIFE' MAGAZINE IS CRITICIZED IN COMMONS

Revenue Minister Says He Will Look Into Reference to Quebec

PHOTOGRAPH CAPTION

Ottawa, May 29 (CP)—Two American magazines, Life and Ken, were under fire in the House of Commons today, the former because of its pictures and captions on the visit of the King and Queen to Canada.

Wilfrid Gariepy (Lib. Three Rivers) referred to the last number of Life which he said "contains an absolute lie—a statement very insulting to one of the older provinces of this country.

"There is a picture showing their Majesties riding in a landau, an open carriage, in the city of Ottawa. The caption refers to the fact they were passing through a loyal population here where no special precautions had to be taken, while in the city of Quebec they had to ride in a bullet-proof armored car because they were passing through a population that was not loyal.

Urges Magazine Be Stopped.

"Those are not the exact words but that is the substance of the statement. This is something that should not be allowed in any magazine and I think steps should be taken to stop this magazine at the border."

"The matter will be considered," said Revenue Minister Ilsley. Justice Minister Lapointe, who was leading the House, said he had no doubt the article was "crazy" but he did not think it should be given any wider publicity.

F. E. Lennard (Con. Wentworth) referred to the banning of Ken some months ago and the subsequent lifting of the ban. "Since its subject matter has not been improved at all I should like to know why the ban on this magazine has been lifted," he said.

Mr. Ilsley said Ken was banned because of a cartoon featuring his Majesty and which the department considered offensive. The ban extended for the customary period of six issues.

Not only were subsequent issues inoffensive but the publishers of Ken gave "an undertaking to the government to desist from publishing material of the type published on that one occasion and also published an editorial in which they expressed their regret."

Since that time the publication had not contained anything of a "seditious or treasonable" nature and there appeared no ground for prohibiting the magazine from entering Canada.

PARLIAMENT MAY

Referred to Committee.

The Finance Minister's important bill to set up a mortgage discount bank has been referred to the House Committee on Banking and Commerce for study and discussion, and much of the week was expected to be taken up with evidence from representatives of leading lending institutions and government experts on banking.

There is another committee still sitting, the public accounts committee inquiring into the National Defence Department contract with John C. Inglis Company, Toronto, for manufacture of 7,000 Bren light machine guns for the Canadian army. A big sitting is expected tomorrow, when Col. George Drew, Ontario Conservative leader and author of a magazine article that precipitated the whole investigation, will be on the stand. A spokesman for MacLean's Magazine, which published the article, may also testify.

When the committee has concluded evidence, a warm debate on its findings is anticipated on the floor of the House.

Debate May Be Opened.

The debate on the report of the committee on electoral affairs may also come up before the session is over. If the House is to debate the banking and commerce committee report as well, with special reference to the mortgage discount bank bill, work may have to be extended into next week.

Since the departure of Prime Minister Mackenzie King and several cabinet ministers in connection with the Royal tour, work has proceeded without haste in the House, but a large share of department estimates have been approved.

The senate will resume tonight.

on—symbol of hope and peace — did its fantastic dance through Chinatown as hundreds of whites and Orientals looked down from roofs and windows of surrounding buildings.

Chinese boys and girls lined up at attention after the dance, carrying the Union Jack and singing God Save the King.

Just after the turmoil in Chinatown quietened—police had been unable to keep the throngs off two blocks of street—a heavy rain drenched the city and most other coast centres. Citizens awoke Sunday to find flags and bunting on their homes sodden, but warm sunshine between afternoon showers repaired most of the damage.

The King was to review a guard of honor posted by the 72nd. Battalion, Seaforth Highlanders of Canada, near the depot this morning before he and the Queen continued their drive to the city hall for a civic reception.

Go to Vancouver

At 5.00 p.m., after a drive throigh the east end and North and West Vancouver, their Majesties were to board the coastal steamer Princess Marguerite for the 80-mile trip through the Gulf of Georgia to Victoria where they stay two nights at Government House as guests of Lieutenant-Governor Eric W. Hamber and Mrs. Hamber.

Victoria crowds will welcome the King and Queen and cheer them on the short drive through decorated streets to Government House. Their Tuesday program includes receptions at the city hall and British Columbia legislative buildings, and a provincial government luncheon where the King makes a brief broadcast address.

But Victoria's program is designed to give their Majesties needed rest before they begin their return journey across Canada. The official days ends at 3.00 p.m. After that they may possibly visit the world-famed Butchart Sunken Gardens outside the city.

Navy units from adjoining Esquimalt base paraded through Victoria's streets during the week-end, polishing their drill before posting a guard of honor near the Parliament Buildings as the King steps ashore and for the ceremony of presenting the King's color to Esquimalt forces Tuesday.

FAMOUS DOCTOR DIES

Dr. Charles H. Mayo, famed American surgeon, who teamed with his brother to create the internationally known medical clinic at Rochester, Minn., died of pneumonia in his 74th year at the Mercy hospital in Chicago.

TORRENTIAL RAIN IN NORTH DISTRICT

Vicinity of Trent River, Madoc and Tweed Greatly Helped by Downpour

Old Jupiter Pluvius, sometimes generous, sometimes not so generous, sent down showers of much-needed rain in various parts of the district yesterday, but overlooked the city and its immediate surroundings.

While a fresh wind that blew strongly across the city in the early afternoon brought with it threats of rain and crackling static of radios warned of the proximity of electric storms no excessive downpour was noticeable here, although a shower brought respite from the high temperature a little after seven o'clock last evening.

Motorists returned from the northern and western parts of the county reported heavy downpours. Near the Trent River the storm broke suddenly with driving sheets of rain that lowered visibility to a marked degree. One party returning from a motor drive to Trenton were surprised to discover no rain here when their proposed trip was suddenly cut short by a heavy downpour that greeted them near the nearby town.

In the northern part of the county, heavy showers were encountered by visitors. In one place it is reported motorists were forced to drive at a minimum of speed as grey sheets of rain poured down from suddenly darkened skies.

The rain will prove of inestimable benefit to farmers, it was stated today. Planting is in season and tomatoes and other plant crops will receive a goodd start. Spring grains that in some places are already breaking through the ground will receive a much-needed impetus to their growth, while alfalfa in various parts of the district, particularly Prince Edward County, already six inches in height, will benefit greatly by the long-looked-for moisture.

GROUNDHOGS BATTLE IN MIDDLE OF ROAD

Two combative groundhogs which chose the exact centre of the Millbridge-Bancroft road on Saturday afternoon for a rousing fight blocked the progress of a car containing a party of local residents enroute to a northern lake for a period of fifteen minutes or more, it was reported by one of the passengers today.

The animals were oblivious to the car which advanced on them as close as possible, but continued their furious fight apparently unaware they were entertaining a full carload of passengers. According to one of the residents well versed in nature lore, fighting groundhogs are a rarity.

WATERS REFUSE TO GIVE UP DEAD

Bodies of Picton Residents and Percy Knox Have Not Been Found

Waters of Lake Ontario and the Trent Diver have thus far refused to give up their dead, three victims of drowning accidents that occurred within the past four months.

Searchers are still scouring the rock-bound shores of southern Prince Edward County in the fast-diminishing hope that the bodies of Andrew Goodwin and James Miller, Picton residents believed drowned when their eighteen foot motor skiff was discovered capsized off Waupoos, will be found. Dragging operations have virtually ceased but the search of the surrounding shores and shallow waters is still being carried on.

The body of Lockmaster Percy Knox, believed drowned while shovelling snow from the raceday of the dam last winter, has yet to be found. It was thought that the Spring break-up of ice in the river would reveal the body, but so far no trace of it has been discovered.

Rewards have been offered by relatives of Miller and Knox for the recovery of their bodies.

Rise in Coal Price Not Anticipated

Local fuel dealers today had received no advice from outside sources regarding the probability of a rise in price in American anthracite coal, according to the manager of one firm who expressed doubt of any immediate increase in the price of this coal in Belleville and district. This despite announcement from Toronto that price of anthracite there from American mines would soon be raised.

It is admitted that there has been considerable shortage of the American variety due to the coal strike in the United States, but instead of resulting in a rise in price of all coal in this area, an actual reduction has been effected in the price of Welsh and Scottish coal. According to Toronto reports, price of American anthracite at the mines has been increased 15 cents a ton and will be increased by the same amount monthly for the next four months, making 75 cents in all.

Sidelights on Royal Visit

Kamloops B.C., May 29 (CP)—Every precaution was taken last night for comfort of the King and Queen during their half-hour stop here. Half an hour before arrival of the Royal train, the platform on which Their Majesties stood was sprayed to keep away mosquitoes.

Kamloops, B.C., May 29 (CP)—Pete Lowery, an Indian from Squilax, B.C., on Shuswap Lake, wanted to see the King and Queen so badly he left a hospital bed after being on a milk diet for 14 days and came to Kamloops. During the afternoon he collapsed, but recovered in time to be at the station to meet the Royal train last night.

Kamloops, B.C., May 29 (CP)—Indians of the Thompson tribe who congregated here last night to see the King and Queen flew a flag presented to their forbears by Queen Victoria.

The flag, a gold mitre and cross on a field of blue, was given the Indians by a representative of Queen Victoria in 1850 when treaty was signed with the tribe. It was carried last night by Chief Tommy Lick.

Saskatoon, May 29 (CP)—Canada's oldest war veteran is coming to Saskatoon on June 3 to see the King and Queen.

Thomas Swain, 104, who was born near the junction of the Red and Assiniboine Rivers in Winnipeg when King William IV was on the throne Sunday left his home at Langmeade, 50 miles northwest of North Battleford. Today, Swain rested with his son John, 70, at North Battleford and he will come on to Saskatoon later this week.

Victoria, May (29)—Huge bonfires along the Vancouver Island coast and near Port Angeles, Wash., across the Strait of Juan De Fuca will be the first welcome King George and Queen Elizabeth receive at the westernmost point in their cross-Canada tour.

Kamloops, B.C., May 29 (CP)—One of the proudest residents of Komloops today was W. Earl Peters who drove King George in an automobile from the Swiss border to Ostend shortly after the signing of the Armistice. His Majesty last night held a long conservation here with the Kamloops Oil Company (Shell) representative.

"I was quite surprised when the King greeted me by name," Peters said.

BOY IS 5,000,000TH

New York, May 29 (AP)—Twelve-year-old Douglas McMahon of Stamford, Conn., the 5,000,000th person to pass through the New York world's fair turnstiles enjoyed a one-day reign as king of the exposition Sunday. Outfitted in cowboy costumes, Douglas and his pal, Teddy Donahue, 13, led the grand parade and were given a free sponsored trip through the educational exhibits and the amusement area.

Every Known Ruse Fails to Make Children "Talk"

Despite the efforts of city and provincial police in attempts to "make them talk" and reveal their identity they were without avail at the police station this morning. The police station this morning. The officers tried every known ruse as they tried in vain to "break down" their two visitors, but they just "wouldn't talk."

Shortly after the noon hour, however, the telephone rang and an excited woman's voice was heard—"My two little girls are missing from home, can you help me locate them. I've searched everywhere."

It was with a sigh of relief that tired police informed the lady that her two little girls were safe at the police station, after having been found in the Bank of Montreal. The two little girls, aged three and five, were the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Terry, 78 Gordon St.

With their little kitten in a doll carriage the two small children had wandered away from home and in some manner reached the Bank of Montreal building and proceeded to explore the inside of the premises. Employees notified police, who for the next hour tried bribing, with candy, ice cream and pennies, the children into revealing some clue that lead to solving their identity, but the little misses were too keenly interested in their new surroundings to answer the questions of police. The police had just about exhausted every ruse when the anxious mother called. The children were returned home to anxious parents, "quite happy about the whole thing."

SALVATION ARMY TAG DAY SUCCESS

Appreciation of the generous response of the general public to the Salvation Army Tag-Day held here on Saturday was voiced today by Major Benjamin Bourne. "The results were very gratifying," he said and the amount collected by the loyal number of sellers was well in advance of that of a year ago. The money will add a substantial amount to the building fund and officers and members of the Army are truly appreciative of what the public has done for us in this manner.

WORKER ADMITS KILLING SON

Charged With Decapitating Child With Large Butcher Knife

Lancaster, S.C., May 29 (AP)—A 23-year-old cotton mill worker, Neal Brown, was in jail here today charged with decapitating his six-months-old son with a butcher knife.

A statement which Coroner F. L. Blackmon said Brown made was read at the coroner's inquest. It said:—

"I killed the baby and if I had it to do all over I'd do it again. I was drinking, but I knew what I was doing. I would have killed myself, too, if I had had a shotgun handy. I didn't want the baby to be raised in sin."

Brown's 17-year-old wife was quoted by Police Chief H. A. Montgomery as saying her husband came home drunk early yesterday. When he threatened her, the wife said, she ran to a neighbor's house for help.

AS THE POPE BECAME BISHOP OF ROME

Reviving a colorful church ceremony which was held in abeyance for the 90 years that the pope was "the prisoner of the Vatican," Pope Pius XII journeyed from the Vatican through the streets of Rome to the basilica of St. John Lateran, of which he took possession as bishop of Rome. The pope is pictured here being carried on a portable throne en route to his "parish church."

Spain Pledged to Path of Peace by General Franco

'I Want Spain To Be So Strong As to Assure Peace'

Nationalist Chief Speaks to 11,000 Women Fascists During Victory Celebration

'FORTRESS OF PEACE'

'I Do Not Want Spain to Become Fortress to Plunge Herself Into Any Adventures', He Declares

Medina Del Campo, Spain, May 30 (AP)—General Franco today pledged Spain to the path of peace and declared the country would keep hands off any adventures that might threaten to involve her in a European war.

"I want Spain to become a fortress but I do not want her to become a fortress to plunge herself into any adventures. I want her to become a fortress for peace. War goes far and involves the weaker countries; war respects the strong, and I want Spain to be strong so she will be able to assure her peace."

The women wore blue shirts and skirts and red caps in a parade that brought to a climax victory demonstrations honoring General Franco.

Why the Weather!

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Biography of a sunbeam! A sunbeam starting out from its source leads a checkered career. Only about half of its energy reaches the earth's surface. This is due to its constitution, since it carries energy of many kinds, or in other words, waves of various wavelengths. Besides the visible colors of the spectrum, it bears along waves of energy both shorter than and longer than those of visible light. The principal gases of the atmosphere, oxygen and nitrogen, permit nearly all of the sunbeams to pass through, but carbon dioxide and water vapor are good absorbers, and ozone absorbs a little. Dust particles absorb and reflect, but clouds are the best reflectors of all.

Hon. H. Nixon Asks for Remission of Sentence

Remission of the sentence of S. H. Babcock, who on the night of May 12, blocked another county goal prisoner from further assault on gaoler W. H. Roe of Napanee has been urged by the Hon. H. C. Nixon, provincial secretary, upon the Minister of Justice, the Rt. Hon. Ernest Lapointe.

Gaoler Roe was attacked by a prisoner, Earl Sutherland, with an iron bar, and was beaten over the head. Babcock, though smaller and lighter than the attacking prisoner went to the governor's rescue and succeeded in fighting the man off until help could be summoned.

KHALIL SHANIN IS ASSASSINATED

Voted in Favor of Accepting the British White Paper With Regards to Palestine

Jerusalem, May 30 (CP)—Khalil Shanin, a leader of the Moderate Arab Defence party headed by Ragheb Bey Nashashibi, was assassinated at his home in Bethlehem last night, it was learned today.

Attending a meeting of the party here yesterday, Khalil Shanin voted in favor of the resolution accepting the British white paper on Palestine as a basis for negotiations.

The Seventh Regiment of Light Artillery arrived at Haifa today aboard the transport Dorsetshire.

Authorities closed movies and cafes in an effort to check further shootings and bombings.

One Jew was killed and another wounded in a shooting in the residential district last night. Two bomb explosions in the largest Arab-owned theatre here wounded thirty persons, twelve seriously.

In the southern district, official accounts said, several persons dressed in Arab clothes and speaking Hebrew killed one Arab and four Arab women and wounded several others.

NO TARIFF PROPOSALS MADE

Ottawa, May 30 (CP)—The Canadian Government has not put forward any new proposals to the United Kingdom Government regarding the imposition of tariffs or taxes on vegetable oils, Finance Minister Dunning told the House of Commons today. He said the matter was receiving consideration.

Recently the Tariff Board recommended the imposition of Excise Taxes and duties on vegetable oils as a means of protecting the Canadian dairy and livestock industry. As the proposals involved a conflict with terms of the Canada-United Kingdom Trade Agreement the consent of the British Government was asked and refused.

2 Steers Leap From Truck Into Crowds

St. Marys, Ont., May 30 (CP)—Two steers leaped from Ed 'Dunseth's truck in downtown St. Marys yesterday and sent scores of office workers and school children scurrying for safety before their capture an hour later.

One of the animals chased Colin Campbell almost a block and he skinned both legs when he tripped while ducking behind an automobile. The steer took after Art Kentish then and Art tried to climb a tree, only to find three men ahead of him. He found another perch.

Both were captured after prancing through the back yard of the post office.

ROYAL VISIT UNITES CANADA

Mrs. Edgar D. Hardy Tells National Council of Women

Hamilton, Ont., May 30 (CP)—The royal visit has served to unite Canada, Mrs. Edgar D. Hardy of Ottawa, told the National Council of Women of Canada today in her report as corresponding secretary.

"These days of the royal visit have meant much in forgetfulness of that which is petty and of that which tends to divide and destroy," Mrs. Hardy reported. "We have been elevated to something higher and better and it has truly seemed as if every Canadian were expressing the very essence of the key-note upon which the National Council of Women is founded."

The report said that prior even to the establishment of a National Committee for Unemployed Women in 1937, the local councils throughout Canada were doing their part in the youth training program, schools for training household workers having been established in Vancouver, Winnipeg and Toronto.

Resolutions Forwarded

She detailed resolutions forwarded to the Dominion Government in the past year and dealt with youth training, enforcement of fire laws, income tax, an official flag for Canada, national parks, censorship, vocational education, consideration to find homes for European refugees and a request for re-establishment of the federal government's division to combat venereal disease.

The study program for the coming year, on national life, was approved by the sub-committee and will be presented to the general assembly. The program includes: National unity, through a study of the problems facing each province; international peace; public welfare, including education on cancer control; constant study of venereal disease; education to combat maternal and infant mortality; highway accidents; enforcement of traffic and public safety laws; housing and slum clearance, emphasizing the urgent need for low-rental houses; nutrition.

Humorous and Unusual Incidents of Royal Tour

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The King and Queen have travelled from Quebec to the Pacific coast in a blaze of pageantry punctuated here and there with the unusual, sometimes humorous, incidents these things happened....

At White River, Ont., which has no mayor the Young Men's Christian Association Superintendent was elected to that office for the 40 minutes Their Majesties spent there....near Ottawa a youngster dropped his fishing rod and scooted away when his sister told him the man strolling nearby was the King.. ..

A bleacher seat hawker in Montreal kept on "hawking" his seats unaware the Royal parade had passed five minutes before.... because the King won't have time to climb a cliff where a commemorative statue has been placed Levis City Council considered moving it to the railway station so the King can unveil it there....

Two Indian children were so flustered when they met Their Majesties at Calgary they gave the Queen a "tobacco bag" intended for the King....Vancouver housewives were asked to desist from hanging out their wash during the Royal visit, so filled clotheslines would not detract from the city's beauty....A Montreal child asked his mother after watching the Royal parade to "take me again next year"....

Quints Stole Show

The Dionne quintuplets stole the show when they hugged and kissed the King and Queen at Toronto.. Indians near Calgary named King George "Chief White Buffalo Chief" because white Buffalo do not come often....Paul Tasse, barber on the Royal train, can't get his hair cut because "every time we arrive in a city a holiday has been declared".... a mounted escort was thrown during the Royal parade at Ottawa and he dashed shamefacedly into the obscurity of the crowds....

Forty newspaper men and photographers missed their train at Banff, Alta., and chased it 56 miles by bus to Field, B. C..... Mayor Ralph Day's wife was mistaken for the Queen and the Royal standards were broken when Mrs. Day arrived for a regimental ceremony at Toronto....

The King and Queen lost their entourage after a tea at Regina and the Royal attendants caught up with the parade two miles farther on....police investigated a Hamilton man's complaint an alien flag was flying from a building and found it was the Royal Standard.

RESIDENTS SEEK ACTION AGAINST TWO MAGAZINES

Quebec Folk Bitter on Alleged "Slurs" by Time and Life

WANT BOYCOTT

Montreal, May 30—(CP)—Quebec Province residents today sought on two fronts Dominion Government action against the United States magazines Time and Life which, they said, contain accounts of the Royal visit here that were a "slur" on French-Canada.

A few hours after Wilfrid Gariepy, Liberal member for Three Rivers, told the House of Commons that Life's account of the visit "contains an absolute lie", Montreal City Council voted unanimously to ask Hon. Fernand Rinfret, Secretary of State, to seek from the magazines' publishers rectification and retraction of their reports.

(Under one picture of the King and Queen in Ottawa, Life said: "Here in good British Ottawa, Their Majesties ride in an open landau with footmen and outriders instead of the Chrysler with bullet-proof glass used in French-Canadian Quebec."

(Time, referring to Their Majesties arrival in Quebec, said: "In a big maroon, convertible sedan with top down and the bullet-proof windows up, the King and Queen were whisked up the winding road from Wolfe's Cove.)

Gariepy called the Life state-

Flt.-Lt. Larry Wray Pilot for Minister Of National Defence

Lunch in Ottawa—dinner in Regina. Scarcely believable even in this age of speed, but that precisely was the experience of Flight-Lieutenant Laurence Wray, son of Mr. Robert J. Wray of this city, when he piloted the fast new army plane that carried as a passenger the Minister of National Defence, the Hon. Ian Mackenzie, recently.

Flight.-Lieut. Wray, one of the crack pilots of the Royal Canadian Air Force, is stationed in Ottawa, and received the important assignment of flying the Minister to Regina on the occasion of the royal visit to the western city. From that point Flight Lieut. Wray and his distinguished passenger proceeded to the coast.

Previous to this important flight, Lieut. Wray was chosen as the pilot to fly the plane that carried Air-Marshal W. A. Bishop, V.C., on a tour of inspection of various military points of this district.

Curfew Law Imposed On 12-Year Old Boy

Three Other Boys to be Sentenced at Gravenhurst

Gravenhurst, Ont., May 30 (CP)—Three of four juveniles arrested last week after a miniature crime wave will appear for sentence Monday under warning to be "prepared for the worst". The fourth, a 12-year-old boy, yesterday was placed on two years' suspended sentence and ordered to obey the nine p.m. curfew law.

The four pleaded guilty to charges of theft of an automobile and carrying offensive weapons. When arrested they were in possession of two revolvers and a sawed-off rifle. Police said the youths said in a statement that they intended to holdup Provincial Constable Al Morrison and take his revolvers so that the fourth boy could be armed.

"You have just about come to the end of your rope," Magistrate Redmond Thomas told the 12-year-old. "You already are under suspended sentence for an offence under the Game and Fisheries Act. suggest you attend church and Sunday school regularly."

Beats Wife With Rivet-Studded Strap

Mt. Clemens, Mich., May 30 (CP)—Expressing regret he could not impose a stiffer sentence, Justice of the Peace Donald Parent sentenced Stanley Trillow, 31, to 90 days in jail after he admitted beating his wife with a heavy rivet-studded strap and pouring boiling water over her. Trillow said he assaulted his wife because she asked him to wring the water from a pair of his overalls she was washing.

MAY CANCEL NATURALIZATION CERTIFICATES

Hon. E. Lapointe Says Objectionable Propaganda May Lead to Step

NEW SECRETS ACT

Flamboyant Advertising in Anti - Democratic Movement Fails

Ottawa, May 30 (CP)—Naturalization certificates of persons of foreign birth who spread objectionable propaganda may be cancelled, Justice Minister Lapointe told the House of Commons today as his new official Secrets Law passed through second and third reading.

A new type of international propaganda had arisen since the war, said the Minister, and various governments had established a routine of stirring up class and racial prejudice abroad as a means of carrying out their ideas. In times of depression the seeds of such propaganda were more likely to fall on fertile soil.

Common Sense Prevails

"Despite a certain amount of flamboyant advertising anti-Democratic movements have not made any headway in Canada," he added, "and I hope that Canadian common sense will always prevent them from making headway."

He explained that the bill was a consolidation of the British official Secrets Acts of 1911 and 1920, only the first of which had been applicable to Canada previously. Experience during the war made advisable considerable amendment to the 1911 act in 1920.

The Minister said that, in accordance with the national status established by the Statute of Westminster in 1931, the bill before the House placed the complete provisions in Canadian law.

Legislation Approved

Mr. Heaps said every member doubtless approved the legislation in principle.

There were in Canada, today forces such as Nazism and Fascism which were dangerous to the state, sowing seeds of dissension and hatred. If such movements preached their doctrines openly, he did not object to them.

The question was not one of freedom of speech but of what allegiance such people owed. Some naturalized Germans in Canada still owed allegiance to the country of their origin. In case of emergency, these people would be allied with a foreign power.

Despite periodic reproofs from the Minister of Justice to German officials here, activities dangerous to the state still seemed to be carried on from German agencies in this country, Mr. Heaps said.

He read from published articles by a United States Government agent stating a leading German spy had escaped from the United States last year through Montreal where was assisted by the German counsul.

SIX MEN CHARGED WITH GAMBLING AT GREYHOUND RACES

Toronto, May 30—(CP)—Six men today faced gambling charges after a police raid last night at Ulster Stadium where Greyhound races are being held. Robert J. Johnson, a Stadium director, was released on $500 bail on a charge of keeping a gaming house. Five were charged with registering bets.

The police raid did not stop the racing, which has been under way for a week. About 500 were present.

Windows in Demand Along Route Of King and Queen in Washington

Washington, May 30 (AP)—One large hotel on Pennsylvania Avenue is asking $10 a day for rooms that face the line of the June 8 procession of King George and Queen Elizabeth to the White House—but you've got to sign up for three days to get them.

Two other large hotels have put the $10-a-day tag on rooms overlooking the avenue, but they stipulate only two days' rent.

All of them, however, say it's not their business how many friends you invite. You can even charge your friends admission, as far as the hotels are concerned.

One of the smaller hotels—which asks $1 a night for a room when the Royal couple is not riding by—is selling space at $10 a window. The management plans to put benches behind the window rather than let anyone try to jam into the opening.

A pool room wants $3 a person. How many people can get into a window? The operators say seven with comfort.

Historic Pennsylvania Avenue—especially the end near the capital—has a great many vacant, dusty lofts. These are being conditioned for the parade. Conditioned means a cursory sweeping and an opening of the windows to let in some fresh air for a day or two in advance.

24-Year Old Flier Is Long Overdue In Ocean Flight

Officials at Croydon Shake Heads and Reiterate it Was a 'Crazy Flight'

FUEL FOR 3,600 MILES

Flying Time More Than Enough to Consume Fuel Supply, Officials' Opinion

London, May 30 (AP)—The bold attempt of 24 year old Thomas H. Smith to span the North Atlantic in a flivver-type plane seldom used for flights of more than 250 miles appeared today to have ended tragically.

Three curiously dove-tailed reports that a small plane—possibly Smith's Aeronca monoplane—had been sighted over Britain kept hope alive and the boundary lights aglow at Croydon Airport until early this morning. But at 2 a.m. (10 p.m. E.D.T. Monday) officials snapped off the lights—acknowledgment the Californian scarcely was expected.

At that moment, 41 hours and 13 minutes had elapsed since Smith lifted his heavily-laden plane from the sands of Old Orchard Beach, Me., 3100 miles from Croydon, with enough fuel for about 3600 miles, or 36 to 42 hours of flight.

With the darkening of the field, only officials, ground crew, newspapermen and photographers were left of the thousands on holiday who had thronged Croydon in expectation of welcoming the flier. Officials reckoned the elapsed time against Smith's $30 worth of fuel and oil, shook their heads and reiterated it was a "crazy flight."

Fleeing Cat Surprises Man Working on Car

Two small terriers strutted in stiff-legged circles about a crouching cat in front of an East Dundas Street service station this morning.

The tom-cat glared balefully through greenish eyes at the impatient dogs, exploding from time to time in short warning spits in their general direction. The dogs echoed excited barks at each feline outburst.

Suddenly, in a flash of gray, the cat deserted its exposed position, on the walk for the beckoning security of a small building at the rear. The fact that in the path stood a shiny sedan on which two men worked changing a tire mattered little. With airy ease the bounding animal cleared the ground, leaped to the roof of the machine, then fell clawing in a confused, spitting bundle of action athwart the men, one of whom acted not quickly enough to escape the tumbling cat. Backwards he slipped, with the cat vaulting from his prone body in a flying leap toward a nearby fence. Climbing this with effortless ease, the cat disappeared with a final spit, two small terriers forced to detour around the corner in full pursuit.

The man slowly slapped the dust from his pant legs and stared in surprised fashion at the disappearing animals.

CAMERAMAN TOO CLOSE TO ROYAL CAR

Vancouver, May 30—(CP)—Inspector W. G. Grant of the city police said today officers along the route of yesterday's Royal procession confiscated the credentials of a photographer who "got too close to the Royal car."

The Inspector said no further action was taken against the cameraman, whose name was not disclosed.

YOUTH'S "SURE" REPLIES ANNOY THE JUDGE

Lowell, Mass., May 30 (AP)—Hailed into court on a bicycle stealing charge, Allen Lemire, 19, "sure" was a case. The Judge and the Prosecutor asked him a score of questions. To each one Lemire replied: "Sure."

"Can't you say anything else?" asked the Judge, irked.

"Sure," said Lemire, as the spectators tittered.

The Judge placed the youth on probation for six months and added: "See if you can't learn to say at least "yes, sir," and "no, sir."

"Sure," said Lemire.

A DIFFICULT DECISION

Omaha, Neb., May 30 (AP)—Talk of difficult decisions—Mr. and Mrs. Ed Pesen hurried to their son's home in answer to a summons for aid in taking their daughter-in-law to a maternity hospital. Just as they arrived, a phone call informed them their house, struck by lightning, was on fire. They proceeded to the hospital where Mrs. Robert Pesen gave birth to twins. Then a police escort cleared the route as they sped to their burning home.

King at Salute As Air Squadron Dives By

Vancouver, May 30 (CP)—The King stood alone at salute on the bridge of his ship yesterday as a Royal Canadian Air Force squadron dived past.

Led by Squadron Leader A. H. Hull, who trained with the King, then the Duke of York, at Cramwell, England in 1918, six Blackburn Sharp Torpedo Bombers twice dived from a cloud-hung sky as the Princess Marguerite and her convoy of four Royal Canadian Navy Destroyers bore their Majesties to Victoria.

At the second dive, the King could be seen by plane observers, standing at attention and saluting as the squadron levelled off at 500 feet to starboard of the Royal ship.

Seafaring People of British Columbia Gave Sailor King, Sailor's Welcome

By R. B. CARNEGIE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Victoria, May 30 (CP)—The seafaring people of British Columbia gave their sailor King a sailor's welcome.

The Navy destroyer Flotilla, a great fishing fleet of more than 60 vessels, yachts of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club, a score of other private yachts and Indian braves in the war canoes joined last night in saluting the King and Queen.

The destroyer Flotilla, the flagship Ottawa, Restigouche, Fraser and St. Laurent, commanded by Capt. G. C. Jones, met the steamship Princess Marguerite carrying the royal party from Vancouver to Victoria in English Bay. Moving slowly, two abreast, the destroyers waited for the liner to pass between them and as it did the crews manned ship and gave three hearty cheers for "His Majesty the King."

The naval craft then took up stations, two in front of the Marguerite and two astern and escorted the Princess to Victoria.

It was an impressive sight as the liner moved out of Vancouver harbor. After it had passed the Indian war canoes and had been picked up by the warships the 60 halibut boats and seiners ranged on either side gave the royal party a noisy welcome. Private yachts and the fleet of pleasure boats joined in the greeting.

A solitary tramp steamer, bedecked with flags, added to the welcome. Overhead, airplanes soared.

In the teeth of a brisk southwest wind, the liner and its escort stepped along at 22 knots until they reached Active Pass and then stretched out in single file through that narrow waterway. The Canadian minesweeper Nootka met the Flotilla and accompanied it a short distance.

As night fell great bonfires lit up the shore line and far over on the Washington coast a line of fires sent a welcome from United States over the waters to the British Sovereign and his Queen.

HIGH WINDS WHIP BAY INTO WHITECAPS

Strong west winds which blew with almost gale-like intensity during the morning, whipping the Bay of Quinte into whitecaps and sending waves washing over the government dock tested the mooring lines and buoys of boats anchored in the harbor. A few punts managed to slip their moorings and were washed ashore, but were soon secured again by vigilant owners. The bay was the roughest so far observed this season.

FIRST NON-RESIDENT FISHING LICENCES SOLD TO TOURISTS

First tourist fishermen have arrived in the district and several sales of non-resident fishing licences to the visitors are reported by Geo. Finch, local issuer. Yearly many of the tourists from points far south of the border take advantage of the opening of the pickerel season to visit this section which has been widely advertised as one of the best fishing locations for this variety. Many of the applicants for licences locally have expressly inquired as to conditions along the Trent River.

AMERICAN TOURISTS MAKE ENQUIRIES FOR CAMP ACCOMMODATION

The annual peaceful invasion of the district by summer visitors has commenced in earnest, it is noted by the Chamber of Commerce, which office reports a strengthening total of enquiries regarding fishing and camping accommodation in Hastings County almost daily recently. This morning along Front Street shiny automobiles bearing licence markers issued in the States of Kansas, Illinois, Maryland and Michigan were noted.

Gasoline service station operators report a decided increase in tourist business lately.

LOCAL APPLE ORCHARDS NOW IN FULL BLOOM

Apple blossoms in the immediate rural district are beautiful in profusion and color at the present time and a bountiful harvest is promised by the heavy budding, it is reported by orchard owners. Conditions have been favorable for the trees this year, and little winter damage is reported by the owners who have finished pruning and spraying. Wild cherry trees along country roads are also in heavy bloom, but their beauty has been marred by the exceptionally heavy infestation of the nests of tent caterpillars.

CLASS R.M.C. CADETS VISITS AIR FORCE BASE

Members of one class of the Royal Military College, Kingston, visited the Royal Canadian Air Force base at Trenton yesterday afternoon, where they were shown through the buildings and hangars and acquainted with rules of the base and methods of training. A large plane was available for the purpose of taking the cadets on short flights. A Royal Canadian Air Force plane visited Kingston on Monday and took Brigadier H. P. G. Crerar, commandant of the College to the Trenton base, while the cadets made the trip by automobile.

STING IN THE EYE CAUSED NO PAIN

What was at first thought to be a piece of flying metal or some other foreign substance that lodged in the right eye of an unidentified youth last night while enjoying the rides of the Sims Greater Shows here, turned out to be, on medical examination, the sting of an unknown minute insect.

The youth's attention was called by his brother to the fact that his eye was rapidly swelling. He felt no pain he said, and could not remember anything entering his eye. Mr. Fred Sims, owner of the show, to whose office the boy was taken, rushed him to a city eye-specialist who diagnosed the condition as the sting of a tiny insect. The eye was nearly closed from the rapid swelling, but apparently no pain was suffered by the boy.

FRED R. BLAKELY OF HUNGERFORD DIES SUDDENLY

Highly Respected Resident of Township Suffers Heart Attack

CHURCH WORKER

Tweed, May 30 (Special)—Death came with startling suddenness to Frederick Robert Blakely, a lifelong and highly-respected farmer of Hungerford Township, early Monday afternoon. The deceased was in his usual good health prior to his death. He had eaten his dinner as usual and laid down for a brief period of rest. A short time later he was called outside to discuss a matter of business with a neighbor and almost immediately afterward death ensued, due to a heart attack.

The late Fred Blakely who was in his sixty-second year, was a son of the late John Blakely and Mary Ann Adams. He was born in Hungerford Township on the old homestead, at present occupied by Cosmo Tufts. Thirty-eight years ago he purchased the farm on which he resided at the time of his death and where he established for himself an enviable record as a successful and progressive farmer.

The deceased was a Conservative in politics and maintained a deep interest not only in the affairs of his township but also in the wider sphere of Provincial and Dominion politics. His chief interest outside of his vocation was in education. He attended Chapman Public School, later becoming one of its trustees, a position which he held at the time of consolidation with Tweed Public School in 1921. He continued as a member of the Consolidated School Board for fifteen years, holding the position of chairman for several terms. Much of the success which the Consolidated School has enjoyed has been due in no small measure to his wise counsel.

For many years the late Fred Blakely has served on the Official Board of Bethel United Church of which he was a faithful and valued member, being an elder. He was also Recording Steward of Thomasburg circuit. Fraternally he was a member of the I.O.O.F. Thomasburg, and of Elliott's L.O.L. No. 239 having been honored by his fellow-members with the highest offices in both lodges. He was also President of Roblin Cheese Company. His place in all these organizations will be an exceedingly difficult one to fill as his wise counsel and advice was greatly valued by all who knew him.

Surviving to mourn the loss of a loving husband and father are his widow, Ella Coulter, one son, John, at home, and one daughter, Luella (Mrs. Newton Foster) of Kingston. Surviving also are two sisters, Mrs. Frank Wilson, Trenton, Mrs. Arnold Harrison, Foxboro; and two brothers, Albert, of Tweed, and William, Philadelphia, also two grandsons, Robert and Donald Foster, of Kingston.

The funeral will be conducted by his pastor, Rev. H. B. Herrington on Wednesday afternoon when services will be held at two o'clock in Thomasburg United Church. Interment will be held at Thomasburg cemetery. The funeral will be jointly held under the auspices of the I.O.O.F. and Loyal Orange Lodges.

65 Ontario Intell. Newsboys Enjoy Midways, Ride 'Whips' And Gasp at Sims' Magicians

Like Pied Piper, Member of Newspaper Staff Leads Army of Boys as Guests of Sims Greater Shows, Now Playing on Cricket Field Under Auspices of Beaches Association — Newsies Explore All Mysteries of Modern Midway Entertainment

With a member of the staff in a modern role of the "Pied Piper" sixty-five newsboys of the Ontario-Intelligencer were the guests last night of the Sims Greater Shows, Canada's Finest Midways, at the inaugural opening of the attraction which is playing here one week under the auspices of Belleville Beaches Association.

Sixty-five youngsters had the time of their young lives. They whooped and shrilled their delight at the mysteries of the tented shows, they thrilled to the delights of aerial rides and the many other features to which they were treated.

Personally conducted by Mr. George Goefe, Mr. Sim's secretary, the youngsters were taken on a tour of the extensive Cricket Grounds where the show is playing.

On the Caterpillars

On the merry-go-rounds, the caterpillars, the "Whips" they rode laughing and shouting in the sheer exuberance of boyish delight. They stood open-mouthed as they watched an attractive young lady being placed through the tortures of "ancient China", and they gasped when they were given the privilege of seeing her body lying in a casket hemmed in with wicked blades and swords.

They retreated with something akin to fright as a fourteen foot Indian python, one of the most beautiful, yet deadly snakes in captivity shot a forked tongue in their general direction. Their eyes opened with amazement when they were told that a few minutes previous it had killed and eaten two live chickens.

Magicians Applauded

They applauded magicians; gaped at a person that is half-woman and half-man; they stared at the head of a beautiful girl whose only claim to a body was a silvery spider's web. They shrieked in delight at the antics of a quartette of monkey drivers, who engaged in thrilling races in toy automobiles around a miniature track. They roared their delight at the age-old Punch and Judy show; one that talked back to them and dared them to "come on and fight."

Loud boyish applause greeted the trick-roping and shooting of the "Six Tumbleweeds", five clever cowboys and a cowgirl, dressed in the colorful costume of the old West. They joined in the rollicking songs of the westerners as guitars and mouth-organ played a tuneful accompaniment to the songs of the west. They stared in admiration at the clever performance of a roping artist, whose twisting lariats bespoke long practice and marked ability.

See Daring Aerialist

And as a climax to a splendid evening of entertainment they gazed high in the air where Victor Drumbe, a daring aerialist performed thrilling acts on a ladder and trapeze one hundred feet above the ground. Whirling and twisting through rings and bars, the clever artist thrilled his audience with a clever exhibition high on his lofty perch.

Following their tour of the many places of amusement the boys dispersed and went their way, with the majority of them finding the most convenient hog-dog stands. Others flocked to "Pennyland" where for a cent one can see many wonders of the world or indulge in mechanical games of sport. It was a grand night's fun and the newsboys showed their appreciation at its conclusion by giving Mr. Fred Sims, their host of the evening three hearty cheers.

Shows Bigger and Better

The Shows, which are bigger and better than ever this year, include a variety of acts, novelties and mysteries that will not fail to thrill an audience. The latest mechanical rides are available for the children, while the entertainment is clean and wholesome. Mr. Sims, long a favorite with Belleville audiences, extends a cordial invitation to Belleville and district to visit his Shows, which are playing here to aid in the support of a worthy project, the Belleville Beaches.

"Certainly," I said. "You've a good skin, but it's dry. You need Cleansing Cream and Juniper Skin Tonic every night, and Orange Skin Food to supple those tissues.
"In the morning, more Juniper, and then a day-long finish with Petal Cream, Dry Skin Powder, Paste Rouge and Lipstick." I met her at a party recently, looking, as she said "a changed being". "Since I've looked after my skin regularly, I've felt younger" she said.

CHAPTER XIII

"I've decided we will leave on my yacht at the end of the week for a cruise as far as Havana," Mrs. Greene told Janice one morning. "All the mad whirl of the holidays has left me worn out. Too, on the yacht, in the proper setting, Wylde and Corinne will come to the point."

Cruising! It sounded wonderful to Janice, even though it meant that Mrs. Greene was hoping the trip would advance the romance between Corinne and Wylde. She didn't want Wylde to propose to Corinne. She wanted Wylde to love her, Janice.

"And if you're a wise girl," Mrs. Greene continued, "you'll snap up Anson. He is really very much interested in you."

"But I don't love him, Mrs. Greene," Janice protested quickly. If only her employer would cease shoving Anson under her nose at every possible opportunity.

"Love!" There was scorn in Mrs. Greene's voice. "You are so naive, Janice. Love is transient. Today you marry for the advantages to be gained from a union. If more people married with mutual advantages in mind, there would be less divorce.

Janice frowned. She could not agree with Mrs. Greene.

The older woman went on. "Wylde is something like you—believes in love—but he will love Corinne as much as one can love in these hectic days, and she will be a great asset as a wife—she is wealthy, charming, and knows everyone. Financial security often depends upon the right wife."

"I'd rather be poor and in love," Janice told herself fiercely.

The yacht, its long lines the very personification of grace and beauty pointed her bow southward out of sight of land, and went serenely on her course. Everything moved quietly and smoothly, as things alway did for Mrs. Greene. The weather was ideal, growing steadily warmer as the days passed.

The night became more wonderful as the air grew warmer, the stars more multitudinous. The moon cast a bewitching shimmer over deep blue water.

This night, Janice was supposed to be in her cabin, asleep, but restlessness pervaded her, and she slipped back on deck. In the stern she curled up on a cushion and watched the wake as the yacht continued on its course through the smooth sea.

A movement in the bow attracted her attention. Wylde and Corinne. They were standing there, white-clad figures silhouetted in the moonlight against the dark sky.

Janice did not mean to spy, but when your heart is filled with love for a man, and that man is standing so close to a beautiful girl . . . well, she looked . . . And she saw Wylde's arm about Corinne's slender figure, saw his face close to hers.

Janice turned her head away and shut her eyes—burning eyes in which hot tears had to be winked back. She knew Wylde had succumbed to Corinne's charms. All her girlhood dreams would have to be packed away with her paper dolls and other relics of girlish days.

Traces of tears gone, she again looked toward the bow. Wylde was kissing Corinne. She knew she should not continue to look, but she could not tear her eyes away. He was kissing Corinne . . . and her heart was aching for his lips to be pressing upon hers! There was a lump in her throat and a stone where her heart should be.

Softly, she rose from her place, and slipped down the companionway to her cabin. She could not sleep, but she had removed herself from where her eyes could look upon Wylde and Corinne, and her heart be torn by the vision.

The next morning as Janice sat in Mrs. Greene's cabin, going over the plans for their visit to Havana, Wylde stuck his head in the doorway. His blue eyes were alight.

"I say, Mother, on deck! There's land of some sort in sight," he cried.

Then his eyes turned to Janice, and he smiled—a friendly smile, the same kind he had given her always.

"Hello, Beautiful!" he exclaimed, and his eyes laughed into hers.

Some day she was going to slap his face—she knew it. "Beautiful!" He was mean. A tease. All because she had been such a homely kid, and now was no longer homely.

Oh, no, she wasn't beautiful, but she was no longer homely. She had a nice nose and a cupid's bow of a mouth and deep blue eyes shaded by long black lashes. As a composite picture, she was not beautiful, but if each feature were taken separately, she had more than her share of good points.

And in profile. Well, she was almost beautiful then. Janice knew, for she had stood numerous times with a hand glass before a mirror and twisted and turned until she got the proper angle and—well, the result was surprisingly good. But people didn't seem to look at her profile.

"Come on, Beautiful, don't bother with Mother. There's something that looks like a palm tree and a strip of land. This is a cruise."

There was an indulgent nod from Mrs. Greene, and Janice fled with Wylde up on the deck, as eager as he to see the first bit of land they had encountered in over a week.

Under cover of the excitement, with every one gazing over the rail, Wylde's hand slipped over hers.

"Still love me, Beautiful?" he whispered.

Janice jerked away her hand. Her flashing blue eyes met his in righteous indignation. Her fingers fairly itched to connect with his cheek. What kind of girl did he think she was, asking her if she loved him after kissing Corinne as he had the night before? But of course, he did not know that she had been eavesdropping last night.

CHAPTER XIV

Palm trees waving in the gentle breeze now formed a clear outline above the strip of crystal-white sand on what, just a short time before, had been a blurred horizon.

"My isle of dreams," Wylde said in a low voice and, for a moment, his eyes met Janice's oved Corinne's head.

A strange stirring in her heart brought a blush to her cheeks. What did he mean? But his eyes were now lowered to Corinne's, and the moment had passed.

She suddenly felt a premonition that what Wylde had said would prove true. Something was going to happen. Strangely, she shuddered. Was it that this would be the isle of his dreams, and the death knell of hers?

Anson was saying something to her. She looked up at him quickly, and he repeated his suggestion that they walk forward. She nodded agreement. She could not bear being with Wylde and his clinging Corinne—trying to pretend it meant nothing to her.

"It's in the air this trip," Anson murmured.

Janice looked at him questioningly. "What?"

"Love," he explained. "Wylde and Corinne are all straightened out. I don't think it could have been managed elsewhere."

Janice said nothing. She turned away her head, eyes searching the sea for some peace and strength in the panic which had seized her.

"And the little germ has me in its grasp, too," Anson went on. "Turn around, Janice—I hate proposing to the back of a woman's head, even if it is a beautiful head."

Turn Janice did, in surprise.

"I'm in love with you sweetheart, and I'm going to dog your footsteps on this yacht until you give in and love me."

"Give in?"

"Yes. You give the impression that you would fight against loving anyone."

"Oh, but I wouldn't," she assured him quickly, and then blushed at her audacity.

"No?" His arms went about her, drawing her close. "Then we'll start in right now."

He kissed her. She did not struggle, nor did she afterwards know why not, when she thought things over. The only possible excuse she would find for her behavior was that she wanted to show Wylde that she could not be hurt by his lovemaking with Corinne.

After a second kiss, Anson held her away from him. His eyes sparkled with delight.

"You do not fight love," he admitted. "I was entirely wrong—you court it." And again he kissed her.

Her arms went up about his neck. Her lips responded to his, but the kiss seemed a poor second to the one she had given Wylde a couple of weeks before.

"You won't tell?" she begged. She could not bear to have it known—not yet. She could not bear to give Mrs. Greene the satisfaction of chuckling with glee over her cleverness as a match-maker.

"Why?"

"Just a whim of mine," she pleaded.

After dinner that evening, they all grouped themselves about the deck, watching the flickering lights on the shore several miles distant. They laughed and joked, and planned what they would do the next morning when they went sightseeing.

Suddenly, Janice missed Corinne and Anson. It seemed that Wylde had the same thought of wonder as to their whereabouts, for his eyes met her's questioningly.

They rose simultaneously and walked slowly toward the stern. The low murmur of voices warned that they were about to discover the missing couple. With one accord, they moved softly forward, then paused.

Corinne and Anson stood beside the port rail. Their figures seemed one, he held her so close in his embrace. Her head was raised, her lips pressed against his in an abandon apparent even to their watchers.

Janice drew a sharp breath, and looked quickly at Wylde. How did he feel, finding the girl who was engaged to him in the arms of another man? She was surprised at the little emotion she herself felt, upon discovering Anson disloyal to his so recently declared love. As for Wylde, in the moonlight, his eyes were expressionless.

They turned and moved away along the starboard rail, where they could not be seen.

"How's it set, being in love, Beautiful?" Wylde asked, and Janice thought there was a trace of bitterness in his voice. "I saw you and Anson this morning."

"You should know," she replied quickly, her heart pounding.

"I don't," he admitted. "That's what I'm trying to find out. And what we've just witnessed sort of complicates things. Corinne is in love with Anson, but they are first cousins and their families will not permit marriage. Now there's a poser for you."

Silently, Janice gazed upon the rippling water.

"Meet me later," Wylde said, "after the others have gone to bed, and we'll talk it over. Maybe we can console each other."

Janice shook her head. She dared not meet Wylde, sit with him in the moonlight, and talk about love. Not with Wylde! She kept her eyes on the water.

At that moment, Corinne and Anson appeared. They were not in the least flustered. Almost immediately, Corinne claimed Wylde and, with her arm linked in his, drew him away down the deck. Janice's heart fluttered as she caught Wylde's eyes upon her in a last look and heard his whispered, "Don't forget."

Anson leaned on the rail beside her. His nonchalance ruffled her. He claimed he loved her, and yet he had been kissing another girl—a girl who was engaged to another man. His arm encircled her shoulder, but she shrugged it off.

"What's the matter?" he demanded, piqued.

"I saw you kissing Corinne," she retorted quickly, hurt and angry. She would not be made a fool of by any man.

"Good grief, Janice, don't be that simple!" he protested. "That kiss didn't mean a thing. We aren't in the age of sacred kisses and chaperoned girls. Be yourself!"

"I am being myself, Anson" she replied quietly. "You don't love me—and I don't love you. The man I love will not be light with his kisses—nor tell me that mine can be given lightly to other men."

CHAPTER XV.

Mrs. Greene suggested "early to bed", as they were to go ashore early in the morning. Janice started toward the companionway, but Wylde caught her hand. The others went on, and left her beside him, his hand holding her's tightly, his strong fingers sending prickly thrills through her.

The slight movement of the boat riding at anchor, the softness of the tropical moon, the sweet perfume of the gentle breeze, and his fingers clinging tightly to her's!

She allowed him to lead her to a cushioned bench in the stern. Restraint was gone. The night, the nearness of him of which she had been afraid, held sway over her.

Free Yourself from Constipation!

The surest way to rid yourself of any ailment is to discover the cause and to overcome it. Constipation is caused, in the majority of cases, by a diet lacking "bulk."

If your usual menu is made up mostly of bread, meat, potatoes—in all probability your bowels lack the necessary "bulk." Purgatives do not give any lasting relief. Then eat Kellogg's All-Bran. It helps form a soft "mass" in the bowels that is favorable to "regularity."

A delicious, crisp and tasteful cereal, All-Bran is also one of the foods richest in Vitamin B₁, the natural intestinal tonic.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink lots of water, and regain your gayness and well-being. Made in London, Canada by Kellogg. At all grocers.

RESTLESS CHILDREN

Children are an easy prey to worms. They become restless and peevish with this condition. At the first sign of this, give your children Miller's Worm Powders. ROYAL REST DAYS AND TOUR

King George and Queen Elizabeth have seen the farthest west of their grand tour of Canada as they stop in the city of Victoria, capital of the Province of British Columbia. Their way from Quebec to the Pacific Coast province has been a round of acclaim, functions, proceedings and meetings with the representatives of the people besides many informal meetings. Their tour is a great undertaking. It is nearly half over. They crossed the Atlantic, paused for days in an iceberg area off Newfoundland, then made their way up the majestic St. Lawrence River, landed at Wolfe's Cove, Quebec, on Wednesday, May 18th., were feted in Quebec, where the ceremonies in connection with their arrival in Canada and also in one of the oldest parts of the continent, were held; then they went to Montreal and the capital city, Ottawa, then to Kingston, made an appearance at Belleville station, visited Toronto, thence travelled up to Port Arthur and Fort William and Winnipeg, and so on to the coast. Everywhere has gone the heart of Canada with the Sovereigns. Millions of Canadians have seen and welcomed them and today they are resting before their momentous return trip across Canada, taking a more northerly route. At Jasper they will arrive on Wednesday and take a brief rest there until the next day and then through to Niagara Falls to begin their very important visit to Washington and New York and at its conclusion to return back to Canada passing through Quebec, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia and leaving Halifax to call at Newfoundland.

One does not need to travel much to know what must be the strain of so long a tour with travel, so many public appearances in royal processions and in social and legislative functions. But the Sovereigns show none of that weariness. They appreciate every courtesy and the homage shown them and have gone out of their way to demonstrate their appreciation, whether it be to individual or to a municipality, a province or the Dominion. There is the story of the King taking a picture of the Queen and the boy who was trying to photograph the King and Queen. The story of their prolonging of the visit to the Christie Street Hospital where they visited the veterans revealed the depth of the feelings of the King and Queen.

The splendor of the Rockies and the beauty of Victoria are rest scenes against which Their Majesties can understand something of the nature of the Canadian people and their problems.

The last days of the tour through Western Ontario, through the United States and through Eastern Canada will be an exacting program. Their United States visit will be of great moment as it is the first time a reigning British King and Queen will have visited the United States. Their last days in Canada will be spent in the old provinces of Quebec and the Maritimes.

After their long tour they will have the benefit of rest on their ocean voyage back to England.

LASTING IMPRESSIONS

Canadians are learning lessons while they are entertaining their King and Queen, for Their Majesties' graciousness, courtesy, kindliness and true simplicity of manners will never be forgotten. Many stories have been told, one yesterday of the little mountain girl who cast an armful of wild mountain orchids into the royal car which the Queen graciously gathered up. Stories are related revealing the nobility of the characters of the rulers and the welcome which comes from the heart of Canadians individually and as a people.

Such courtesy and kindliness, the virtue of being helpful and considerate, the lack of pomposity nad self-importance, as the Ottawa Journal points out, endear them to the people.

Incidents of the tour will not be forgotten by the King, the Queen, and the people. There also remain the indefinable impressions which everyone has who has had a glimpse of the Sovereigns, or who has been one of those fortunate persons whom Their Majesties have met. These may not find their way into print and record, but they will go on record in the mind and spirit of the people and such impressions will abide with Their Majesties as they will with the people.

ONE OF THE BRIGHTEST HUMAN INTEREST STORIES to come over the wires in recent weeks was sent in by the United Press correspondent at San Francisco and reads as follows:

San Francisco, May 23 (UP).—Miss Babe Scott stepped up to the city editor and handed him a poem which she said her brother had written.

She thought it was good, and wanted to know if the paper would print it. Her brother's name is Witham Scott, he is 25, a private in the Army Air Corps and stationed at Riverside, Cal.

The city editor looked at the poem:

When the last, long flight is over and the happy landing's past,
And my altimeter tells me the crackup's come at last—
I'll point her nose to the ceiling and I'll give my crate the gun.
I'll open her up and let her zoom to the airport of the sun.
Then I'll meet my fellow pilots, now no longer flying low,
As I stow my crate in the hanger, on the field where fliers go.
Then we'll fly forever with the Almighty
 Flying Boss
And ride all heaven's airways, from Orion to the Cross.

The city editor looked up at Miss Scott. She was smiling and said:

"It's a good thing I don't believe in premonitions."

"It's a good poem; we'll print it," the city editor declared:

Miss Scott left. The editor didn't tell her that an hour before Witham Scott was killed in the crash of an army plane on Mount Hamilton.

WHAT OF THE FORGOTTEN MEN AND WOMEN OF THE PILOT TRAIN on the Royal Tour who are the eyes and ears and voice of the expedition? Mute but mighty in their words and pictures of a mighty event.

Complaints are few and trivial from these picked representatives of the Canadian, United States, and European Press, including, first, a shortage of bathing facilities, one shower for seven women, another for 107 men; two, absence of any laundry facilities; three, the difficulty of getting enough to eat in one dining car, and four, the fact that when the King arrives in a town that day automatically becomes a legal holiday, thereby occasioning the closing of all liquor stores—as whimsically reported by one correspondent. It seems that the newspaper party is just one happy family now that they have gotten rid of one disturber who left the train at Montreal after sending some sarcastic stories to German newspapers. This correspondent evidentally found that he was not a welcome member of the party after mopping up plenty of free drinks during the four day wait for the Royal ship at Quebec. Great credit is given to genial Walter S. Thompson, Chief Publicity Agent of the Canadian National Railway System and Pressherd of the Royal Tour. Some went to the press itself which was notably well-behaved. Most of it went to the King and Queen who corrected the mistakes of some of their representatives by showing a complete absence of side. One of the complaints of the pressman was the difficulty experienced in getting news from the Royal Train in transit, particularly when the King suffered an injured finger which was caught in a door, this apparently not being considered headline news by the attaches in the Royal Train. At the Press reception the New York New's Canadian-born George Dixon provided his self-consciously democratic paper with its headline-of-the-week.

REPORTER GABS WITH KING.

Reporter Dixon's play by play account of his gabfest:

King: "I suppose you have been working pretty hard."

Me: "So have you. But you're certainly in there punching. You sure can take it."

King: "Oh yes, indeed. How do you manage to get around to all events? It must be very exhausting."

Me: "No, everything has been made very pleasant. Besides, we carry enough credentials to choke a horse."

At this point (although he neglected to report it) correspondent Dixon began to blush and stammer, finally, he managed to blurt out: "Oh, I guess I'm the clown of this trip," and retired, while the King looked astonished and the Queen grinned.

"The Old Sergeant-Major" informs The Intelligencer that Pinnacle Street obtained its name from the fact that the street was originally blocked by a sand hill of about 40 feet in height, reaching across to where the Lock Factory now is. It was known as the Pinnacle and from this the street got its name. He also states that John Street, George Street, William Street and Ann Street were named after children of the late John Taylor, the original settler upon the land. He states that he has been a resident of Belleville since the year 1832 and knows whereof he speaks.

The heavy westerly wind which prevailed this morning considerably affected navigation on the bay. The Varuna came down from Trenton and on attempting to leave her dock for Picton, was driven into the ferry slip and was unable to get out. She had to abandon her trip to Picton. The ferry steamer succeeded in reaching this side of the bay from the Prince Edward shore, after considerable difficulty, being carried considerably out of her course. She landed, but was unable to make a return trip. The Quinte came up the bay from Deseronto half an hour late but found it impossible to land at the dock here and was tied up at the dock on the other side of the bay.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Sterling had excellent success in trout fishing yesterday. One of the catch weighed a pound and a half.

Farms Not Being Worked

Editor, Ontario Intelligencer:

Could I have a small space in your valuable paper as this has lain heavily on my mind for awhile:

I once was a poor farmer but by patient toil am now living in this fair city with a little garden to supply me with fresh vegetables and provide work for my hands to do. I have a cosy home and ample income all earned on a farm which was then little more than brush and rocks. I am telling you this because lately I drove out through the country where I used to live the first time in a number of years. The road north of Stirling has been widened and surfaced and a comfort to motorists, but what seemed so pitiful to me as I went on was the number of farms that were not being worked, buildings falling down and acres upon acres of land whose sod had not been worked in years. About forty miles north of here I stopped for water at one farm more prosperous than the rest and inquired why these farms were so neglected and the farmer said most of this land had been the homes of prosperous farmers who had raised large families, but the younger people would not work the land which in many cases was heavily mortgaged, but were employed by factories and business firms in nearby places and only used these once beautiful farms as places to dwell.

I asked why these farmers were employed by firms when they had such an excellent means of livelihood at hand while the towns and villages were full of unemployed. Are we going to turn our farms over to refugees from foreign countries to settle on? What is our Government doing to allow this land to become waste? What are the manufacturers doing in employing farmers? What are we, the sons of U. E. Loyalists doing to hold our birthright? If war comes, will we have a country to fight for, or will Canada no longer belong to Canadians?

A Lover of the Land.

Members of Royal Suite Join Correspondents at Dinner

By R. K. CARNEGIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Banff, Alta., May 29 (CP) —The fifty newspaper correspondents, press photographers, radio announcers and other passengers on the pilot train covering the royal tour had an opportunity of meeting members of their Majesties' party at a dinner Saturday night given by the Dominion Government.

Their Majesties dined alone but in the main dining room of the hotel members of the royal suite spent a social evening with the newsmen and women.

Walter S. Thompson, in charge of press arrangements, presided and Prime Minister Mackenzie King proposed the toasts to the King and Queen. There were no speeches, during the evening the Prime Minister had chats with many United States and British news writers. He had a busy time after the dinner signing menu cards for the guests.

For the first time the Prime Minister is carrying a cigarette case. He does not smoke but he procured a silver case and passed it around to those near him. He had matches too. Laughingly he told how he came to be so well equipped.

King Uses Lighter

The King uses a cigarette lighter and like many another cigarette lighter it frequently doesn't work. On such occasions the King would turn to his Prime Minister for a match which the Prime Minister would be unable to provide.

So Mr. Mackenzie King decided to keep a supply in his pocket for such occasions and concluded he might just as well carry cigarettes also.

This mountain resort seems to instil in visitors a desire to dress in clothes of striking color combinations. During the Prime Minister's walks among the mountains he wore a suit of shepherd's plaid, about the loudest suit his friends recall him in.

After the dinner, when the press men and women were leaving the room they met the King and Queen walking along the corridor and enjoyed an informal talk with them. The King was particularly happy as he laughingly joined in exchanges with the reporters in an off-the-record conversation.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Sighing is Not One of the Usual Signs of Heart Disease

While shortness of breath is one of the early signs of a failing heart, it should not be forgotten that eating too much acid food— meat, eggs, fish, cereals—can lower the alkaline condition of the blood and cause breathlessness. Also, a nose which is partially blocked may cause breathlessness.

For a long time it was thought that sighing was a sign of heart failure as it is an extra effort to get rid of the impure air from the lungs. However, Dr. G. K. Mattrim, Rochester, Minn., in Journal of Allerby, states that sighing is a normal reaction to fatigue and mild emotional states, yet it is possible for sighing to assume considerable importance. Sighing is not due to any organic disorder but is entirely due to a nervous or emotional state. It has sometimes been mistaken for asthma and some of these patients have undergone the usual tests for sensitiveness to various substances as usually done in hay fever and asthma.

As a matter of fact, research workers have found that sighing is a very rare symptom in heart disease.

"Shortness of breath, or the inability to take a deep breath is the chief symptom. A feeling of constriction, tightness, weight or pain is usually present in the chest and palpitation of the heart is often present. Fatigue and nervousness are common and many of the patients have recently undergone some nervous shock or serious worry and cares."

"Anxiety regarding their state of health is almost always present. Sighing, shortness of breath, occurs more often among women than among men and it usually occurs in the more active years of life."

As there is no real or organic trouble, the treatment consists in explaining to the patient that it is his nervousness or emotional state produces the attacks of breathlessness. It should be explained that this sighing or shortness of breath is the normal effect of fatigue and emotional stress.

While drugs are not really needed, a quieting drug may sometimes be used to control the nervous irritability.

If, then, you think you have a failing heart because you sigh so much it would be good sense to have your physician examine you. If no heart disease is present, remember that remaining as calm as possible during the ordinary and extraordinary affairs of life will prevent sighing and shortness of breath.

A DAY in which swift and unexpected activities may be precipitated, with unpredictable denouements, is read from the predominant sidereal directions. Yet, with shrewdness, tact and also resorting to subtlety or connivance with those in power or in political or corporation standing, such disturbances may be turned to good account. But be wary of strangers or untried situations.

Those whose birthday it is may be given the opportunity to use their rather subtle or institutional qualities during the year, which seems beset with sudden visitations or unforeseen disturbances. Be cautious with strangers and with tricky propositions involving change. Large corporations, political or fraternal groups bring benefits if tactfully and shrewdly approached.

A child born on this day may be shrewd and subtle and have quick intuitions or deep insight into peculiar predicaments. It should benefit most from secret alliances, with corporations, political or diplomatic bodies. It may be active in fraternal life.

Diver Thompson and his mates cleared radio antennae and guard rails from the craft and attached the huge chains that will anchor the pontoons to the hull. When these pontoons are in place some of the water will be blown by air from the Squalus to give buoyancy that will aid the lift of the pontoons.

Please the Bride
BY CHOOSING GIFTS with the NATIONAL MARKS

THE appearance, alone, of any article manufactured from gold or silver cannot be accepted as an infallible guide to its intrinsic value. But the name of the manufacturer, or his trade mark, linked with the marks indicating Canadian Government standards of quality . . . these marks together, are entirely reliable. The bride will be delighted if her ring or silverware bears the National Marks.

It was to remove all uncertainty in the purchaser's mind and to prevent fraudulent and unfair competition that the Canadian Government passed the Precious Metals Marking Act. This Act is administered by the Department of Trade and Commerce. All articles of gold, silver or platinum, or articles plated with these precious metals, that are offered for sale in the Dominion are under the jurisdiction of the Department of Trade and Commerce whether manufactured in Canada or imported from other countries. Where the article is wholly of Canadian manufacture a National Mark may be used which consists of a large letter "C" within which is the King's Crown if the article is of gold; or the Lion's Head if the article is of sterling silver.

Other services the Department is rendering the public through the Precious Metals Marking Act include the inspection of articles offered for sale or imported into Canada and the checking of advertisements to prevent misleading or incorrect statements.

When purchasing articles manufactured from gold and silver, be sure to observe the National Marks and the Trade Marks and note their significance to you.

GUIDANCE AND PROTECTION FOR THOSE BUYING ARTICLES OF GOLD & SILVER

Distinguishing Marks of Gold and Silver Articles

The letter "C" surrounding the King's Crown is the National Mark on articles of gold which are wholly of Canadian manufacture. It is used only in conjunction with a karat mark indicating the fineness of the gold.

Pure gold is 24 Karat. So the number of karats indicates the fineness of the gold. Thus an article of 18 Karat gold contains 18 parts of pure gold and 6 parts of suitable alloy. Gold articles must not be less than 9 karat.

A Lion's Head encircled with the letter "C" is the National Mark for articles of silver which are entirely Canadian made. This mark applies only to articles which also bear the "Sterling" mark.

The word "Sterling" on silver articles indicates that they contain pure silver in the proportion of 925 parts in every 1,000 parts.

Silver Plated hollow-ware must be stamped with the name of the base metal on which the plating has been deposited. The letters "e.p.n.s." indicate that the article is silver plated on a base containing at least 10% pure nickel.

Silver-Plated hollow-ware is the trade term for tea sets, trays, vases and dishes of various kinds made of metal and plated with silver. The term Silver-Plated flat-ware includes knives, forks and spoons made of metal, and silver-plated. The Precious Metals Marking Act requires that all silver-plated flatware must be stamped with the predominant base metal used, if it is less than 10 per cent nickel.

Standard quality Silver-Plate on flat ware is marked "A1" while the mark "Triple Plate" indicates a silver-plating three times heavier than standard plate.

The word "Gold Filled" indicates that the gold content of the article is not less than one-twentieth of 10 karat gold by weight and that the gold is soldered to the base metal.

Council Ratifies Decision To Clean-Up Housing Problem

Tenants in City-Owned Houses Must Pay Rent Owing or be Evicted

OTHER BUSINESS

Ten families, the heads of four being on relief, will be evicted from city-owned homes unless they pay their back rent and seven houses will be demolished as soon as the tenants are removed, due to these houses not being fit for human habitation according to a recommendation passed on Thursday night at the committee meeting of the council and ratified by the Council in session on Monday evening. Alderman Jack Marshall, chairman of the Special Property committee gave a statement to the council respecting these homes and from the tenor of his address, the members were quite unanimous in the action of the Property Committee in cleaning up a bad state of affairs.

Alderman Marshall told the council that he was not in favor with the statement the Mayor gave to the press after the committee meeting of Thursday night. "A wrong impression of the situation was allowed to go out," said Ald. Marshall. "The committee looked over these properties owned by the city and it was found, that the tenants were somewhat back in their rents and in most cases were not keeping the property in even a fair state of repair. There are only three or four of the tenants on relief and the city cannot collect any rent from the government, while they are living in city-owned houses. It is the intention of the committee to try and get a better class of tenant. As for the houses that are to be demolished they would be better down than standing. Some are not fit for habitation and the recommendations that were voted on will help to clean up a bad situation."

Against Exceptions

Mayor Bone—"I was just trying to do something to bring the attention of the government to this situation. I have a perfect right to make a statement on any action of the Council the same as any aldermen. There is one man, who is in the store near the weigh scales, who asked me if the order could not be held up for a little while as he felt he could pay up his back rent."

Ald. Allin—"I am against making an exception."

Ald. Lewis—"I don't think the Mayor was asking for that, he is simply drawing something to our attention, that he was asked to do. We are all aware that the government will not pay rent of reliefees living in city-owned houses.

Ald. Butler—"The action of the council in this matter will not affect the Welfare Department. The reliefees that are evicted will have to be put in houses and the government will pay the shelter costs."

Ald. Rollins—"I am a member of this committee and a thorough investigation was made before any action was taken. The houses that are slated for demolition are not fit to live in and when the whole thing is cleaned up everybody will be the gainer."

Mayor Bone—"I am violently opposed to the conditions that are forced on us by the governments of Canada and I intend to fight the thing through even if it is a lone voice in the wilderness."

Not Test Case

Ald. Marshall—"We are not trying to make a test case of this matter. The committee decided to evict these tenants so repairs can be made to the houses and tenants secured that will pay their rent." This ended the discussion and the recommendations were passed with all members supporting them.

Alderman Jeffery wanted to know why two persons were required to pay poll tax, when they were assessed as part owners of property. Ald. Haig explained under the new regulations of the Municipal Act, the owner would be the only one assessed and allowed to vote at municipal elections. "If these men are the support of the home and are assessed for the property they will not have to pay the poll tax", said Ald. Haig. Mayor Bone called the poll tax a "nuisance tax" and stated he believed there were many girls who could pay $25 as a tax better than some single men could pay $5 tax.

Offer Received

P. C. McGuire made an offer of $300 for the Curling rink property on William Street, but his offer was referred back to the committee for further consideration. Ald. Marshall as chairman of the committee recommended the sale to Mr. McGuire stating it would cost about $100 to clean the property before a house could be erected and he thought $300 was a fair offer. To a question from Ald. Allin if two houses could not be built on the property, Ald. Marshall explained it was hard to find two owners who would agree on a drive and other matters. The lot is only 92 feet wide and it would be hard to put two houses on the lot unless the two people involved in ownership could agree on all essentials," said Ald. Marshall. Ald. Haig stated he would support the recommendation but was opposed to these recommendations being brought to council on Monday night before being considered in committee.

Ald. Lewis.—"We should not mess around too long with this offer. We have offered the property for $400 and Ald. Marshall tells us that $100 will be required to clean up the property."

Ald. Thompson—"I think it should be referred back and I so move."

Ald. Logan—"We would not do business in this haste with regards to our own business and I will second the motion".

Lot is Sold

Walter Cordes was sold a lot on Ridley Avenue for $30 with the proviso that he pay the 1939 taxes and erect within one year a house valued at $2,500. A committee of Aldermen Kennedy, Thompson, and Rollins recommended that Mr. Sonnenberg be given permission to erect a gas station on the southeast corner of Pinnacle and Station streets and that he provide toilet accommodation. The police car will carry the wording "Belleville Police Department" on both doors according to a recommendation passed by the council. Reg. Moncrieff and Lieut. Fred Jobson will be sent letters of congratulation and appreciation for the fine work in taking the children to Kingston for the royal visit and providing music at the Station on the occasion of the visit to this city.

Mayor Bone, Alderman McLean Haig, H. B. Stock and A. B. Collins will go to the Toronto on Wednesday to appear before the Ontario Municipal Board with respect to Sinking Fund levies. R. W. Adams and W. H. Panter, who have served on the Court of Revision for many years have resigned but the council moved that they be paid their honorarium for this year. A new board of revision has been appointed under the new assessment now being introduced in this city. The Beaches Association was promised all the help they need but it was pointed out that the paper from the garbage would have to be controlled and not allowed to fly all over the neighborhood. The City Hall clock will be repaired and put in good working order. A number of residents on Dufferin Avenue protested the erection of a house on that street, the delegation believing the house would not conform to the houses now on that street but after an explanation by the owner, the delegation were satisfied the house would not be a detriment to the street.

By-Laws Passed

Three by-laws, one to regulate the sale of coal and coke in the city were passed. The other two were for the conveyance of deeds of property to those who had purchased lots from the city. Speeding in the city was discussed under general business and the council were agreed that something should be done to curb this practice. Ald. Jennings stated speed was now excessive in practically every part of the city and that it must be controlled, especially throughout Bridge Street and the length of Victoria Avenue. "Forty miles an hour and upward is a conservative estimate", said Ald. Jenning, "with no regard for the many intersecting streets. Such a thing as courtesy is unheard of. Let's end this absolute disregard for life and the rights of others. Soon the selfish and careless driver will be a law unto himself." Ald. Jennings also stated there is little regard for "stop streets". The Alderman believed that the police should set times on the Market Square for inspection and instruction of drivers, as well as would-be drivers, in correct methods of handling their cars and putting a seal on cars so inspected and issue a permit to the driver. There being no further business the council adjourned.

ONE MAN SHOT,

The violence began when a dozen or more automobiles loaded with men drove up to one of the picketed Briggs plants and discharged their passengers. Fighting between this group and the pickets began. Police said baseball bats, blackjacks and fists were used.

Forced To Stop

Ferris and four fellow unionists finally gave chase to a car filled with adversaries, pursued it some distance and forced it to stop. In the ensuing struggle Ferris was shot. He was taken to receiving hospital where it was found his thigh was punctured and the lower part of his right leg fractured. His condition was serious.

William Grain, 49, another member of the C.I.O.-U.A.W., required hospital treatment. He said he was attacked by nine men.

Windows of several automobiles belonging to pickets were smashed.

Police expressed the opinion the fighting was a result of factional bitterness between the C.I.O. and Martin U.A.W. organizations, and would have no effect on the peace negotiations between the strikers and the Company.

No Justification

Martin contended yesterday in a speech that, "There is no justification for the present tragic, ill-timed and costly strike," which he described as "one of the greatest blunders in the history of the Labor movement."

More than 70,000 auto workers are idle as a result of the shortage of bodies and other materials ordinarily supplied by the Briggs plants.

James Dewey, Federal Labor Conciliator, said he would rule tomorrow on 28 claimed grievances cited by the C.I.O. union in connection with working conditions in Briggs plants. Dewey has been accepted by both sides as final arbitrator. Later the question of a new contract between the Company and the union will be taken up.

slurs on the French-Canadians," said Alderman Dave Rochon who brought up the question at yesterday's council meeting here.

Some aldermen wished to ask for a ban on the magazines but council decided that was only done in Fascist countries.

Camillien Houde, Montreal's colment "something that should not be allowed in any magazine." He urged steps "to stop this magazine at the borders."

Consider Matter

Revenue Minister Ilsley replied the matter would be considered. Justice Minister Ernest Lapointe, a Quebec member, said he had no doubt that the article was "crazy" but he did not think it should be given any wider publicity.

"It is a disgrace that magazines like that should be allowed to cast orful Mayor, described by Life as a "a preposterous local jingo," said remarks about him in the magazines "run like water off a duck's back." It was a different story when the honor of the French-Canadian race is concerned.

Respect Authority

"If there is any race that respects authority, it is the French-Canadian race," he declared while Aldermen and persons in the gallery applauded.

In the middle of the discussion, the Mayor flung a copy of Life from him and it was allowed to remain on the floor.

Premier Maurice Duplessis of Quebec joined in the attack on the magazines by announcing he had sent Life a protest against the "ignoble" article.

Police Chief A. S. Bigaquette of Quebec called for a "boycott" of Life. He said police surveillance was given Their Majesties in Quebec not because authorities feared untoward incidents but to prevent great throngs pressing into the centre of streets through which the Royal procession passed.

Bigaquette insisted there was no such thing as bullet-proof glass.

JAN PADEREWSKI RETURNING HOME

Famous Pianist Quite Ill and Has Probably Made His Last Tour

New York, May 30 (AP)—A lame old man, his shoulders weary with the weight of 78 years, sails for his home-in-exile aboard the French liner Normandie tonight, ill and doubtless disappointed.

And so ends probably the last North American concert tour by the Polish wizard of the piano, Ignace Jan Paderewski, a living immortal among musicians.

His tour manager, Lawrence Fitzgerald, said today: "I don't think it will be physically possible for him to tour again."

Having given one fortune of $2,700,000 to the re-creation of Poland as an independent nation and hundreds of thousands more to other philanthropies, he had returned to the land of his first great financial success to refill his purse.

Stubbornly staving off illness, he played 20 of his 25 scheduled concerts—a few when compared to the 117 he gave on his first North American tour nearly 50 years ago. In those days, when he was all but mobbed by an admiring public, he set box office records. He received $2,500 for each recital in 1892 and earned $118,000, a record for instrumentalists up to that time.

Proceeds of his latest tour were being competed yesterday for income tax purposes and, while the sum was considerable, it probably won't meet Padereswki's normally high expenses for long, a member of his staff indicated. He lives now in a Swiss villa, a voluntary exile from Poland.

He Does Not Have To Print His Long Name

Poser Given Income Tax Authorities

Johannesburg, May 30 (CP) — Jacob Schoeman, South African farmer, has given the income tax authorities a real poser. They insisted he should print his full name on the regulation return as required by law, but relented after Schoeman explained he had been given the following Christian name when baptized 52 years ago:

"Fear not you little worm Jacob, your people Israel will help you. Call upon the Lord and your salvation is the Holy Israel."

After Jake was baptized the church synod held a special session to discuss the question of names. A resolution was finally passed urging parents not to give their children "unwieldy" names.

A total of 4800 speckled trout will be placed in the Cavan stream, 10,000 'lunge in Lake Katchewanooka, 1,500,000 pickerel fry in the Otonabee River, and 200,000 pickerel fry in Little Lake.

CEMENTMEN TAKE FULL ADVANTAGE OF RELIEF HURLER

Point Anne Comes Home in Front 9-7 After Being Tied in Ninth

CHANGED PITCHERS

Art Genereaux, Outfielder for Winners, Hits Two Home Runs

Taking full advantage of a relief hurler, who was rushed to the hilltop in the ninth inning with the score tied at six-all, the Point Anne "Cementmen" proved artful opportunists and bided their time to capitalize on the wildness of "Red" Townsend's junior relief hurler, Steve Hook, and score three runs as the "Cementmen" defeated the local Citizen juniors 9 to 7 at Coleman Flats last evening in a scheduled City League softball fixture.

"Zing" Luffman and Mallory, the opposing hurlers, hooked up in a tidy pitching battle that lasted for eight innings and leaving the teams tied at six-all. Just when the fans were ready to settle back and perhaps enjoy an overtime tussle, Skipper Townsend rushed his new-found pitcher, Steve Hook, to the hilltop to replace the tiring Mallory. Hook was cold and wild with the result that two walks, a hit and two fielders' choices saw three Point Anne runs chased across the fourth base and victory assured. The juniors rallied in their half of the ninth to score once, but Luffman tightened and with the tying runs on base retired the side in victory.

Genereaux Hit Two Homers

Art Genereaux, slugging outfielder of the Cementmen, swung a potent bat last night when he hit two home runs and scored three tallies in all. Gaulin also had two safeties as Point Anne only collected eight hits for their nine runs scored, while the juniors registered but seven safeties for seven runs gained. Mansfield with a home run and Ethier with a triple, led the juniors. These extra base hits came in the third inning, when the juniors pounded Luffman for five runs, but the Gaulin-led visitors came back with four to tie the score in the fifth. The teams were still tied when the fateful ninth rolled around. This evening Dracups and the Shell "Oilers" clash at the Flats.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, May 30 (AP)—This is Decoration Day in the United States so let's let the other guys do the work.....New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers are playing a doubleheader and all good Dodger fans should be at the Polo Grounds with cow bells and firecrackers....So here's a six-star special from the other fellows:

St. Louis Blues.

J. Ed. Wray, St. Louis Post-Dispatch: Our Cardinals are playing as though they mean to go places but you'd never know it from the attendance....Only 100 or so saw the Redbirds put up a championship exhibition in outgaming the Phillies.

Information Dept.

Victor O. Jones, Boston Evening Globe: If you were staying awake nights wondering what the initials of A. G. Spalding stand for, it's Albertt Goodwill, and that middle name is pretty apt for the great popularizer of baseball.

Too much competition.

Jack Miley, New York Post: Greatest obstacle in Lou Nova's path to victory over Max Baer is that fellows like Gene Tunney and Tony Galento think he will win... Poor Nova can't carry their weight and his own, too.

Simple, ain't it?

H. G. Salsinger, Detroit News: We have a suggestion for breaking the Yankees' hold on first place... Let the owners of the other seven clubs get together and decide what club they want to beat the Yankees, then arrange by trades to create an all-star team capable of beating them.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

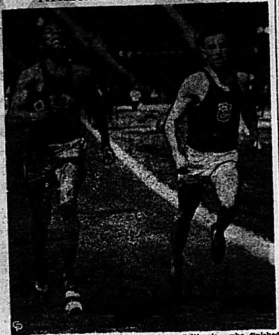
Harry Danning, Giants: Doubled in the sixth, sending two runs across as the Giants beat the Phillies.

Forrest Pressnell, Dodgers: Hurled a two-hit ball game in setting the Bees down 1-0.

Frank Higgins, Tigers: He doubled with two out in the ninth to drive home the winning run on Detroit's 10-9 conquest of the Browns.

Don Gutteridge, Stu Martin and Johnny Mize, Cards: Presented the first triple play of the year but the Pirates won 7-0.

PITTSBURGH'S WOODRUFF STARS



Breasting the tape at the big I.C. 4-A track meet, an annual feature of Uncle Sam's extensive intercollegiate athletic program, is John Woodruff, seen as he won the 440-yard event in 47 seconds flat, a new college mark. Erwin Miller, of Southern California, who finished third, is the other runner shown. By winning, Woodruff who runs for the University of Pittsburgh, set an unprecedented mark for the 63-year-old meet, as it marked the third consecutive year he had won both the 440 and the 880.

Cincinnati Reds Rolling Along Winning With Ease in National And Now Have 3 Game Lead

If They Win Pennant They Have to Play Yanks for World's Title

PIRATES WIN

Cards Defeated 7-0 in Spite of Superbly Executed Triple Play

(By Bill White Associated Press Sports Writer).

Cincinnati Reds are rolling along as blithely as you please, winning with ease in the National Baseball League but they have a right to be worried even if they're not. Should they be fool-hardy enough to win their league championship, the Reds are certain to meet New York Yankees in the world series.

For years that has been the fate of the other National League winners and as the Yankees are admittedly better than ever there seems little reason to believe the Reds will be excused this October.

But the thought of humiliation in the fall doesn't chasten the Reds' spirits in the spring, and yesterday with Lee Grissom giving only five hits to Chicago Cubs, the Reds carved out their 14th victory in their last 15 starts.

3 Game Margin

That 6-3 triumph stretched the Reds' league lead to three full games over St. Louis Cardinals, who took one on the chin, 7-0 from the Pirates in spite of that superbly-executed triple play, the first of the season.

Possibly the best played game of the day was the 1-0 triumph of the Dodgers over the Bees. Tot Pressnell allowed the Bostonians only two hits in coming through with his second victory of the campaign. The daffiness boys didn't look too daffy as they punched across that all-important run in approved big league fashion when Freddy Sington drove Goodie Rosen of Toronto home with a single.

New York Giants encouraging their remaining rooters by touching off 11 hits for a 7-5 win over the Phillies.

American League

In the American League it was the same old story—New York Yankees. The Bronx bombers teed off on the offerings of Jim Bagby, Joe Heving and Jake Wade and made off with a simple 6-1 victory over Boston Red Sox for their 28th win of the season.

Pinkie Higgins kept in good standing with the home folks at Detroit by doubling in the ninth to drive home the winning run in the Tiger's 10-9 conquest of St. Louis Browns and Wayne Ambler was the same sort of a hero in the Athletics' 5-4 victory over Washington. His double scored Joe Gatenbein. Cleveland Indians-Chicago White Sox were idle.

SYRACUSE BUYS FIRST BASEMAN

This Deal Represents First Item of Business by New Owners

Syracuse, N.Y., May 30 (AP)—Arnold Greene, a first baseman, is scheduled to make his debut with Syracuse Chiefs of the International Baseball League in a holiday doubleheader against Baltimore Orioles here tonight.

The new first sacker will replace Buck Johdan, who objected to playing night baseball, and represents the first item of business of Alex Mengarelli and Clarence Schindler, both of Syracuse, new owners of the Chiefs.

Sale of the club franchise was announced by Jack Corbett, President of Syracuse Chiefs, last night. The reported price was $200,000, one quarter down.

Greene was purchased from the Durham Club of the Piedmont League, although he has been playing for the past few weeks with Albany Senators of the Eastern League. Both teams are part of Cincinnati Reds' chain.

ROCHESTER ON TOP

Jersy City Technically in Front by 6-3 Win Over Newark

(By The Associated Press)

If anything can be uncertain that the race for first place in the International League—what with Jersey City Giants topping Rochester Red Wings by a half game when you count it up one way but trailing by three percentage points when the averages are figured out—it's probably the situation up at Syracuse right now.

The ups and downs of the Chiefs have been rather notable. They started for the cellar last season, switched managers and wound up in the first division. This spring they've been everywhere from third to seventh in the standing and haven't remained long in any one spot.

The latest development is the sale of the club by Jack Corbett, who put Syracuse back into the league in a big way five years ago. Corbett bought up the old Jersey City franchise when the "Skeeters" didn't have any place to play, moved the club to the new Syracuse stadium and put on a series of shows that pulled in plenty of customers even if the Chiefs didn't win any pennants.

Yesterday Corbett sold out to a pair of Syracuse business men, Alex Mangarelli and Clarence Schindler, who paid "approximately $200,000," a quarter of it immediately, to forestall a sale to outside interest. They promised they wouldn't make any important changes and would keep Manager Dick Porter on the job, but if they run into any more games like their first as owners, they may change their minds.

The Chiefs took a 5-2 drubbing from Baltimore Orioles just after Meangarelli and Schindler took over. Baltimore bunched three of their five hits off Ted Kleinhans with two errors in the first inning to do all their scoring. Thereafter they coasted along behind the five-hit, seven-strikeout flinging of Jack Tising.

Jersey City attained its odd position by whipping Newark Bears, 6-3, in last night's other game while Rochester, paired with Buffalo, was idle. Since the Red Birds have played fewer games, they remained in first place by the percentage margin of .618 to .615. The Toronto-Montreal game was rained out.

NIBBLE HANOVER STAKE WINNER

Hambletonian Trotting Stake to be Raced at Goshen in August

Goshen N.Y., May 30 (AP)—New York State appears to have a stranglehold on trotting honors this year with Dunbar W. Bostwich's Nibble Hanover favorite for the Kentucky Derby's counterpart in trotting, the Hambletonian Stake, and E. Roland Harriman's Edgar Hanover, an $8,100 colt which looks like tops among the juvenile sulky-pullers.

Out of 235 horses entered in Goshen's first Grand Circuit meeting the week of July 4, more than half are owned by New York state sportsmen. And the unlucky number of 13 out of the 45 three-year-olds eligible for the Hambletonian here in August also are in the stables of Empire State owners.

Boyne, seven-year-old gelding owned by Bostwick, is another New Yorker scheduled to upset invading rivals Pat O'Connell of Cleveland, now training here for the Grand Circuit, considers Bostwick and Boyne the toughest nut he and his Kelly have to crack when they meet here on Independenc Day. Boyne won their last encounter in the Transylvania at Lexington, Ky., last fall, and Pat, whose memory is almost as long as his flowing beard, is out for revenge.

DON PENNISTON LEAVES FLYERS

Cornwall Hockey Club in Market for a High Class Coach

Cornwall, Ont., May 30 (CP) — Officials of Cornwall Flyers of the Quebec Provincial Senior Hockey League announced last night they had received and "reluctantly accepted" the resignation of Coach Don Penniston who yesterday was appointed coach of Quebec Aces of the Quebec Senior League.

President Clarence G. Markell of Flyers regretted Penniston's departure and said several well known coaches were being considered to succeed Penniston, but refused to divulge their names.

Penniston could not be reached immediately for comment.

EDMONTON GRADS HAVE 12 PT. LEAD

Defeat Chicago Queen Anne Aces 41-29 in First Game for World's Title

Edmonton, May 30 (CP)—Sparked by the diminutive forward Helen Northup, the Edmonton Grads held a 2-point lead today over Chicago Queen Anne Aces after the first game of a three-series in defence of the Underwood Women's International Basketball trophy. It is a total-point series. The champion Grads last night defeated the Chicago invaders 41-29.

Grads played without their star centre Noel MacDonald, Canada's outstanding woman athlete, who suffered a back injury while at work yesterday. She may be able to take the floor in the second game Wednesday. The third game is scheduled for Friday.

Martin a Menace Again

A large part of the success of St. Louis Cardinals thus far in the National League flag chase is due to the efforts of Pepper Martin, ABOVE, the old "Wild Horse of the Osage" who has been tearing around the base paths as of yore and connecting for more than his share of base hits. At the moment he is leading batter in the majors.

WITH THE LAWN BOWLERS

by

GEO. E. WATKIN

Our official opening will take place on Wednesday, June 7th in the form of a mixed rink tournament, there rinks will be drawn by the Games Committee and it is wish of Harvey Stewart our games chairman that all names of those wishing to take part will phone him not later than Monday the 5th, his phone number is 2154, so that the draw can be made on Tuesday night. It is the intention of the committee to include in each team a new member, this is good work, so see that your member is on the job. The success of this opening game depends entirely on each individual member, do your share and it is bound to be a full green of bowlers.

On Wednesday, Thursday and Friday night of this week new players are asked to be on the greens at 7.30 o'clock for practice. Will all old skips kindly put in an appearance and help along this venture.

ADD SPORTEYE .. ....LYon .. Walter Gerow, guiding light of baseball in Napanee, agreed to play last week's postponed Bay of Quinte League opener here on Thursday as a twilight fixture. The Belleville nine has been practicing faithfully for nearly a full month and are anxious to display their diamond wares before the public. The game will not be called until after all business houses along the main stem have been closed for the day.

We're Telling You That — The only reason Kragauskas of the Senators, was not chalked up with a loss yesterday was because he was replaced in the sixth.... It is queer and we can't fathom out why "Pop" Robinson was placed on the softball umpiring shelf before he ever umped a single game in the local mushball realm....We agree with Eddie Collins, in so much as the Chicago White Sox of 1919 were the greatest band of ballsters ever gathered together under one head ....The Reds beat th Cubs and the Pirates downed the Cards so now we find the Red stockings three full gams afront of the senior ball loop, as the Yankees continue to make another runaway of the American circuit.... Today is Memorial Day in the U.S.A., to be featured by the Indianapolis automobile race, baseball doubleheaders and plenty of fireworks tonight.

NOVA, BAER BOUT HARD TO FIGURE

Concensus of Opinion is That Maxie Can Win—But Will He?

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, May 30 (AP)—It may not be the best fight of the season when Max Baer and Lou Nova come together for 15 rounds or less in the Yankee stadium Thursday night. And it probably won't draw the biggest crowd. But it certainly is the hardest fight to figure out in advance.

The experts haven't been able to agree at all. The consensus is that Baer can win—but will he? And there's no answer to that question.

If Maxie fights as he did several years ago marking up some of his most notable victories—when he stopped Max Schmeling, for example—it hardly seems possible the young and comparatively inexperienced Nova can beat him. If he fights as he did against Joe Louis or Jimmy Braddock almost any good pugilist should be able to do it. And Nova, it seems clear, is good.

The young Californian wasn't so well known hereabouts when the match was made, so promoter Mike Jacobs gave him the benefit of his best publicity blasts. So far Nova has lived up to them. Baer was a 5-8 favourite when they started training. Now they're rated about even.

From their training camps, at Ferndale, N.Y., for Baer and Nyack, N.Y., for Nova, come reports that they are in fine shape. Both were scheduled to get in their final training licks today, a little boxing and light exercise, before breaking camp.

CAN THIS BE TOMMY FARR WINNING?

It may be home cooking, or on the other hand, it may be the opposition, but Tommy Farr, the winless Welshman in five ring attempts on this side of the Atlantic, reverted to the winning Welshman upon returning to his native shores. First he beat Red Burman, who had previously defeated him in the United States, and then he racked up win No. 2 over Larry Gains, the ancient Canadian, who has been battling for a number of years in Europe. Farr is seen here about to pound home a right to the Gains ribs. He won on a T.K.O. in the fifth.

CALLING 'EM Between the Lines

Ken J. Colling

Providing all of the elements of weather are favorable, the general populace of Belleville may be given the opportunity to enjoy sailing on the bay. President Maurice Callaghan, of the Belleville Yacht Club, recently approached his fellow-sailors with the suggestion that all yachts sailing under the colors of the local Yacht Club devote Sunday, June 4th as a day to further the interests in yachting along the shores of the Bay of Quinte where boating at one time flourished so successfully. Mr. Callaghan proposes to have his two sailing craft, "After You 2nd" and "3rd" at Victoria Park next Sunday afternoon while Harry Semark agreed to bring along his class "A" craft, the Alaska. The public will be invited to come aboard and enjoy a sail around the bay at no expense. President Callaghan assured us that he could depend upon the other members of the club to follow suit and join this introductory sailing salesmanship idea. "I venture to say there are hundreds in Belleville who have never had the opportunity to really enjoy the thrills of sailing before the wind," commented Prexy Callaghan as he asked us to invite all interested to drop around at Victoria Park next Sunday and enjoy a real sport.

Yachting has been an outstanding sport among men since before the Christian era and always there have been arguments as to whose craft was the faster and who was the better skipper or sailor. The word yacht is a slight departure from the old Dutch word of "jacht," which specifically means a pleasure boat. No commercial boat can be termed as a yacht. The word "jacht" originally was a noun, not a verb, so when we say a person is going "jachting" it simply means one is going on a sail for pleasure. The Dutch are accredited with being the pioneers of modern yachting, but the first recognized yacht club is believed to have been organized at Cork (Ireland) in 1720 and known as The Water Club of the Harbour of Cork.

The Royal Yacht Club of England was organized or instituted in 1812. Today the greatest yachting event in the world is the America's Cup race created in 1851. There is no more thrilling sport known to man than that of standing before the mast, so as guests of the Belleville Yacht Club all interested 'land lubbers' are invited to taste the excitement of sailing off Victoria Park next Sunday.

George Richards, alias Benny Stein, the Jewish champion wrestler who gladdened the hearts of Belleville wrestling fans when he soundly trounced Al (Bunny) Dunlop two weeks ago, will return to the Hume arena Friday night when he meets Johnnie Denchuck, the Polish-born grappler from New York City. Denchuck was brought into Canada recently by Promoter Jack Corcoran of the Queensbury A.C. and made his Canadian debut in the Maple Leaf Gardens last Thursday in victory. Denchuck's services have been sought in Ottawa, London and Montreal since his convincing appearance in Toronto. He should make a strong opponent for Richards. This week's show will carry two main bouts as a bargain attraction, when Johnny Gyroffy, the Hungarian grappler, meets Al Dunlop in a second main bout.

"Red" Townsend's softball strategy must have boomeranged on him last evening at the Flats, at least it proved that old adage of the folly of changing horses in mid-stream, er sumpin'. The local junior mushballers had battled the Point Anne "Cementmen" for eight innings and the score stood eight-all, when Skipper Townsend elected to yank pitcher Mallory in favor of Steve Hook, the former Kitchener slabsman. Hook was cold and the Cementmen were 'hot', net result Point Anne scored three runs and won the game. Two walks, a hit and some slow thinking was all the Point Anne opportunists needd. Incidentally Art Genereaux had a merry night at bat, clubbing two circuit blows, while Jack Mansfield continued his home run hitting with another four base clout last night. The win elevated Point Anne into a league leadership tie with the Oilers.

Do you remember when Floyd Roberts, 38-year-old aviation engineer of Van Nuys, Cal., streaked around the 2 1-2 mile Indianapolis Motor Speedway to win the 26th running of the annual 500-mile classic one year ago today. Roberts, driving the entire distance without relief, turned in an average speed of 117.2 miles an hour, breaking the previous record of 113.58 set in 1937.

Interesting Service At Rossmore Church

The Intermediate B.Y.P.U. of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church attended an interesting service at Rossmore United Church on Sunday afternoon, when Rev. Claude Troop Olmstead was guest preacher.

Rev. W. D. Harrison extended a cordial welcome to the guest preacher and the visitors present and further words of welcome were extended by Mrs. L. Pollitt, president of the Intermediate Y.P.U. of Rossmore Church. Mr. Bonny Gerow read the Scripture lesson from Galatians, chapter 15. A guitar solo was rendered by Douglas Reddick and Bonny Gerow sang "Nearer My God to Thee". Rossmore intermediate class sang "You Reap Whatsoever You Sow."

A piano solo was given by Miss Lillian White, "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross." The choir sang "In the Garden", accompanied by Douglas Reddick and Bonny Gerow on their guitars.

An inspiring sermon from the text "For the law is fulfilled in one word, in even this 'Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself'," was delivered by Rev. Mr. Olmstead.

Screwy News

By GLADWIN HILL
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York, May 30 (AP)—The animal world stole the show in last week's cockeyed occurrences,—

A Mississippi cow, tossed 100 yards by a tornado, kept right on chewing her cud...... Shrimps came up out of the ground in New Orleans and hopped around like fleas...... A Wyoming goose moved into a hawk's nest to hatch her young...... A Connecticut cat named Elmer began nursing three baby minks......

A Nebraska cat took over a turkey's brood, and the turkey started mothering the cat's kittens.... A duck and 10 ducklings waddled into the Philadelphia Zoo and settled down...... A bloodhound from the Idaho State Prison got lost and had to be hunted by another bloodhound...... A New York monkey drank four cans of beer.

But the human race had its moments too—

A Georgia police chief robbed a bank and drove around town tossing away the money..... A British judge fined a fisherman for mistreating his bait...... A Philadelphia man explained he stole 800 pounds of butter to finance a divorce.....

A man was arrested in Connecticut for reckless blowing on a boat whistle and an Alabama man was arrested for reckless driving in a steam roller......A Chicago hotel offered to provide dinner parties of 13 with a dress-suited dummy, to avoid bad luck. A Pennsylvania man wrote a cheque with charcoal on a carpet two feet wide and six feet long, and a bank offered to cash it.

Prevented from having a date with his girl, a Nebraska college student serenaded her from a sound truck...... After he and his wife had been separated 45 years, a Connecticut man asked for a divorce, and after two weeks' courtship, a 77-year-old West Virginia man married a woman of 89.

QUICK ACTION BY OIL WORKER SAVES HIS LIFE

Titusville, Pa., May 30 (AP)—Bitten by a rattlesnake, Bruce Redfield probably saved his life by breaking a bottle and cutting the flesh about the wound. The 24-year-old oil lease worker walked nearly a mile to his home after "operating" on his right leg yesterday. Dr. W. E. Stewart said cutting away the flesh kept the poison from spreading.

QUEEN MARY STEADILY IMPROVES

Married Man

By MADELINE JONES

Professor Wakes was worried. The letter from Crewe university promised him exactly the appointment he desired. It included a house (and this meant he could keep chickens and study the psychology of the domestic fowl, something he'd wished to study for ages). It also meant a satisfactory increase in salary and increased personal prestige.

But the president demanded a married man, and the last thing on earth Professor Wakes wanted was a wife. Women, in his mind were composed of those who ministered to his comfort such as cooks, and those dreadful flappers, whom he didn't know but occasionally glimpsed through what he described as the written word.

He rang the bell. Mrs. Lawrence had acted as housekeeper for him and his crony, Assistant Professor Dawson (in the ethnology department) for seven years. He had some respect for the judgment of Mrs. Lawrence.

"Ah, good morning, good morning" he said fussily when Mrs Lawrence appeared.

"No bad news, I hope, professor?" she asked, taking an indicated chair by the window.

"No, er, that is to say I fear it is bad for you, and, er for me too. I have been very comfortable in your house, Mrs. Lawrence very comfortable, indeed."

Mrs. Lawrence smiled and waited. A sensible woman, thought the professor; most of them would have demanded to know why it was bad news.

"The University of Crewe," he said, "asks me to come and fill the chair of zoology. A very desirable position."

"I am thankful you will get the recognition you deserve" cried Mrs. Lawrence. "Of course, I shall miss you, but I must not think of myself when such a fine offer comes your way."

A noble-hearted woman said the professor to himself, and good-looking, too. Never noticed it before.

"But, er" he continued aloud, "there is one consideration that will I fear, prevent my accepting the position."

"What is that if I may ask?" Mrs. Lawrence smiled charmingly. (Professor Wakes didn't know her nephew was a freshman at Crewe university).

"Er, the position is usually held by a married man. A house goes with it, and er, in short I fear it is not for me. I am too old a man to consider,er, marriage..."

"Isn't that rather hard on some nice young girl, professor?" very sweetly. "Now, I know some real lovely girls I should be glad to have you meet. There's Marty Sales and"

"Flappers," snapped Wakes. "Scandalous, young people are these days scandalous." The little man fidgeted with a paper knife and Mrs. Lawrence hoped he might not intend a personal injury to any marauding flapper.

"Well," said Mrs. Lawrence, "if you dislike young girls there are older women...."

Professor Wakes looked at her. But he was nervous. Would she allow him liberty to measure the abilities of chickens she probably merely considered in terms of frying?

"I fear an old bachelor is difficult to live with", he faltered.

Mrs. Lawrence smiled some more. Wonderful teeth she had. She stood up. "Well, I must not waste your morning," she said.

"No, wait" he called as she half closed the door. Just the way he preferred it in summer-time. A clever and thoughtful woman.

"I, er—the truth is that I don't know how to say to you what I want to say," he declared lamely.

"Well- professor, there's no need to say anything in a hurry. I quite understand this thing has taken you al by surprise. You just have a little talk to me later."

Professor Wakes sat still for half an hour his thoughts roaming over that garden and the chickens, which went with the Crewe appointment, and at noon jumped up, seized his note-books and stuffed them into his brief-case.

He knocked gently on Mrs. Lawrence's partially opened door.

"Come right in, professor. I hope you've made up your mind not to let a little thing like a wife prevent your taking that lovely position." Her eyes were laughing now.

"Not if you'll come along with me and be the wife," he said, red to his neat little ears.

"Why, bless your heart. I've cared for you ever since that first Christmas day you came here. D'you remember how you said that you believed turkeys were less intelligent than hens? And I said I'd never thought either of them very bright, but maybe you were right."

So she actually remembered his first words. This was the woman for him, and he could easily explain that part of the hen-yard was a laboratory and only part connected with the table.

"I am much honored," he said quaintly and turned to run for a class at which he was usually and notoriously late.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was late again for supper, making the 3rd time so far this week and me being afraid it would seem like too many to ma and pop. Wich it did ma saying to pop, Now really Willyum I mean really, this is the last straw of straws, he's getting worse instead of better and you'll have to do something about it.

I'll do something all right, I'll give him a talking to that'll make him think a thousand scorpions are after him, pop said. Look here young fellow, you seem to think unpunctuality is something to be taken lightly and casually but let me tell you that many a young worm of great promise has been nipped in the bud of lateness by the early birds. There's a famous old saying to the effect that punctuality is the politeness of kings. In other words kings could be late if they liked and nobody would dare say a word, and yet they make a special point of being on time because they consider punctuality a mark of nobility, pop said, and I sai'. Well G pop even for school when they're still young?

Even so, pop said. And never mind interrupting, I'll attend to both the questions and answers. Just get it into your mind that unpunctuality is another word for selfishness, and selfishness is what makes the world turn backwards in its flite, and when this life becomes as perfect as it can get there will still be pickpockets, liars and cut throats, but there will be no late arrivals, he said, and I said, Then gosh, pop, nobody will ge any special credit for always being on time because everybody will be so used to it they wont even notice the difference.

Dont worry, you'll always be the great exception and the horrible example, so the world is safe for punctuality, now eat your supper and remember your teeth are in your mouth and not in your stummik, pop said

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 30—(CP)— Trading broadened out today to involve the western oils in the market's upward swing and this group led the list for action and price increase on the Toronto Exchange. Due to the New York Market holiday, the interlisted leaders of both industrial and mining groups remained comparatively quiet but their lack of action was more than made up by the western oils and the golds. Profit-taking held the golds to an even keel or a slight recession but other indices were up at the close. Volume was the heaviest in weeks at around 700,000 shares.

Bids were advanced so rapidly in the oils that the index soon showed a point advance. These gains were enlarged in the early afternoon and trading proceeded on a heavy scale.

Waite-Amulet and the senior base metals were unchanged to slightly higher and heavy traders in the golds at firm to strong prices were Kerr-Addison, Paymaster, McKenzie, Uchi, Moneta and others.

Home Oil advanced 18 cents to 2.38, Calgary-Edmonton about the same amount to 2.22 and Okalta 9 cents to 1.20. Anglo-Canadian, Davies, Foothills and others advanced on good volume.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, May 30.—(CP)—Cattle trade continued dull at mid-session on the Toronto Livestock market today. The Calf division was firm while Spring lambs were steady to strong. The Sheep market was steady while no hog price was established. Cattle holdover from Monday was 1,900 head.

Receipts 1,080; calves 1,020; hogs 1,230; sheep and lambs 210.

Cows and bulls held steady but a few butcher steers and heifers sold 15-25 cents lower for the week.

Butcher cows ranged from $3.75 to $5.25. Good bulls made $5 to $5.25 and Bologna bulls $4.50 to $4.75. Butcher steers and heifers sold between $5.50 to $6.75 and a few weighty steers brought $6.25 to $6.85.

Choice veal calves held at $8 to $9. Common grades sold downward to $5.

BONE ADVOCATES NATIONAL GOV'T

Says It Will be Only Solution for Canada's Troubles

Whitby, Ont., May 30 (CP)—Mayor Jamieson Bone of Belleville advocated before the Whitby Rotary Club here today a National Government as the solution for Canada's troubles and "the only one that will remould our democratic form of government before it is too late."

"Our experience of democracy during the past twenty years has been most unsatisfactory," Mayor Bone said. "It has consisted almost entirely of inefficiency, extravagance, waste, vote-buying, job-seeking and so on. The sand in the hour glass is lower than most people think."

Attacking what he described as "unjust, discriminating and absolutely outmoded methods of municipal taxation," Mayor Bone declared the property owner bears the whole cost of municipal taxation although he is only 10 per cent of the community. He blamed taxation for the slump in the building trades.

Top Quality Graded Eggs Firm

Toronto, May 30—Prices were steadier for top quality graded eggs on the Toronto open produce market Monday, but butter maintained previous levels according to the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Fresh receipts arrived in fairly heavy volume on the egg market. Morning trading was slow and some accumulation was reported. Demand picked up in the afternoon session of the market, however, and prices firmed slightly on top grades in the graded division. Graded shipments closed out the day at 19c to 19½c for grade A-large, 17c to 17½c for medium, 16c for B's and 15c for C grades. Other sections ruled steady.

Offerings continued light on the butter market, but trading was not so active and supplies were sufficient to cover requirements. Fresh receipts cleared steadily at unchanged prices. Some sellers endeavored to obtain higher values, but buyers showed no interest in rates above prevailing levels.

Ontario creamery solids traded at 21¼c for No. 1 grades and 20¾c for 38 score. Prints moved at the previous prices of 22½c to 23¼c for top grades and 21⅞c to 22½c for 38 score.

Montreal Cheese Firms

Montreal, May 29 (CP)—Creamery butter and cheese prices firmed fractionally but Quebec butter and potatoes weakened on open produce markets here today, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported.

Quebec No. 1 pasteurized fresh made 21⅜c. Receipts, nil.

Ontario white and colored cheese brought 10⅛c to 10¼c a pound. Receipts, 370 boxes.

Graded egg shipments in used free cases sold at 20½c a dozen for A-large, 18c to 18½c for A-medium; 18c for B-large and 16c for C. Receipts 1,189 cases.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH VERDICT RENDERED

Poor Visibility and High Speed Blamed for Death of Five at Peterboro

Lakefield, Ont., May 30 (CP)—A verdict of accidental death was returned last night by a jury probing the death by drowning of five Peterborough persons a week ago. Excessive speed and poor visibility was blamed for the automobile, containing the five, plunging into the race way of the Power Company here.

Those drowned were Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lee, Ella Davis, John Rice and Earl Harrington. The jury deliberated more than an hour after hearing evidence of 20 witnesses. It was testified there were no skid marks on 82 feet of grass the car travelled over before plunging over an embankment into the water.

Germans Seize Catholic Primates Palace in Berlin

Archbishop Waitz Makes Futile Appeal to Hitler

Berlin, May 30 (AP)—Nazi authorities have seized the Palace of Archbishop Sigismund Waitz, Catholic Primate of Germany, removed all the furniture and turned over the historic building to the black shirted elite guard troops.

The archbishop was out of town yesterday on a religious mission when furniture vans drew up to the palace. A dozen workmen carried out all the furnishings, which were placed in storage.

The archbishop was notified last month that the government would no longer permit him to use the palace which, it was contended, was the property of the state.

The Primate appealed directly to Chancellor Hitler, asking him to rescind the order. Hitler took no action.

Local authorities finally decided to move out the Primate's possessions, bag and baggage.

Motion Pictures of Speedboat Racing Enjoyed by Rotary Club

Members View Several Racing Scenes Taken at Tweed and Picton

REGATTA DISCUSSED

Speeding power-boats flinging geysers of spray high from gleaming bows as they sped over the silvery water of regatta courses of the district last summer took the place of the conventional after-dinner speaker at the regular weekly luncheon of the Belleville Rotary Club yesterday.

Through the courtesy of the British American Oil Company and its representatives Messrs. R. G. Stafford and C. W. Barber, members of club who will this year don the conventional blue jacket, brass buttons, white trousers and cap of the yachtsman at their first regatta to be held off Massassaga Point, were given the actual thrills of speed-boat racing through the medium of motion pictures.

Ripping through the sunlit waters at a speed that at times exceeded sixty miles an hour, the cream of American and Canadian speed boats were shown in thrilling races that drew the silent admiration of the club.

Jackie Cooper, fifty-seven-year-old dean of speed-boat drivers was shown driving his famous "Tops 2nd." to victory against such outstanding drivers as Harold Wilson in "Miss Canada 2nd", Gordon Oliver in "Canadian Capers" Jack McInnes in "Miss Quebec 3rd" and other famous drivers.

The scenic beauty of such noted water-courses as Picton's part of the Bay of Quinte, Tweed's Lake Stoco, the Muskoka Lakes, Puslinch Lake and the beautiful Domain D'esterel, where the final heats for the British American Trophy, emblematic of the Canadian 225 cubic inch class championship were run off, and which incidentally was won by Cooper after being given a thrilling race by Jack McInnes was seen in the pictures.

Messrs. Stafford and Barber were introduced to the club by Rotarian Lloyd Hicks. Another guest Mr. Ed. Truman, Belleville, was also welcomed by the clubmen. Appreciation of the splendid entertainment furnished was expressed on behalf of the club by Rotarian "Bob" Graham.

The regatta committee under the chairmanship of President MacLean Haig who also presided at the banquet met following the luncheon. Satisfactory progress was reported by the majority of the committees while some discussion regarding the methods of ticket-selling for the $600.00 boat to be given away on the day of the regatta took place. While nothing definite was decided upon, in all probability new plans will be laid down in the near future to stimulate the sale of tickets here and in the district.

A new member, Mr. Ewart Bassingthwaighte, of the Stewart-Warner Company was introduced to the club by Rotarian Owen Herity.

Police Blotter

Held for investigation pertaining to alleged improper actions towards a very small boy, a man who gave his name as Alfred Hamilton, Toronto, was apprehended by local police last evening. City police answered a call to a Moira St. residence late yesterday where they were informed that a strange man had approached the door seeking a drink of water. The lady of the house was later informed by her son that during her absence from the room the man insulted her little son. Later the boy, in company with the police, pointed to the person now being held for investigation. Hamilton was remanded in custody on a nominal charge of vagrancy.

Roy Garvin, 108 Cedar St., escaped serious injury after being knocked off his bicycle at the intersection of Boswell and Moira Sts., yesterday. Young Garvin was proceeding out of Boswell St., when his bicycle was in collision with a motor car driven by W. A. Richardson, Thurlow. Both parties swerved prior to the impact, which resulted in Garvin escaping serious injury.

County Constable James Lovelace, Bloomfield, today informed Belleville police he held a warrant for the arrest of 15-year-old John Welles, farmhand. The warrant charges Welles with the theft of seven dollars from his previous employer.

Provincial Constable W. E. Smith and Traffic Officer Doug Ellis, hastened to the Belleville Canadian National Railway yards last evening where it was reported that a drunken brawl was in progress, several transients being said to have been implicated. Despite a thorough search of the area and transient jungles nearby no signs of such persons were found, police subsequently reported.

Salvation Army Youth Group Meets

On Monday evening the Salvation Army Youth Group held their fourth meeting at which twenty-four were present.

The meeting was opened with the singing of choruses led by Cyril Magor after which Cyril prayed. The minutes of the last meeting were read by Miss Dorothy Stebbings. Miss Dorothea Alderman read Psalm 96. The rest of the evening was devoted to games in which everyone joined heartily. Refreshments were served and the meeting was closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

Crow Kidnaps Young Blackbird

A nest-robbing crow, carrying in its beak what was thought to be a blackbird fledgling, was seen flying low over the Victoria Avenue section of the city early last evening.

Hard on its trail, swooping and diving were two blackbirds, apparently the parents of the "crown-aped" youngster. The pathetic cries of the young bird as it was carried slowly along in the beak of its abductor, were plainly heard by street observers of the aerial tragedy.

The crow disappeared over the house tops, and a few minutes later the two blackbirds were observed returning from what was apparently a futile attempt to rescue their young.

POLICE BELIEVE RECLUSE IS DEAD

Authorities Convinced Man Could Not Have Lived Without Nourishment

Sudbury, Ont., May 30 (CP) — While police continued their constant watch on Bill Cassleman's Lake Wahnapitae haunts today, two theories were offered in the disappearance of the aged recluse, wanted in connection with the killing of two Sudbury prospectors.

Cassleman may have committed suicide, police said, or friends may be hiding him. Authorities were convinced the old man, believed to have been badly injured, could not have lived a week in the wilds without nourishment.

It was just a week ago today that police questioned Cassleman in his cabin beside Lake Wahnapitae concerning the disappearance of Gilbert Bennett and Wilbur (Tom) Sawyer, who had probed Cassleman's farm-clearing in laying out mining claims. That night Casselman disappeared, too, and three days later the bodies of Bennett and Sawyer, one of them shot through the heart, were dragged from Mountain Creek.

Inspector A. R. Knight of the Sudbury detachment of provincial police said he was satisfied in his own mind that "when we find Cassleman, he will not be alive," and Constable Joe Beaudoin echoed: "I believe Cassleman will be found dead, if he ever is found."

At the same time the officials admitted the possibility friends of the recluse, true to the law of the bush, might have taken him in or provided him with food that he could have carried away to one of his caves on the mountain north of the lake. That was about his only chance for surviving a week-long ordeal in the open, for he was in pain a week ago with three fractured ribs which he suffered last fall and never had treated.

WILBUR SHAW LEADING RACE

Breaks Record for First 100 Miles Going 123.442 M.P.H.

Indianapolis Speedway, May 30 (AP)—Wilbur Shaw, Indianapolis 1937 winner, snatched the lead from Jimmy Snyder, Chicago, shortly after 75 miles of the 500-mile automobile race here today.

Snyder was forced into the pits for a change of two tires and Shaw overtook him. Shaw covered the first 100 miles in 48:56.36 to average 123.442 miles an hour, a new speedway record. This wiped out the record of 120,253 Snyder hung up a year ago.

Louis Meyer, Huntington Park, Cal., was trailing Shaw by eight seconds, with Rex Mays, Glendale, Fla., third. Ted Horn, Los Angeles, was fourth.

Snyder was in the pits only a minute and a half, taking fuel and changing two tires, and then he took up pursuit of Shaw nearly a lap behind.

A. B. (Deacon) Litz of Dubois, Pa., went out of the race after stopping at the end of 15 miles. Mechanics couldn't get his car started after the pit stop.

Shaw went into the pits at 172 miles and Meyer took the lead. Three laps later Meyer had to make a pit stop but he got back into the race without losing the lead. Meyer's speed for 175 miles was 122.306 miles an hour.

Horn was second at 175 miles. Mays was next in line and Shaw had dropped back to fourth. Horn made a stop at about the same time as Meyer. This saved Meyer's lead.

Meyer had to make another stop and Snyder, coming up from behind, seized the lead again at 200 miles. His speed for the distance was 120.966 miles an hour.

Mays had moved up to second place, only three seconds behind Snyder Chet Miller, in third place, was on the same lap with Snyder and Mays.

Horn was fourth, a lap behind, with Meyer fifth, Shaw sixth.

Prices are Steady In the City Market

Although the quantity of asparagus offered for sale on the city market today was well below that of Saturday, no change was noted in prices, pound bunches selling at ten and fifteen cents according to quality.

Eggs were offered at twenty-two cents per dozen for extra "A" selects with a few mediums quoted at twenty cents. Only a few broiler chickens were in evidence and these sold at one dollar per pair.

Tomato plants were fairly plentiful at seventy-five cents per large flat and cabbage and cauliflower plants at usual prices.

Potatoes, that appear to be plentiful in spite of the fact that blight destroyed a large part of the crop last year, were steady at $1.35 per ninety pound bag.

R. C. A. F. Band of Trenton Air Base Congratulated by King

Sergt. Cooper, bandmaster in charge of the Trenton R.C.A.F. band, recently received a personal message of congratulation from His Majesty, King George, commending the unit upon the splendid performance of the Air Force band during the military activities in connection with the Royal visit of Their Majesties in Ottawa.

His Majesty, in a telegram sent from the Royal train, commented very favorably on the appearance, playing and efficiency of Sergt. Cooper and the Trenton Air Force band.

Routine flying activities at the Airport have been dispensed with of late, parades and route marching being the principal military program at the Airport. A detachment of 400 ground men and the Air Force band will leave for Niagara Falls, Ont., over the week end, where they will form a guard of honor on the International bridge, while Their Majesties cross into the United States next week. The R.C.A.F. have been given the honors of the final guard placed by Canada before Their Majesties upon leaving Canadian shores. The Canadian half of the International bridge will be guarded by the R.C.A.F. while the American half will be lined with crack troops from the United States army units.

DISTRICT FARMER LOSES SAVINGS

Alleged Two Gypsy Women Asked to Bless His Money

Norwood, Ont., May 30 (CP) — George Lee, elderly district farmer who had carried his life savings on his person for years, was robbed yesterday, allegedly by the gypsy women who circled about him yesterday asking to bless his money and cure his physical ailments.

Lee said the two women drove up to his farm home, seven miles north of here, and came into the house while a male gypsy stayed outside in the car. He told them he wanted nothing to do with them, and they left.

The King and Queen Enjoy Beauties of City of Victoria

Crowd Day's Functions Into Five Hours, Then Relax, Rest

DRIVE THRU STREETS

By MURIEL ADAMS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Victoria, May 30—(CP)—The King and Queen crowded a full day's official functions into five hours today—their "reward" half an afternoon and an evening for relaxation and rest.

The royal program in this Provincial Capital where more than 35,000 of the 61,000 residents claim English origin called for a start at 10 a.m. PST (2 p.m. EDT).

In the next five hours were scheduled a long drive through the city and its environs, civic and provincial government receptions with hundreds presented to Their Majesties, and a brief speech by the King at a government luncheon.

The King's Fourth Speech

The speech, at 2 p.m. to an Empire-wide audience over the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and British Broadcasting Corporation facilities, was the fourth in Their Majesties' Canadian tour. There will be only one more before they sail back to the Old Country, at Halifax June 15.

Their Majesties arrived last night aboard the coastal steamship Princess Marguerite after a strenuous day in Vancouver, their first at the Pacific coast.

They spent the night at Government House as guests of Lieutenant-Governor Eric Hamber and Mrs. Hamber.

Royal Suites

The Queen's rooms, at the east end of a second-storey corridor, face south to the Strait of Juan de Fuca and the Olympic Mountains in Washington State 17 miles away, and east into the Government House gardens. The King's suite has much the same view, but to the south and west.

Entrance to the Queen's suite is through a sitting room off the main hall. Sitting room and bedroom are decorated in the Queen's favorite colors—pale peach and the shade which has become known as Queen's blue. The furniture is upholstered in the blue shade. The carpet is blue while walls are finished in peach.

Little Bit of Old England Spread Before King, Queen On Visit to Victoria B. C.

(By Stuart Underhill)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Victoria, May 30.— (CP)—A city rich in British tradition —"a little bit of Old England"—was spread before the eyes of the King and Queen today as they prepared for a five-hour program in this capital of British Columbia and a late afternoon and evening of rest.

Westernmost stop in their long tour of Canada and the United States and almost the halfway point in their trip, Victoria gave Their Majesties an opportunity to recover from the heavy program they went through in Vancouver yesterday.

Civic and provincial welcomes, a provincial luncheon and an Empire broadcast by the King were on the program. The day, after 3 p.m. P.S.T. (7 p.m.) E.D.T.) was their's but if they act as they did in their other 'rest' sto pat Banff, Alta., they will be busy even in the few hours given them before they leave for the mainland again tomorrow.

Escorted to Victoria

The royal couple dropped south of the 49th parallel last night as they sailed on the steamship Princess Marguerite from Vancouver with an escort of four Canadian destroyers — The Ottawa, Restigouche, St. Laurent and Fraser—and today looked out over the Strait of Georgia toward United States.

They heard the broad dialects of the Lancashireman and the Yorkshireman and the accents of Devon and the London Cockney, saw "Petrol" advertised by Service Stations rather than "gas" and noticed many old country firm names on business signs.

Wild cheers rolled from the waterfront and whistles of craft dotting the harbor set up a din of greeting as the royal steamship docked on schedule at 9 p.m. (1 a.m. E.D.T.)

Lieutenant-Governor Eric W. Hamber and Mrs. Hamber, Premier T. D. Pattullo, Mayor Andrew McGavin and their wives boarded the vessel to greet Their Majesties. They stepped ashore a few minutes later and, after the King inspected the guard of honor, drove to Government House, royal quarters for the visit here.

Heavy Rainfall

Rain began to fall shortly after the steamship docked and increased during the ride in the open royal car to Government House, soaking spectators.

More than 600,000 British Columbians and Americans from the Northwestern States crowded Vancouver yesterday, cheered Their Majesties along a 51-mile parade route—longest of the tour—and gave them a thrilling send-off.

A dozen Royal Canadian Air Force planes roared overhead and 500 vessels, ranging from canoes and tiny sea fleas to powerful halibuters, formed a double-flag- decked line for seven miles from the Marguerite's dock to the Point Grey buoy at the head of English Bay.

Sailors aboard the four destroyers lined decks to cheer the royal couple as the Marguerite steamed into a southwest wind at the start of the 80-mile trip to Victoria. In the harbor Their Majesties saw one yachtsman so excited at their appearance on the deck of the royal boat that he fell into the water.

The Queen noticed the man's plight and quickly pointed out the accident to the King. Their Majesties stayed by the Marguerite's bridge rail until the man caught a life buoy and was pulled aboard his boat.

From the shore, the yacht's name could not be seen.

Later she was lost in a group of other vessels.

Celebrated Late

Vancouver celebrated late into the night. Taverns, theatres and restaurants were packed and pipers played for Scotsmen dancing the Highland Fling on busy streets.

After cheering Their Majesties throughout the day, watching a civic welcome and shouting outside the beautiful Hotel Vancouver while the royal couple lunched, crowds kept up the celebration well past midnight. Americans were as enthusiastic as Canadians.

Traffic stopped on several streets for an hour as throngs jammed into the district around the docks for a sight on the Princess Marguerite steaming away. Their Majesties drove to the pier from West Vancouver, across the harbor, where they saw the port from a lookout station 1,350 feet above the harbor.

Guards of honor from the Royal Canadian Navy and the R.C.A.F. were lined up for His Majesty's inspection at the dock and a 21-gun salute, second of the day, was fired as the royal boat backed into the harbor. A salute was fired on arrival of the royal train at 10.00 a.m.

Eight Indian war canoes, each containing 12 Braves, raced beside the royal boat, their red, white and blue paddles dipping madly into the Pacific. At times the lines of escorting craft were so near that the Princess Marguerite almost brushed their hulls.

Cosmopolitan Touch

Vancouver's welcome and her farewell until Wednesday were the most unusual Their Majesties have seen in Canada. The city's large foreign population lined the streets, many in native costume, lending a cosmopolitan touch no other city has shown.

Japanese in native costume, turbanned Hindus, Chinese babies and venerable grandfathers; Indians with painted faces and Germans and Hungarians in colorful costumes dotted the long royal route around the city.

They rushed through the streets after seeing Their Majesties once to get a second glimpse and traffic was tied up all day. Bleachers that many had paid from 50 cents to $30 to use were deserted as the crowds pushed through to curbs for a closer look.

The King and Queen seemed to enjoy it all immensely. Dressed in a Royal Air Force uniform, the King saluted until his arm must have been tired and the Queen, in a blue crepe ensemble, waved in her characteristic way throughout the day.

INDIAN PYTHON FIRST SEEN HERE

14 Feet of Coiling Death Admired at Sims Greater Shows

Fourteen feet of coiling death, forked tongue darting and flashing in defiance of its human captors, its beautifully colored body writhing in futile efforts to escape from its glass-enclosed home; picture this, and you may have some idea of the first Indian python to visit Belleville.

The handsome reptile, being shown as a feature of the Sims Greater Shows here, will not feed on carrion or dead meat. At noon today, as a luncheon snack, the snake calmly swallowed two live full-grown chickens.

Its only method of defence is constriction. It wraps itself around its victim in several coils, slowly constricting until the heartbeats of its potential meal cease. Then it swallows its victim slowly. It does not masticate its food.

These deadly denizens of the Indian jungles are non-poisonous, and will not touch dirty or stagnant water. They have been known to crawl, or wriggle or whatever a snake does, for miles to reach a stream of fresh clear water.

Yesterday the big fellow shed its skin. A fine lacy wrapping that resembled a piece of delicately-patterned fabric lay in its enclosure. These skins are of no commercial value, it was stated, although the skins taken from reptiles that have been killed are rated as being very valuable.

HAROLD VAUGHAN IS RE-ELECTED

President of Y's Men's Club Will Head Organization for Another Term

Harold Vaughan was re-elected as president of the Belleville Y's Men's Club for the next term of office, at their final meeting of the club's semester at the Y.M.C.A. last evening. A complete slate of officers, as suggested by the nominating committee, was accepted by the members of the club, prior to the closing of the club for the summer months.

Previous to his re-election, President Vaughan reviewed the year's activities and club projects, extending to the various club chairmen his whole-hearted thanks for their co-operation throughout the past year. "I do feel it is time we enlarge our club membership, as our projects and aims are increasing and our club objectives and services becoming more broadening each year," requested President Vaughan as he referred to the ice carnival project, boys work and manual training programs as sponsored by the local Y's Men's Club throughout the year.

Y'sman George Pauley, club treasurer, presented the annual financial report which found the club's finances largely increased over the previous three years, in revenue as well as expenditures, but still enjoying a substantial balance of account. Chairman Lionel Blaker reported on the Boys' Work activities, one of the major activities of any Y's Men's Club. The Belleville Junior Y's Men's Club boasts of 19 active members, with a waiting list. "We will have to enlarge our boys' work program another year, as it is becoming more popular among teen-aged boys each succeeding year," reported Chairman Blaker.

The officers elected for the Y's Men's Club for the ensuing semester were as follows:—

President—R. H. Vaughan.
Treasurer—J. Miller.
Secretary—George Fisher.
Executive Committee — Robt. Pringle, L. Blaker, D. Ridley and H. Thomas.

The evening's musical entertainment was provided by Phil Huddleston with two delightful piano solos. The nominating committee, consisting of three past presidents of the club, was made up of Newton Thompson, George Pauley and Lorne McDougall.

Sidelights on Royal Visit

Victoria, May 30 (CP)—Twenty-six special waiters came to Victoria to serve the guests at today's British Columbia government luncheon for the King and Queen. They came from Banff, Alta., Toronto and Quebec.

Burnaby, B.C., May 30 (CP)—Life in Oakalla Prison continued at normal today, but the visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth yesterday in nearby Vancouver meant holiday meals for prisoners. Dinner was served at noon and the men ate special fare similar to what they receive at Christmas.

Vancouver, May 30 (CP)—Their Majesties yesterday rode through downtown Vancouver with the chimes of Holy Rosary Cathedral mingling with continuous cheers. The Roman Catholic Church's bells pealed again as the Princess Marguerite began its trip to Victoria with the Sovereigns.

Vancouver, May 30 (CP)—King George and Queen Elizabeth drove several blocks from the mapped procession route yesterday to make an unscheduled stop at Shaughnessy Military Hospital.

They shook hands on the lawn with employees and seven patients. The wind blew a blanket off one of the invalids, H. A. Ross, and the King leaned over to put it back in place.

Windsor, Ont., May 30 (CP)—Approximately 35,000 school children of Essex and Kent Counties are expected here June 6 to see the King and Queen. Three special areas for children will be supervised by the teachers. One group of 40 children will be brought from the Indian Reserve at Highgate.

Victory, May 30 (CP)—The Royal umbrella was held high last night as the King and Queen drove in the open Royal car through a heavy shower of rain from the steamship dock to Government House. The Queen carried the umbrella but held it high and it did not obstruct a clear view of their Majesties for the thousands of citizens along the royal route.

Jasper Park Wears Summer Dress To Welcome Royalty

Greens of Summer Painted Brighter by Nature

Jasper, Alta., May 30 (CP)—Dame Nature is putting Jasper National Park into its summer dress to welcome King George and Queen Elizabeth for their second rest-spell in Alberta on their Canadian visit.

In the valleys, along lake shores and river banks and on mountain slopes the green of summer is being painted brighter by Nature's deft hands to give their Majesties a royal setting for the one-day stay.

The Royal train will swing eastward from the Pacific coast and into Jasper at 10 a.m. M.S.T. (1 p.m. E.D.T.) Thursday. They leave for Edmonton Friday at 9.30 a.m.

Welcome to the park will be extended by J. A. Wood, Parks Superintendent, after he and Mrs. Wood are presented to their Majesties by Prime Minister Mackenzie King. Then they will motor to Jasper Park Lodge, cheered on their way by children from the surrounding district. Rest and recreation of their own selection will be their lot during the stay in the northern national park.

Large Acreage to be Planted in Potatoes

Farmers of the district are busy this week clearing the land for the first planting of corn, and furrowing other acres for late potato planting, a job which has been held up this spring by the backwardness of the early planting weather, it is reported after a survey of conditions by local agricultural officials.

Considerable acreage of potatoes will be planted this season in spite of the late start, it is indicated by the comparatively heavy sales of seed, due mainly to the fact that an expected shortage of potatoes will be felt later owing to the late season blight last year.

Grains have shown up well, except in clay ground which retained heavy moisture during the early weeks, and pastures are excellent at the present time, it is stated.

Presented with flowers, Her Majesty shows her pleasure at receiving the beautiful bouquet during the Regina visit of the King and Queen. In the background are but a few of the tens of thousands of Saskatchewan citizens who lined the streets and cheered. From 200 miles away, prairie folk travelled to catch a glimpse of their monarchs.

Smiling affably the King clasps the hand of Premier Patterson of Saskatchewan in Regina, while the Queen and Mrs. Patterson smile their greetings. Not only were Their Majesties formally received into this Saskatchewan city with pomp and ceremony, but they were treated to a pageant and carnival in the true western spirit during their visit.

Dressed informally in a dark-blue business suit, the King inspects the kilted guard of honor drawn up outside the Calgary railway station. The King's suit, in marked contrast to the striped trousers, cut-away coat and silk hat of Calgary's Mayor Davison, who extended civic greetings, was in keeping with the informality which Their Majesties found in the west.

AFTER THE SIGNING OF THE ITALO-GERMAN MILITARY PACT

Count Ciano, Italian foreign minister, gets the place of honor on the right hand of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, as dignitaries salute the populace from a balcony of the new Reich chancellory, in Berlin, after signing of the Italo-German pact which turned the Axis into a military alliance. The salutes seem to be anything but standardized as to direction. LEFT to RIGHT: Herr von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister; Count Ciano, Italian foreign minister; Herr Hitler; Field Marshall Goering, and General Pariani, Italian chief of staff.

AS TINY PLANE STARTED TRANS-ATLANTIC FLIGHT

Taking off from Old Orchard Beach, Maine, in a 650-pound ship carrying 159 gallons of gas, Thomas Smith, 26 LEFT, headed his craft over the Atlantic in a daring attempt to try to fly to Europe in the smallest plane yet to try the trans-Atlantic flight. Flying without a radio or other means of communication, Smith carried with him only a few sandwiches, a wrench and a screw driver. The "Baby Clipper" is pictured ABOVE by the eerie light of movie flares as it taxied into position for the take-off.
